MITCHELL ANSWERS DENIAL BY GLASSFORD

G. O. P. HOLDS SLIGHT LEAD IN MAINE VOTE

MARTIN AHEAD FOR GOVERNOR IN CLOSE RACE

BEEDY KEEPING LEAD IN 1ST CONGRESSIONAL

See-Saw Races Reported in Other Districts; Gas Tax Boost Plan Loses.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Returns from 527 election precincts out of a total of 632 in the State (representing 449 towns out of 518) give for governor: Martin (Republican), 91,114; Brann (Democrat), 85,909.

Returns from 172 precincts out of 213 in the Second Congressional District give: Nelson (Republican), 30,220; Moran (Democrat), 28,844; Bonney (Independent Republican), 1,339.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Republicans held a slight lead in the fight for the governorship and the First Congressional District seats—both far below majorities of two and four years ago—and candidates in the Second and Third Congressional Districts were nip and tuck as returns from more than half the voting precincts in the State were tabulated at midnight tonight.

The vote was:

Governor, 508 precincts out of 632: Martin (Republican), 66,320. Brann (Democrat), 60,744.

Congress:

First District, 115 precincts out of 145: Beedy (Republican), 25,559; Connolly (Democrat), 22,237.

Second District, 160 precincts out of 213: Nelson (Republican), 27,396; Moran (Democrat), 25,905; Bonney (Independent Republican), 1,266.

Third District, 233 precincts out of 274: Brewster, Republican, 31,459; Utterback, Democrat, 30,778.

G. O. P. Majority Shrinks.

The rock-ribbed Republican State—not in eighteen years has it had a Democrat for governor or in Congress—saw its large majority sliced into by an organized Democracy with candidates for practically every State and county office.

Burleigh Martin, Republican, had a lead of only 6,000 over Louis J. Brann, Democrat, from the 508 precincts. In 1930 the Republican nominee held a lead of 42,000 to 29,000 in 398 precincts.

E. Carl Moran, jr., twice defeated when he was the Democratic nominee for governor, was trailing Representative John E. Nelson, ten years in the National House of Representatives, with more than half of the new Second District reported.

Former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster and

Man in Parked Car Is Killed by Truck

Manslaughter Is Charged in Death of Clarksburg Citizen, 76.

E. P. Nicholson, 76, of Clarksburg, Md., was almost instantly killed last night when his parked automobile was struck by a truck on Rockville-Norbeck pike.

Mr. Nicholson had stopped his car beside the road to talk to Thomas C. Poole, who operates a dairy farm near Norbeck. As the two men conversed, a truck allegedly driven by Thomas Henry, colored, 30, of Darnstown, Md., struck Nicholson's car from the rear.

Mr. Nicholson was pronounced dead upon arrival at the Montgomery County General Hospital. Henry was arrested and charged with manslaughter at the Rockville police headquarters.

Vessels Given Warning Of Gale Near Louisiana

(United Press.)

The Weather Bureau last night advised caution for vessels in the path of a tropical disturbance which at 9:20 p. m., Eastern standard time, was placed at about 150 miles southwest of the mouth of the Mississippi River.

The storm is moving slowly northeastward, and is attended by strong shifting winds, probably of gale force near the center, the bureau announced.

Fischer, Kentuckian, Leads Amateur Golf

Many Choices Far Back as Collegian's 69 Tops U. S. Qualifying.

By DAVE HERMAN
(Post Staff Correspondent.)

Five Farms Club, Baltimore, Md., Sept. 12.—A slim Kentuckian, with a bag full of shots, and the accuracy of a marksman in his clubs, stroked his way over the wide open spaces of the hazardous Five Farms course this sunny day in par-cracking fashion to outstrip a field of 154 golfers for the first eighteen holes of the highly prized National Amateur Championship.

While the present titleholder, Francis Ouimet, other rulers of the past, and a bevy of Walker Cup stars from Great Britain and America were encountering trouble along the way, Johnny Fischer, 20-year-old junior from the University of Michigan, and recent winner of the intercollegiate championship, blazed home with a sensational 69, one below orthodox figures, and two strokes to the fore of his nearest rival, Jack Westland, of Chicago, 1931 finalist. The final eighteen-hole qualifying round will be played tomorrow.

Fischer, a long clouter off the tee, stroked the first nine in 34, dropping birdies on the third, seventh and eighth, and whipped through the homeward route in even par going to the seventeenth, the Fort Thomas youngster put together two beautiful shots and a fair-sized putt for a birdie three on the eighteenth, to render victory more complete. His 69 shattered the competitive record for the course by one stroke.

Westland, pounding away with the same brilliance that marked his play last year at Beverly Country Club, Chicago, battled Old Man Par for a 36 on the first nine, and came back

PARIS REPLY DENIES REICH ARMS APPEAL

France Points to Danger of Renewed Militarism; Treaty Stressed.

Paris, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—In reply to Germany's demand for equality in arms, France notified the Berlin government that by modifying her armaments Germany not only would violate the Treaty of Versailles but also would make it impossible to bring about eventual general disarmament.

The French reply, which totaled more than 2,000 words, was made public by the government tonight.

While refusing the German proposal in the form that it was made, France expressed the conviction it was possible "to work with Germany in seeking a new arrangement not for a return to the old procedure of preparation for war but by progress in the organization of peace."

The French doctrine was set forth thus: That efforts must be directed not toward the rearmament of particular countries but toward "general disarmament and the supervision of armaments."

The note set forth that France sees dangers to economic rehabilitation in "measures liable to cause, either sooner or later, a return to the armament race and a rebirth of militarism."

The French government emphasized that article 164 of the treaty of Versailles obligated Germany not to increase armaments unless authorized

TAKOMA PARK CLERK SHORTAGE CLAIMED

Report of Five-Year Audit of Bryan Davis' Books Is Laid Before Prescott.

Alleged shortage of nearly $13,000 in the accounts of Bryan Davis, former clerk and treasurer of Takoma Park, Md., was reported last night to the mayor and council by the firm of D. N. Burnham & Co., Washington auditors who were commissioned to audit the town's books for the last five years.

The report of the auditor was laid before State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, of Montgomery County, yesterday by E. Barrett Prettyman, who last night was appointed corporation counsel for the town. Mayor Frederick L. Lewton last night was given authority to enter civil action against Davis for the recovery of the allegedly unaccounted for funds.

The audit covers the period from July 1, 1927, to May 31, 1932, and shows an alleged shortage of $12,809.66 in Davis' accounts.

The unaccounted-for funds are as follows: Credits in general tax register not found in general tax day books; in other words, credits to taxpayers which were not entered in the day books, $2,365.80; erasures and underadditions in the general tax day books, $1,909.79; cash account reconciliation from June 1, 1932, to July 9, 1932, $61.76, a total of $4,337.35 in the general taxes.

Under special assessments, the auditors point out credits on cards in file

Gandhi to Starve Himself To Death Protesting Plan

British Decision to Allow Depressed Classes Separate Electorate Causes Imprisoned Nationalist Leader to Announce Fast Beginning Next Tuesday.

London, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi has determined to starve himself to death rather than accept the electoral representation system worked out for India by the British cabinet.

This was revealed tonight when the India office made public letters that have been exchanged by the mahatma, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for India. Gandhi intends to take no more food after midday September 20.

The particular part of the government's electoral scheme to which he objects is a provision for a modified form of separate electorate for India's "untouchables."

"I respectfully inform his majesty's government that in the event of their decision creating a separate electorate for the depressed classes, I must fast unto death," he said in one of his letters.

The mahatma apologized for any embarrassment he might cause the government, but said he would hold to his decision even if he were released from the prison where he has been kept for months as a result of the conflict between the government and India's Nationalists.

Official sources were unable to say what steps the government was taking to prevent the mahatma from killing himself by starvation. It is suggested that there is a faint possibility of the Indians agreeing among themselves on a solution of the electorate problem which would prove satisfactory to Mr. Gandhi.

Forcible feeding of the aged rebel was considered, but it was admitted that if the mahatma were determined on starving it would be most difficult to prevent him. Commentators said the mahatma probably would be released from prison when he started his death fast.

WATER SYSTEM IS DEFENDED BY 2 CIVIC GROUPS

Articles Carried in Post Columns Attacked in Silver Spring.

RATE IS DESCRIBED AS NOT EXCESSIVE

Needs of Section Declared Adequately and Safely Served by Systems.

A resolution defending Montgomery County's water supply was adopted by two civic bodies of the county yesterday. The resolution, first adopted by the Silver Spring Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon, was later amended slightly by the Civic Federation of the county and adopted by that body.

The resolution, condemning a series of articles on water conditions carried in the columns of The Post, was amended by the Civic Federation at its meeting last night to include a paragraph which said:

"Competent engineering advice to the federation is to the effect that an enlarged pumping station and greater reservoir facilities, to cost approximately $250,000, would eliminate the slight inconvenience of pressure and taste occasionally experienced during periods of drought."

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, who introduced the resolution, defended the county board and the water commission in presenting the resolution. "We do not have a perfect board or water system," he said, "but I do think that we have a competent and efficient system, and I do not think The Post was justified in taking this thing up and shaking it all over greater Washington."

Resolution Denounced.

Joseph B. Matre, representing the North Woodside Citizens Association, denounced the resolution as "false" and "backsliding."

"We all know that the water pressure has been low, and that the water has had a bad taste," Mr. Matre said, "so why not admit it and be thankful for efforts being made by The Post to help us remedy the matter."

H. S. Yohe, of Chevy Chase, launched a bitter attack on The Post's articles by branding them as "an unwarranted attack on real estate values in the county."

It was resolved by the federation that the county school board should reconsider its proposal to cut the salaries of school teachers. A resolution to that effect introduced by Robert Bond, chairman of the school committee, was unanimously adopted

Certification Won By "Ma" Ferguson

Texas Democratic Committee Finds She Led by 3,333 Votes.

Lubbock, Tex., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Texas Democratic executive committee tonight found Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson led Gov. R. S. Sterling in the run-off Democratic primary by 3,333 votes. The official figures were Mrs. Ferguson, 476,074; Sterling, 472,741.

The committee adopted the tabulation and certified the candidates to the State convention.

C. I. Francis, of Wichita Falls, a Sterling partisan, acquisced in the report, but said he believed there had been "gross irregularities" in the voting, and requested that the official returns be presented under seal.

The total from Guadalupe County was not included because there was doubt about the accuracy of the returns from that county.

Sterling charged transients taken from trains, residents of bordering States and Negroes assertedly unqualified to vote were allowed to stuff ballot boxes for the woman candidate, with the connivance of friendly officials. The governor declared if unlawful ballots were thrown out there would be a reversal of the count.

REICH TANGLED AFTER DECREE

Nonconfidence Voted, 513 to 32, Before Edict to Dissolve.

Berlin, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A defiant Reichstag overwhelmingly voted nonconfidence in the ministry of Chancellor Franz von Papen today and thereby precipitated a confusing situation unprecedented in German parliamentary history.

Just before the vote was taken the chancellor tried to forestall it by decreeing the dissolution of the legislature. He was thwarted by Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Reichstag speaker, and, as a member of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party, one of the bitterest enemies of the Von Papen regime.

After the members had expressed their lack of confidence in the ministry by a vote of 513 to 32, the Nazi speaker read the decree of dissolution, but he declared afterward it was invalid because it was signed by a defeated government. On the other hand, the ministry contended that the legislature was legally dissolved.

Von Papen Holds Army.

The courts must decide who is right. In the meantime the Von Papen ministry will continue to function.

Interior Minister Baron Wilhelm von Gayl announced that the government intended to call new elections within 60 days—the constitutionally specified time—and added that this plan would be carried out "unless serious disturbances of public order render elections inadvisable."

At the end of one of the most exciting days in recent German history

Brookhart Refuses To Admit He'll Run

Awaits Developments in Independent Boom by Iowa Friends.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, said yesterday he understood some of his friends in Iowa were considering him as an independent candidate for reelection, but he declined to say whether he would enter such a contest.

Brookhart, who was defeated for renomination by Henry Field in the Republican primary, said he had heard about activity by his friends when reports reached here that cards were being circulated in Iowa regarding a Brookhart independent candidacy.

"I understand my friends are doing something," said the Iowan, "but I am taking no part. I will have nothing to say until it comes to a head."

Brookhart can file as an independent candidate by petition. Action to put him in the race must be taken before September 29.

Ulbrich Planning to Start Flight to Rome Today

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—William Ulbrich, pilot of the Bellanca airplane "American Nurse," told officials at Floyd Bennett Airport today that he was ready to leave at daybreak tomorrow on a projected flight to Rome.

Ulbrich had been planning the flight for some time, but has been delayed by bad weather. Two other pilots, Roger Q. Williams and Otto Hillig, transatlantic fliers, may leave tomorrow for Athens, Greece.

HURLEY TURNS LEGION BOOES INTO APPLAUSE

Secretary Asks Veterans to Put Patriotism Above Politics.

TELLS PLAN TO END WAR PROFITEERING

Curley and Daniels Attack B. E. F. Eviction Before 5,000 in Portland.

Auditorium, Portland, Oreg., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Disregarding boos and shouts of "How about the bonus," Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley pleaded today with the American Legion for nonpartisanship and declared the legion must "put patriotism above politics."

The boos and shouts were mingled with the general applause that greeted the Secretary as he stepped to the platform shortly before conclusion of the opening session of the fourteenth national convention of the legion. Loud cheers went up from delegates and spectators as Hurley concluded his brief talk.

Earlier, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy under Wilson, was applauded loudly when he declared: "When in our need we ask for a deserved and just 'adjustment compensation,' we are denounced as selfish, unpatriotic lobbyists or Communists trying to tear down the temple of freedom or as raiders of the Treasury."

Mayor Curley Cheered.

The convention hall echoed with tremendous cheering as Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, concluded an impromptu speech with the declaration that some World War veterans who went to Washington, D. C., "to plead for that to which they were entitled were shot down like dogs in our National Capital."

Secretary Hurley concluded his speech with the plea:

"Let us live together, my comrades, in comradeship. Let us not let any political issues enter our organization.

"Remember that those of us who marched shoulder to shoulder in France did so not as Republicans and not as Democrats.

"Those men who met the enemy of our Nation on the battle fields

Mob of 300 Unemployed In Toledo Raids Grocery

Toledo, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Shouting for food, more than 300 members of the Lucas County Council of Unemployed, raided a downtown chain grocery here today. It was the group's first concerted demonstration of violence, although it had antagonized county and city authorities for several months.

The few police present when the rioters plundered the store were powerless. One woman who had grabbed a sack of flour slapped a patrolman's ears when he attempted to interfere.

FLYING FAMILY SEARCH FUTILE

Five Nations, by Sea, Air and Land, Hunt for Missing Plane.

Angmagsalik, Greenland, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—By land, sea and air, men of five nations carried on a disheartening search in this vicinity tonight for the American aviator, George R. Hutchinson, and his "flying family."

More than 24 hours had passed since last distress calls were heard from the Hutchinson plane, forced down in the sea while carrying eight persons, two of them children, on another stage of a leisurely flight across the Atlantic. The area from which the signals came has been crossed and recrossed by planes and ships.

The search was the more poignant because of the fear for the children—the two young daughters of Hutchinson. His wife, Peter Redpath, navigator; Gerald Altfilisch, radio operator; Joseph Ruff, mechanic, and Norman Alley, newsreel cameraman, were others in the plane.

Danes Spare No Effort.

Word came tonight from Copenhagen saying Prime Minister Theodore Stauning ordered that neither expense nor effort be spared by the Danish government in carrying on the search along the deeply indented coast studded with islands and made treacherous by icebergs.

Americans, Greenlanders, Norwegians, Danes, Germans and British cooperated in efforts that seemed futile to find a trace of the plane or

CITY HEADS JOIN STAND AGAINST CHIEF OF POLICE

Commissioners' Letter Is Cited by Department of Justice.

DISPUTE MAY FORCE RESIGNATION, IS VIEW

Davis Is Ordered to Explain "Lack of Loyalty" in B. E. F. Rout.

The accuracy of Attorney General William D. Mitchell's report to President Hoover on the bonus army riots of July 28 was challenged last night by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, who denied the Cabinet member's assertions that among the veterans were a large number of criminals and radicals.

His attack on the Attorney General's statements caused an immediate distribution of new contradictions. The Justice Department issued an announcement calling attention to a letter written by the District Commissioners, in which the request for troops is attributed to Gen. Glassford.

In the wake of this came a formal announcement from the District Commissioners that Gen. Glassford "stated positively that the presence of Federal troops was necessary." Then came a repetition by Gen. Glassford of his earlier denials that he asked military aid. This was corroborated by his personal secretary, Aldace Walker, who was present at the time when the Commissioner asserted the aid was asked.

May Be Asked to Resign.

Strong hints that Gen. Glassford will be asked to submit his resignation pervaded the District Building after the content of Gen. Glassford's statement became known. It is not thought by persons close to the chief of police that he would submit passively to any suggestion that he leave his post.

In an emphatic statement, the head of the police department brought himself into conflict with the Administration, the Department of Justice and the District Commissioners. Finally, he called upon one of his subordinates, Inspector O. T. Davis, for a report on his apparent "lack of loyalty," in reporting that he had orders to keep his men from the area occupied by the bonus marchers.

After Gen. Glassford issued his statement the District Commissioners came back with a rejoinder reiterating that troops had been called in "response to a direct question as to whether" they were needed. "Gen. Glassford stated positively the presence of troops was necessary," the statement said.

Categorical Denial.

Taking each point made by the Attorney General, Gen. Glassford denied there was a large number of criminals in the bonus army; declared there were comparatively few radicals in the ranks of the veterans; emphatically reiterated his previous denials

Body of Air Suicide Found By Farmer Near Annapolis

Discovered in Tall Grass and Weeds Not Far From Spot Pointed Out by Plane Pilot; Identification Made by Teacher's Clothing.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 12.—After Sheriff R. Glenn Prout and his deputies and many volunteers had searched woods, thickets and marshlands for nearly three weeks in vain, the body of Miss Marjorie Fletcher, 28-year-old school teacher of Forestville, N. Y., who leaped to her death from an airplane while on a sightseeing expedition from Washington to Annapolis on August 23 was found by Henry F. Moreland on his farm near Camp Parole, 2 miles from here, at 5:30 p. m. today.

Mr. Moreland was engaged in topping tobacco when he observed an object in tall grass and weeds nearby. Investigating, he found it to be a human skeleton, clad in woman's garments.

County authorities were notified and Police Justice John W. Anderson, acting coroner, went to the scene, in company with Funeral Director John M. Taylor. Identified by the clothing which Miss Fletcher wore when she entered the plane—a summer suit of blue and white—Coroner Anderson directed removal of the remains to the undertaking establishment of Mr. Taylor, to await word from relatives as to its disposition.

The body lay practically in the open. It was in an advanced state of decomposition, a mass of crumpled bones. Her hat and a slipper from one foot were missing.

The spot where the body was found is 2 miles west of Annapolis, the general direction but a mile less in distance to the estimate given by Roger Scott, pilot of the plane which left the Hoover Airport in Washington with Miss Fletcher, about noon on August 23. The lay of the land, however, tallied with the description first given by Scott as to approximately

POLICE INSPECTOR'S REPLY IS DUE TODAY

Detectives Were Detailed to Camp Marks on Day of Bonus Army Riot.

Inspector O. T. Davis, head of the Crime Prevention Bureau, today will reply to Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford's demand that he explain his apparent "lack of loyalty" in reporting to Federal authorities that he had orders to keep his men out of the bonus army encampments.

In his reply to Attorney General Mitchell's report on the bonus riots, the superintendent of police said: "No orders were issued to the inspector in charge of the Crime Prevention Bureau * * * which prohibited plain clothes officers from obtaining and reporting information."

Although Inspector Davis said he had instructions to keep his men out of the area, two of the men in his bureau, J. K. Baker and J. Auffenberg, were detailed at Camp Marks from 7 a. m. until noon on the day of the riots. They were detailed there by Lieut. Thomas Nally, aid to Inspector Davis.

Implied criticism of the Police Department was included in the Attorney General's report, which said:

"The results of this effort to bring to justice the principals who incited this riot have been unsatisfactory. The reason is that on the day of the riot (July 28) no detective officers were at Camp Marks (Anacostia flats), where originated the large movement of march over and attack the police. The function of having detectives and crime preventive agents in a position to observe and obtain evidence against those who at the last moment incited the riotous march and attack, belonged to the District police. The inspector in charge of that branch of the police service reports that he had no orders to place men for that purpose, and, on the contrary, on the day of the disturbance was directed to keep his men out of the area."

Gen. Glassford's Version.

The facts are as follows, Gen. Glassford declared: "Camp Marks was within the Eleventh Precinct. Officers from this precinct circulated in the camp continuously. In addition to the police officers from the Eleventh Precinct, two plain-clothes men from the crime prevention division (J. Auffenberg J. K. Baker) were detailed to this camp on the morning of July 28. They remained at Camp Marks from early morning until the veterans suddenly started their movement to the Pennsylvania avenue area about 11 a. m. No orders were issued to the inspector in charge of the crime prevention division nor to any other inspector, which prohibited plain-clothes officers from pursuing their normal functions of obtaining and reporting information. In order to avoid unnecessary provocation or confusion, orders were issued requiring that the eviction of veterans and the quelling of any disturbance which might result, should be accomplished by uniformed policemen only."

Detective Auffenberg said last night he was detailed to Camp Marks by Lieut. Nally. Along with Detective Baker he remained until the movement of the veterans from Anacostia to the riot scenes began, and then they left.

Lieut. Nally did not recall whether Inspector Davis had given him the order to send the men to the area, but, he added, Inspector Davis directs the movements of the men.

Glassford's Sharp Note.

Gen. Glassford directed the following memorandum to Inspector Davis:

"Are you the police inspector referred to in the Attorney General's report?

"If so, to whom did you make the statements referred to in that report?

"What was the occasion for making those statements?

"What was the substance of the statements?

"Why was this apparent lack of loyalty to your superior not reported to the major and superintendent?"

When rumors were abroad soon after the eviction of the bonus army that Gen. Glassford's days as chief of police were limited, Inspector Davis ran into similar difficulties with his superior.

He rounded up a group of alleged Reds. When called upon to explain his actions, he fell back upon an order issued by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, former chief of police, to "cooperate" with immigration officials. Inspector Davis is friendly with high labor officials. The rumors of Gen. Glassford's retirement at that time proved groundless.

If Gen. Glassford cares to take action against Inspector Davis, he may prefer charges against him, or relieve him of command of the Crime Prevention Bureau, or reprimand him. Under the police regulations, Inspector Davis need not accept a reprimand. He may choose to face trial before the Police Board if he elects.

Many Utah U. Students Plan Own Housekeeping

Salt Lake City, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Domestic science is likely to occupy the attention of many students at the University of Utah this fall, both men and women, although not in class room.

Officials said today a survey had revealed entrants from rural sections plan to have foodstuffs from their homes sent to them during the school year for preparation in housekeeping rooms and apartments. Westminster College, Presbyterian Church school here, has announced farm produce will be accepted in payment of tuition.

500 Attend D. of A. 36th State Parley

Mrs. Mabel G. Downing Delivers Address of Welcome.

Five hundred persons attended the opening meeting of the thirty-sixth annual State session of the Daughters of America, held in the Italian garden of the Mayflower Hotel, yesterday morning.

Invocation was delivered by Dr. C. L. Dawson, of the First Methodist Protestant Church, followed by an address of welcome by Mrs. Mabel G. Downing, State councilor of the District of Columbia. Mrs. Downing presented the council with two large American flags.

The afternoon session was opened with a memorial service by the Star-Spangled Banner Council, No. 7, in memory of departed members during the past year. A goodfellowship banquet last night, followed by a dance, culminated the first day of the convention. This morning's session will open at 10 o'clock.

Text of Glassford's Statement Denying Allegation Of Mitchell Many of Bonus Army Were Criminals

The text of Brig. Gen. Glassford's statement on Attorney General Mitchell's report of the bonus army eviction follows:

I have had repeated requests from the press to comment upon the report of Attorney General William D. Mitchell which appeared in the morning papers of September 12. I do not believe it would be properly justifiable for me to comment upon any statements contained in the report except those which relate to the police. I find in the report a number of assertions affecting the police which are in conflict with police records or with facts known to the Police Department.

Attorney General Mitchell states: "It is probable the bonus army brought into the City of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at any one time." According to police records and statistics there was less crime in the District of Columbia during either June or July than during the month of August after the veterans had been evicted. The report does not show that of the 362 arrests made during the two months of the so-called bonus invasion only twelve arrests of bonus marchers were made for offenses of a criminal nature. Record of arrests is attached as Exhibit No. 1.

The report stresses communism, crime and subversive influences. There are of record many demonstrations of patriotism and discipline by the great mass of the unemployed veterans. For instance, a Washington newspaper (Star, of June 18) comments editorially as follows:

"In the manner of their acceptance of the defeat of the bonus bill, administered with such decisive finality by a heavy coalition majority of the Senate yesterday, the veterans who besieged the Capital in a dramatic show of strength won a great victory. Their victory was one that results from good discipline, and good discipline is only possible among good soldiers. There was a deep murmur that grew as it spread through the ranks after announcement of the vote from the steps of the Capitol. But a moment later heads were bared and the soldiers sang 'America.' Within a few minutes the straggling columns were moving from the Capitol grounds, back to camp across the river. Nothing quite like it has ever happened in America. These men wrote a new chapter on patriotism of which their countrymen may well be proud."

Glassford's Version Of Radical Elements.

And now to call attention to the more important statements in the report which are in conflict with police records:

1. The report says: "One of the bonus camps, that within Twelfth and Fourteenth and B and C streets southwest, was occupied principally by Communists headed by (John T.) Pace." Police records show there were nine separate units billeted in these four square blocks numbering by police count 824 individuals on July 26. Of these units, only one, comprising approximately 150 men, was associated with the Soldiers' Ex-Service Men's League, a radical organization. This unit was located at 210 Thirteenth street southwest.

2. The report says: "There is irrefutable proof that a very large body of Communists and radicals, some former service men and some not, were in the city as part of the bonus army, circulating among them and working diligently to incite them to disorder. The facts are that Communists and their ignorant followers were relatively few. Following two days of circularized propaganda, John T. Pace mustered on July 21 a group of not more than 210 (by police count while in formation) for the purpose of attempting to picket the White House. This was the largest group of radicals gathered together at any one time. The attempts of the Communists and radicals to circulate and incite disorder in the loyal camps were completely frustrated by the veterans' military police, an organization sponsored by the Police Department mainly for that purpose.

Police Head Corroborated By Personal Secretary.

3. The report says: "In response to questions by the District Commissioners he (Maj. Glassford) stated that the situation was out of his control and that the police could not longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative." The facts are as follows: At a conference held at the Commissioners' office within half an hour after the brick battle I stated that the police could hold the area which had been repossessed during the morning. I stated that if further efforts toward evicting the veterans by the police was insisted upon that afternoon there doubtless would be more rioting and possible bloodshed. I recommended that should further evicting be required that day the Federal troops should be called upon to do it. Nothing was said by the Commissioners at this conference to indicate they had reached a decision to call for Federal aid. My statement above is substantiated by a certificate of my personal secretary, Mr. Aldace Walker, quoted as follows:

"After Maj. Glassford had quelled the first riot and had 'declared that the evacuation would cease until after lunch,' I accompanied him from the Pennsylvania avenue area to the District Building. On the way up in the police car I suggested to Maj. Glassford that he take one of two courses, either to request that an extension of time be given in the evacuation program or for him to ask the Commissioners to call on the Federal Government for aid. He expressed strong opposition to calling for Federal aid. Both Commissioners asked Maj. Glassford if the police had lost control of the situation. The major replied that the situation was not out of control of the police. He explained fully just what had happened and then maintained that the area which was roped off could be held if he were not required to extend this area. The Commissioners then told the major to hold what he had. The conference ended and Maj. Glassford and I returned to the area on Pennsylvania avenue.

Glassford Not Informed Of Troop Movement.

"Although the subject of requesting Federal aid was discussed at this conference there was no manifestation on the part of the Commissioners of calling upon the President for the use of troops."

Within half an hour after the conference at the District Building, Commissioners Reichelderfer and Crosby appeared at the disaffected area. I left a group of veterans which included Commander W. W. Waters and other veteran leaders to tell the Commissioners that all was quiet and that plans were being formulated to get all the veterans visiting in the area to return to their own camps. Nothing was said by the Commissioners at this time to indicate they had reached a decision to call for Federal aid.

It was not until more than an hour later that I had any intimation that the troops had been called out. The information came to me first from a newspaper reporter, and was confirmed officially a few minutes later by a message from Attorney General Mitchell transmitted verbally by Mr. Nugent Dodds of his office. I was in command at the scene of a difficult situation which was vitally affected by the call for Federal troops. I have never been informed why the Commissioners did not notify me instantly when the troops were called.

4. The report says: "Finally the mob of bonus marchers again attacked the police with bricks, lumps of concrete and iron bars. Two of the bonus marchers were shot by police who had been set upon and were in danger of their lives. The entire mob became hostile and riotous. It was apparent that a pitched battle on a large scale might start at any moment. Practically the entire police force of the city were called from their posts and assembled at this point." The facts are as follows: This second attack occurred about 1:45 p. m., more than an hour and a half after the brick battle. It was a short spontaneous affair involving seven police officers who were isolated from the main body of police holding the repossessed area, which was in the same block but on the other side of three large buildings.

450 of 1,300 Policemen In Disaffected Area.

It is true that there was a certain amount of hostility but a very large proportion of the unemployed remained loyal to law and order. Without this mass of loyal men it would not have been possible for me to have stopped the brick battle before it had been in progress five minutes, nor to have stopped the second outbreak in which two veterans were shot, almost as soon as it had commenced.

There was no trouble of any kind between 2 p. m. and the time the troops arrived, which was after 5.

The Metropolitan police force numbers more than 1,300 officers. There were at no time more than 450 in the disaffected area.

5. The report says: "The results of this effort to bring to justice the principals who incited this riot have been unsatisfactory. The reason is that on the day of the riot (July 28) no detective officers were at Camp Marks (Anacostia flats), where originated the large movement to march over and attack the police. The function of having detectives and crime prevention agents in a position to observe and obtain evidence against those who at the last moment incited the riotous march and attack, belonged to the District police. The inspector in charge of that branch of the police service reports that he had no orders to place men for that purpose, and, on the contrary, on the day of the disturbance was directed to keep his men out of the area." The facts are as follows: Camp Marks was within the Eleventh Precinct. Officers from this precinct circulated in the camp continuously. In addition to the police officers from the Eleventh Precinct, two plain-clothes men from the Crime Prevention Division (J.Auffenberg and J. K. Baker) were detailed to this camp on the morning of July 28. They remained at Camp Marks from early morning until the veterans suddenly started their movement to the Pennsylvania avenue area about 11 a. m. No orders were issued to the inspector in charge of the Crime Prevention Division, nor to any other inspector, which prohibited plain-clothes officers from pursuing their normal functions of obtaining and reporting information. In order to avoid unnecessary provocation or confusion, orders were issued requiring that the eviction of veterans and the quelling of any disturbance which might result, should be accomplished by uniformed policemen only.

Commendation Expressed For Police Work in Case.

It is not necessary to defend in the statement the policies followed unswervingly by the Police Department in preserving law and order for a period of two months—policies of humanity and of respect for the rights of citizens under the laws and the Constitution. Hundreds of commendations have been received from people and organizations all over the country and from people of all walks of life.

The influx of thousands of unemployed veterans could not have been prevented. No other agency being willing to accept responsibility, the police of Washington in conformity to the traditions of unselfish devotion to human distress, with the cooperations of thousands of sympathetic citizens, did everything possible and within reason to obtain for these destitute and homeless people, food, shelter and other essentials.

It is a matter of gratification to the Police Department, that as long as it remained unhampered in the application of the policies adopted, no disorders of any consequence occurred except by the radicals of a small group, whose efforts were easily thwarted by police action and police strategy.

The following tabulation shows number of bonus army men arrested prior to July 28, 1932; also those arrested on the 28th and 29th days of July, 1932. Actual criminal offenses are marked with an asterik.

Justice Department Reply To Glassford's Statement

The following is the text in full of the statement issued by the Justice Department, including the letter from the District of Columbia Commissioners:

The attention of the department has been called to a statement of Maj. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia, released for publication Tuesday, September 13, 1932. Maj. Glassford questions the following statement of the Attorney General in his report to the President regarding the so-called "bonus riots" of July 28 last:

"In response to questions by the District Commissioners he (Maj. Glassford) stated that the situation was out of his control and that the police could not longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative."

Letter of Commissioner Reichelderfer Quoted.

In this connection, attention is called to a letter directed to the Attorney General by the president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, under date of August 2, a few days after the riots occurred:

"August 2, 1932.

"The Honorable the Attorney General of the United States—Sir:

"In response to your letter of the 1st instant regarding the inquiry into the recent disorders in the District, we have the honor to advise you as follows:

"About 12:30 p. m., on Thursday, July 28, 1932, Lieut. Ira E. Keck, of the Metropolitan Police force, an aid to Gen. Crosby, reported to the Commissioners that a most serious condition existed in the area in which the Treasury Department was endeavoring to recover possession of its property. A short time before a riot had occurred in which the police had been assailed with bricks, clubs, iron bars, pieces of concrete and similar articles. Several thousand bonus marchers were on their way from other camps and two truckloads had already arrived upon the scene.

"Lieut. Keck stated to the Commissioners that in his opinion, and in the opinion of Inspectors Brown and Edwards, assistant superintendents of the Police Department, who were present in the troubled area, and with whom Lieut. Keck had talked, the situation was beyond the control of the police and that bloodshed could only be averted by the presence of Federal troops. The Commissioners then stated that before calling for military aid they desired the opinion of Maj. Glassford, the chief of police. Lieut. Keck returned to the scene of action and communicated the wishes of the Commissioners to Maj. Glassford, who stated, 'Since Waters (meaning the commander of the bonus marchers) has lost control of his own men the police can not control the situation any longer.' Maj. Glassford accompanied Lieut. Keck to the office of the Commissioners, arriving about 1 o'clock p. m. The former was asked by the Commissioners if the situation was out of his control, to which he replied in the affirmative, and was supported in this statement by a Mr. Walker, who was with him. Maj. Glassford further stated in substance that the police could no longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was then asked a direct question whether he thought it necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied he did.

"The Commissioners at once notified the chief of staff of the United States Army that undoubtedly the assistance of troops would be necessary, and a request was made that they stand by. Commissioners Reichelderfer and Crosby then visited the area where the seriousness of the condition was apparent. After they returned to the District Building it was reported to them by Lieut. Keck that rioting had broken out anew and a bonus marcher had been killed. Thereupon the Commissioners dispatched a communication to the President of the United States requesting the assistance of Federal troops to preserve law and order in the District of Columbia. From this time until the troops arrived upon the scene of disorder the situation steadily grew worse, with a constant increase in the number of bonus marchers in the affected area.

"We might add that, since about 1 o'clock p. m. of that day, every available man on the police force, whether on or off duty, had been ordered to and was present at the scene of disorder, leaving the remainder of the District without police protection, except a few scout cars. No men remained to act as reinforcements or to relieve those on duty, many of whom had no rest since midnight of the preceding day. Threats were being made by the bonus marchers of serious violence when darkness fell. It is the opinion of Inspectors Brown, Edwards, Bean and Davis, as well as of the Commissioners, that had the arrival of troops been delayed, further bloodshed and death could not have been averted.

"If additional information is desired, we shall be glad to furnish it.

"Respectfully yours,

"L. H. REICHELDERFER.

"President, Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia."

No doubt the Commissioners will confirm the accuracy of the statements contained in this letter. They are also confirmed by written statements in the possession of the department, made a few days after the riots by responsible police officials who were acting with Maj. Glassford during the course of the riots on July 28.

Glassford Asked Army, Commissioners Assert

The statement by the District Commissioners, issued last night, regarding Gen. Glassford's assertions, follows:

With reference to the statements appearing in the press and purporting to be made by the chief of police concerning the presence of troops on July 28, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia assert positively that Maj. Glassford stated to them the situation in the affected area was beyond the control of the police; that in response to a direct question as to whether the presence of troops was necessary, Maj. Glassford stated positively that the presence of troops was necessary.

Two of the Commissioners then visited the scene of the disturbance and likewise were convinced that the presence of troops was necessary if law and order were to be restored and preserved. They thereupon asked that troops be sent to the affected area. Inspectors of police who were at the scene were likewise of the same opinion. The Commissioners believe that the presence of troops alone prevented more serious bloodshed and far greater disorder.

They call attention to the statement of fact which they made to the Attorney General, dated August 2, and which has been released by the Department of Justice.

Federal Employes Plan Law Program

Legislative Group of Federation Puts Repeal of Economy Act First.

The legislative committee of the District department of the American Federation of Government Employes held its first meeting last night at 1726 Pennsylvania avenue northwest at which plans were made for the formulation of a legislative program to be presented to the national convention of the organization next month.

The chief features of the American Federation's legislative aims on which its program will be based are: Repeal of the economy act, an equitable classification for the departmental service and the field and 30 years' optional retirement. Miss Ethel M. Smith is chairman of the legislative committee.

An organization meeting of War Department Lodge, No. 16, was held last night. The following committees were chosen: Constitutional, Victor V. Martin, chairman; Catherine Vogenitz and Benjamin J. U.S. TO PARTICIPATE IN LIBERIAN PARLEY

Stimson Is Not Optimistic of Better Conditions Until Colored Nation Helps.

(Associated Press.)

The United States will participate in discussions of the international committee on Liberia next Monday, but correspondence of Secretary Stimson made public by the State Department yesterday indicated this Government has little hope of bettering conditions in Liberia until the government of that country agrees to delegate full authority to foreign advisers to carry out social and economic reforms.

Samuel Reber, jr., former American charge d'affaires at Monrovia, will represent the American Government at the September meeting of the committee in Geneva. The group is endeavoring to work out plans to eliminate slavery and forced labor in Liberia and to put the Negro republic on a sound financial footing.

Secretary Stimson's views concerning Liberia's unhappy condition are set forth in a letter he wrote September 9 to Chairman E. H. Colt, of the Foreign Missionary Board of the American Methodist Church.

The Secretary said: "In the circumstances the American Government is unable to subscribe to the view that the present administration in Liberia has cooperated in the establishment of reform measures, or that it has done other than obstruct and delay the adoption of a workable program destined, under the appropriate international guarantees, to lead to the rehabilitation of the country. A further meeting of the international committee on Liberia will be held in Geneva in the near future, at which time it is hoped that more substantial progress shall be made. I should like, however, to emphasize that in the opinion of this Government the achievement of tangible results will depend almost entirely on the attitude of Liberia."

A memorandum Secretary Stimson wrote August 25, 1932, copies of which went to Liberia and the European powers which are participating in the international committee, also was made public. In this document he also expressed dissatisfaction with the lack of cooperation of Liberia and said he felt no plan prepared by foreigners can succeed unless Liberia changes its attitude.

GLASSFORD DENIES MITCHELL CHARGES

Asserts B. E. F. Was Not Haven for Many Criminals, as Alleged.

that he had asked for Federal troops, and concluded with a defense of the police department which "followed policies of humanity and of respect for the rights of citizens under the laws and the Constitution."

Back from his vacation, Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby found the ringing statement of Gen. Glassford the first order of business to be considered.

Silent on Resignation.

"Do you plan to ask for Gen. Glassford's resignation?" he was asked.

"I have no comment to make."

"Would you comment on Attorney General Mitchell's statement that Gen. Glassford, when asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, replied in the affirmative?"

"When we sent the letter to the President asking for Federal troops Gen. Glassford contradicted what was said in the letter. Gen. Glassford says one thing. We say another. There the matter stands."

"Would you comment further on the Attorney General's report?"

"I don't comment on Federal reports."

"Do you consider Gen. Glassford's statement on the report of the Attorney General as an act of insubordination?"

"I have no comment to make."

"Do you plan to consult Gen. Glassford with regard to his statement?"

"I consult with him frequently."

"Will you consult with him with regard to his action in issuing this statement?"

"I probably will."

Crosby-Glassford Breach.

That relations between Commissioner Crosby and Gen. Glassford have been strained for several months has been known by those well-informed in police circles. Gen. Glassford's refusal to forcibly evict the bonus army without a written order from Commissioner Crosby served to widen the breach. At one time Commissioner Crosby made a threat of peremptory dismissal unless steps were taken by Gen. Glassford against the occupation of the Capital by the army.

At that time Gen. Glassford stated that he would not resign while under fire. "I would consider it an act of cowardice," he said, and since then he has repeated that declaration many times.

Commissioner Crosby declared that any statement as to the declarations of Gen. Glassford would be issued today, if any is issued.

Challenging the Attorney General's assertion that the bonus army brought into Washington "the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at any one time," Gen. Glassford declared there was "less crime in the District of Columbia during either June or July than during August, after the veterans had been evicted." Of 362 arrests made during the occupation of the city only 12 arrests were for offenses of a criminal nature, he said.

Largest Red Group 210.

In the area bounded by Twelfth and Fourteenth, B and C streets southwest, which the Attorney General's report said "was occupied principally by Communists," the police records show there were 824 men billeted, of which only one group, comprising about 150 men, was a radical organization, Gen. Glassford averred.

"The largest group of radicals gathered together at any one time," Gen. Glassford said, "was 210 mustered by John T. Pace, a Detroit Communist, for the purpose of picketing the White House. The attempt of the Communists and radicals to circulate and incite disorder in the loyal camps was completely frustrated by the veterans' police."

The Attorney General's report said: "In response to questions by the District Commissioners he (Maj. Glassford) stated that the situation was out of his control and that the police could not longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative."

Glassford's Direct Denial.

Opposed to this, Gen. Glassford said:

"The facts are as follows! At a conference held at the Commissioners' office within half an hour after the brick battle, I stated that the police could hold the area which had been repossessed during the morning. I stated that if further efforts toward evicting the veterans by the police was insisted upon that afternoon, there doubtless would be more rioting and possible bloodshed. I recommended that should further evicting be required that day, the Federal troops should be called upon to do it. Nothing was said by the Commissioners at this conference to indicate they had reached a decision to call for Federal aid. My statement above is substantiated by a certificate of my personal secretary, Mr. Aldace Walker.

"Within half an hour after the conference at the District Building, Commissioners Reichelderfer and Crosby appeared at the disaffected area. I left a group of veterans which included Commander W. W. Waters and other veteran leaders to tell the Commissioners that all was quiet and that plans were being formulated to get all the veterans visiting in this area to return to their own camps. Nothing was said by the Commissioners at this time to indicate they had reached a decision to call for Federal aid.

"It was not until more than an hour later that I had any intimation that the troops had been called out. The information came to me first from a newspaper reporter and was confirmed officially a few minutes later by a message from Attorney General Mitchell transmitted verbally by Mr. Nugent Dodds, of his office. I was in command at the scene of a difficult situation which was vitally affected by the call for Federal troops. I have never been informed why the Commissioners did not notify me instantly when the troops were called."

The chief of police also separated the brick battle and the shooting of two of the marchers, as two distinct incidents, with more than an hour and a half intervening. The Attorney General's report did not isolate them.

"It is true," said Gen. Glassford, "that there was a certain amount of hostility, but a very large proportion of the unemployed veterans remained loyal to law and order.

"There was no trouble of any kind between 2 p. m. and the time the troops arrived, which was after 5."

At no time, he said, were there more than 450 policemen in the disaffected area.

Mitchell Returns to Attack.

He denied Attorney General Mitchell's statement that there were no detectives in Camp Marks, the big encampment on the Anacostia flats. The Attorney General had said responsibility for this lay with the police and that this was the reason for the unsatisfactory efforts to "bring to justice the principals who incited this riot."

The Department of Justice last night issued a statement saying Gen. Glassford told the Commissioners that Federal troops should be called out. A letter written by the District Commissioners to the Justice Department and signed by Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer said:

"Maj. Glassford further stated in substance that the police could no longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was then asked a direct question whether he thought it necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative."

ORNDORFF'S TRIAL UNDER WAY TODAY

Selection of Jury Expected to Require All Day; 75 Witnesses Called.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 12.—Indications were today that it would take all of tomorrow if not longer to get a jury for the trial of Kermit Orndorff, Star Tannery mountaineer laborer, who is charged with first degree murder in connection with the disappearance of his 22-year-old wife, Mrs. Frances Nicholas Orndorff, last December 29 and the subsequent finding of her dismembered body in a mountain grave early in July. The trial opens in circuit court here tomorrow morning, with Judge Philip Williams presiding.

The intense feeling in the case among Frederick County's 25,000 population and the existence among many citizens of a strong feeling against capital punishment are believed by many to be factors which may cause the examination of hundreds of jurymen before the necessary panel of twenty men is obtained. Forty veniremen have been summoned for jury duty by Sheriff Pannett and observers believe that additional panels will be summoned soon after court is convened. After twenty men are selected for jury duty, the State and defense are allowed to strike off four men each, leaving twelve men to hear the case. Women are not summoned for juries in Virginia.

Thousands Are Expected.

Thousands are expected for the trial, but under no conditions, it is reported, will persons be allowed to stand in the courtroom.

Of interest on the eve of the opening of the trial is whether Commonwealth Attorney Burr P. Harrison will present to the court an alleged "statement" by Orndorff concerning his wife's death which was said to have been made by the defendant some weeks ago, after asking the prosecutor to come to his cell at the local jail. The nature of the "statement" is held a secret and Attorney Harrison today was noncommittal as to the effect of such a "statement" on the procedure of the case.

McIlwee Also Indicted.

Orndorff's friend, Wayne ("Pete") McIlwee, is indicted also for first-degree murder and may face trial jointly with Orndorff in the death of Mrs. Orndorff, although it was definitely stated today that the matter would not be decided until court convenes tomorrow.

Seventy-five witnesses have been summoned for the trial. In addition to its witnesses, the State is expected to introduce the dismembered body of Mrs. Orndorff as proof that the crime was committed. Her alleged body was found in a mountainside grave. It was brought to Winchester and preserved in alcohol by undertakers for the trial. Only the skull bones, torso, hands, a foot and leg were found, but in addition several items of woman's clothing were found in the grave, all of which were bloodstained.

A copy of Shakespeare, with prized marginal notes in the handwriting of the elder Oliver Wendell Holmes, has been presented to the Folger Shakespeare Memorial Library by his famous son of the same name.

The venerable retired justice of the United States Supreme Court himself carried to the building the volume, liberally annotated by his father, the noted physician, essayist and poet who wrote "The One-Hoss Shay."

The jurist, at the request of the library director, wrote on the flyleaf:

"This book belonged to my father and is the only copy of Shakespeare that I remember in our home during my boyhood."

ROOSEVELT LEAVES ON LONG TRIP WEST

Will Cross 21 States Before Return to Albany; Has Seven-Car Train.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt embarked at 11 p. m (Eastern standard time), tonight on an 8,900-mile campaign which will carry him through 21 States

The governor and his party boarded the seven-car special shortly before its departure, Mr. Roosevelt saying he was going to go to bed and get "a good night's sleep."

Only a small crowd was at the station. For Albany, on daylight-saving time, the hour was midnight.

Before he left, Mr. Roosevelt saw reports of the progress of the Maine elections. He had no comment.

Before he returns to his native State of New York on October 3 he will have seen and been seen by voters of nineteen States, stretching westward to the Pacific Ocean, northward to the Canadian line and south to Mexico.

Word was received here today that Mr. Roosevelt's running mate, Speaker John N. Garner, will join him at Kansas City Wednesday morning and go with him to Topeka, Kans., where the presidential nominee will deliver his first speech.

Mr. Roosevelt has scheduled stops in seventeen States. These States, all except three of which lie west of the Mississippi River, have a combined electoral vote of 151 or more than half of the 266 needed to elect a President. The candidate will cross—but does not have scheduled stops, except to change engines—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

The New York Governor twelve years ago campaigned in all the Western States as the vice presidential nominee. Former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio was the presidential candidate that year.

Operating stops will be made tomorrow at Cleveland, Indianapolis and St. Louis, with the first scheduled pause at Jefferson City, the Missouri capital, tomorrow night. The Democratic State convention, in session there, will send its delegates to the train to greet the nominee. Mr. Roosevelt's first speech—on the farm condition—will be delivered at Topeka, Kans., on Wednesday.

Federal Bar Dinner Tonight.

The executive council of the Federal Bar Association will hold a dinner and meeting at 7 o'clock tonight at the University Club. Plans for participation in the meeting of the American Bar Association, to be held here October 12 to 15, will be discussed.

HURLEY CHEERED AND BOOED BY VETERANS AT PORTLAND

were neither Democrats nor Republicans; they were greater than either. They were Americans."

A great din of applause echoed through the auditorium into which more than 5,000 persons were crowded.

"What we need today, my comrades, are Americans who are big enough to put patriotism above politics," Secretary Hurley said, "and I have come to you today not as a public official, but as your comrade, as a Legionnaire, and I am delighted by the splendid reception you have given me. I had not intended to make a speech to you. I came here merely to greet you."

He stated a commission authorized by Congress and over which he recently presided as chairman has prepared a plan "in order to bring about an equality of the distribution of the economic responsibility for war."

"This plan," he said, "in my opinion is that which as Legionnaires we have contended for ever since the Great War. That plan, comrades, will be presented to you. It does provide for the prevention of profiteering in war; it does provide for equal distribution of the burdens of war."

"I hope that when that plan is presented to you it may have your approval."

Officials Are Silent.

National officers of the legion declined comment on the possible outcome should a resolution condemning the administration in the bonus army affair come before the convention.

At least one State department, Pennsylvania, has placed such a resolution on file, condemning eviction of the bonus forces and declaring: "The President of the United States * * * handled the whole situation in a regrettable manner, which contributed to this incident."

National Commander Henry L. Stevens, jr., of North Carolina, has reiterated that a full and free discussion of every matter confronting the legion will be had on the floor of the convention.

With preliminaries concluded in a brilliant, kaleidoscopic spectacle, the legion placed behind it the opening routine, leaving Wednesday's business session clear for vital action of the convention. No session will be held tomorrow, the day of the legion's greatest show, the annual parade.

Tribute Paid Veterans.

Swiftly and smoothly the convention moved today, as prominent men of the Nation paid a tribute to Americanism and the veterans. Applause was generous and vigorous. Commander Stevens introduced each distinguished guest in the best manner of the South.

Henry L. Stevens 3d, small son of the national commander, attired in a smartly tailored blue and gold legion uniform, wielded the gavel that called the convention to order. On Thursday his father will step down, being succeeded by one of the dozen or more candidates now in the field. Selection of a national commander will be more difficult than it has been in years, officials say, and many ballots are expected.

Mayor Curley's remarks created much comment among delegates and was remarked upon nearly as much as was Secretary Hurley's appearance.

The Boston Mayor was seated among distinguished guests on the speakers' platform when Commander Stevens called upon him for a greeting. He did not elaborate on his remark on the bonus army eviction. Commander Stevens made not the slightest reference to it.

It was predicted the 1933 convention would be held at Chicago, while Miami, Fla., is making a bid for the 1934 session. St. Louis is presenting its preliminary request for the 1935 gathering.

Jess W. Barrett, commander of the Missouri department, declared the chances of St. Louis for the 1935 convention were excellent. Incident with the desire to entertain the legionnaires, Barrett said the St. Louis memorial plaza will be completed by that year.

Explaining a modern "Missouri compromise" plan for bonus legislation, Barrett said his department was urging the payment of the bonus when consistent with the Nation's financial security. He added further that the national legion constitution implied the demand for payment must be along those lines.

Mayors or other representatives of cities which have been host to previous legion conventions were called to the platform to be presented with medallions by the legion.

The Rev. H. A. Darch, national chaplain, conducted memorial services for the war dead. The legionnaires stood in tribute as Mrs. Gladys Brumbaugh, official soloist, sang "There Is No Death," and after a moment of silent prayer by the delegates the flags were retired and the convention adjourned.

Pennsylvania Resolution.

The Pennsylvania bonus resolution, which is identical with one adopted by the department convention in Pittsburgh, reads in part as follows:

"In the glorious month of July, 1918, American soldiers turned back the enemy from the gates of Paris, driving him farther and farther until he sued for peace; turned a dark prospect of defeat into a brilliant noonday of victory, as a convincing proof, laid at the feet of the immortal Lincoln, that 'government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth.'

"Fourteen years later, on the 28th day of July, in our own City of Washington, we witnessed a spectacle, alien to the pages of our history—when Federal troops, moving under orders of the President of the United States, attacktd and drove from the Capital City these selfsame war veterans who such a short time before had saved this Nation in its hour of need.

"The American Legion is perfectly aware of the official explanations offered in justification of this act. For we had been watching with keen interest this most novel method used by war veterans under the constitutional right of peaceable assembly and petition.

Reception Is Criticized.

"We are equally aware that such methods are not to be encouraged.

"These war veterans marched into Washington, exhibiting their deplorable condition—hoping a tiresome and inept Congress would hear their appeal. Regardless of the technicalities of law and police regulations they should have received at the hands of the fathers of the Government a becoming sympathy and leadership—in order that they, hungry and homeless though they were, might have been inspired after the Congress had abandoned them to do their duty—to go home, to go back to their friends, to cease annoying the President and the good people of Washington.

"That they did receive such sympathy and leadership from that able soldier, Gen. Glassford—and we have out of the mouths of veterans themselves the evidence of his kindly influence and their respect for his proper authority—is to his everlasting credit.

"And when it came the time that he had to enforce the Government's orders he went about his task manfully and unafraid. But in the midst of his own police operation he had his authority struck from his hands by the appearance of sabers, gas bombs, fire brands, bayonets and tanks. An awesome spectacle this display of force, commanded by the very head of the Army himself. Resplendent in his hastily donned uniform—only less impressive than had he donned gold braid.

Called Comic Opera.

"This comic opera spectacle of generals (commanding battalions was a revealing thing to us old soldiers and relieved an otherwise deadly occasion.

"The military operation must have been planned in advance with a sinister regard for its effect on the American people. For it produced precisely the impression which ordinary and traditional statesmanship would seek to avoid.

"With the necessity to maintain law and order at all times and in all places, the American Legion will not quarrel; for it is to maintain this principle that we exist. * * *

"On the night these harrassed and hungry veterans straggled along the roads out of Washington, leaving behind their food and pitiful belongings which had suffered the flames of war, no rations from a well-equipped army were offered them; no medical corps moved along the line seeking out the possible injured, and no spring plowing awaited these men—that they might do homage to the god of seasons and with a new pride—eat, in the midst of plenty.

Rout of Enemy Recalled.

"We of the American Legion have the privileges of our own recollections and when we witness the burning of the miserable little huts of our country's one-time defenders, even in the face of that exultant boast, 'Mac did a good job today,' we remembered instantly that other day when we marched into the enemy's country in Germany, but we never did such a thing as this.

"If the lurid flames of this Roman Holiday reflected against the cold, white face of Abraham Lincoln, seated eternally in his nearby memorial, could but blush into the blood of life, he would rise in the right and majesty of his God-anointed love and render judgment against those who do insult to the loyal impulses of our people. * * *

"Therefore, it is the opinion of American Legion, Department of Pennsylvania, that the President of the United States, being charged with high duties over and beyond the execution of the law, handled the whole situation in a regrettable manner which contributed to this said incident."

8 STATE PRIMARIES HOLD STAGE TODAY

Many National Figures and Issues Involved in Voting for Candidates.

(Associated Press.)

Voters in eight different States prepared to cast their ballots in primary elections today, with political leaders eagerly scanning the results of the first interparty contest of the year yesterday in Maine as the weather man watches his barometer.

Many national figures and important issues are involved in the eight State primaries today. The outcome of these contests will be closely studied by campaign pilots for any significant trends.

Primaries are scheduled today in Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont, Washington and South Carolina, and voters will file into the polls tomorrow for the Georgia primaries.

Veterans Fight for Places.

Veteran campaigners on the national political stage in Washington are engaged in some of the contests today, and the prohibition issue runs through several of the contests.

A run-off primary in South Carolina will decide whether Senator E. D. Smith or his former colleague, Cole L. Blease, will have the Democratic nomination for the Senate. Smith led Blease by about 20,000 votes in the first primary, but neither candidate obtained a majority of the votes.

In Washington, Senator Jones, veteran Republican and author of the Jones "five and ten" dry enforcement law, is opposed for the nomination by Adam Beeler, an advocate of repeal, and several Democrats are running for their party's nomination.

Brisk campaigns have been conducted in Colorado for both Republican and Democratic nominations to the Senate. The celebrated Teapot Dome oil cases have echoed in both party contests.

Huey Long Faces Test.

The strength of Huey Long, Louisiana political leader, is up for another test in that State, where chief interest centered in the primary between Senator Broussard and Representative Overton for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Long is supporting Overton.

Estimates of a total vote of 1,000,000 were made as Michigan prepared to go to the polls to choose from the largest fields of candidates in its history. From a national standpoint, the interest centers on comeback efforts of former Representatives Louis C Cramton and Grant M. Hudson, prohibition supporters who were beaten two years ago.

Another senatorial veteran, Porter H. Dale, is up in Vermont for the Republican nomination, but he has no opposition within his party. Fred C. Martin, of Bennington, is offered by the Democrats for the Senate post.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, is seeking renomination from the Republicans of his State, while former Gov. Fred H. Brown is after the Democratic nomination.

G. O. P. MAJORITIES SLASHED IN MAINE

John G. Utterback were fighting a see-saw battle in the Third District, first one gaining a slight edge and then the other holding the advantage. Never more than a few hundred votes separated them.

In the First District Representative Carroll L. Beedy piled up his advantage over Joseph E. F. Connolly continuously.

The normally Republican county of Sagadahoc gave Brann 2,755 to Martin's 2,414. In 1930 the vote was:

Republican, 1,709; Democratic, 926. and in 1928, Republican, 3,746; Democratic, 1,156.

Hancock County with but one of its 41 precincts missing gave Martin, 5,137; Brann, 3,822. Two years ago the vote for complete county was:

Republican, 4,652; Democratic, 1,966; and four years ago, Republican, 6,140; Democratic, 1,610.

A proposal to increase the tax on gasoline from 4 to 5 cents was snowed under. A like proposal was defeated two years ago 80,000 to 35,000.

Republicans Confident.

As reports early in the day's balloting indicated a parade of voters which might reach record proportions, Republican leaders had remained confident the customary victory would be theirs, but they admitted a strong possibility of reduced majorities.

The normal Republican majority has averaged more than 40,000 since 1920. The keynote of the Democratic drive was sounded by Brann in his appeal for "liberal and independent votes."

Opening of the polls saw the end of a comparatively quiet, but an intense, under the surface, campaign. Behind the unspectacular oratory of speakers of both parties, workers bent all their efforts to clinch votes.

Democrats Are Wets.

The prohibition issue in the congressional races developed some sharp interchanges, with all three Democratic candidates pressing their repealist views. The Republican nominees were avowed drys. They have declared for the retention of the present laws until the people's mandate orders a change. Beedy and Nelson asserted there was no indication from their constituents that such a change would be welcomed. Maine has had a prohibitory law for 75 years.

Government economy and the record of the Republican State administration were issues dominating the gubernatorial struggle.

So heavy was the voting today in the 632 precincts of the State that town clerks of a number of communities sent a hurried appeal to the secretary of State's office in Augusta for additional ballots.

Ballot printing orders were rushed through and sent by fast automobiles to their destinations.

Nine Are Held in Boston After Seizure of Yacht

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 12.—A captain and crew of seven and a man giving his name as Charles F. Kelly, of 105 West Seventy-third street, New York City, described as a contact man for important New York financial interests, were under arrest here today following the seizure by customs men of the costly yacht Prudence.

More than 1,000 sacks and bags of contraband, concealed behind panels and in engine room tanks, were found on the yacht when it was raided in Dorchester Bay Sunday night. The vessel is reported to be owned by Lanson M. Dilloway, of 304 East Forty-second street, New York City.

Culpeper Bridge Nearer.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The State highway department tomorrow will open bids on eight road and bridge construction projects. They include a bridge 97 feet long over Mountain Run, on Route 32, in Culpeper County, at Culpeper.

President Evinces Active Interest in Maine Voting

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover took a strong interest in the Maine elections last night and directed that early returns be sent to him personally at the White House.

Although the Chief Executive did not sit up beyond his usual bed time because of the balloting, he was able to judge the trend of the voting before retiring. Mrs. Hoover was present when the first returns were brought to the President. The Hoovers had no outside callers during the evening.

G.O.P. Duty Taken By Mrs. Coolidge

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the former President, has agreed, Republican Eastern headquarters announced tonight, to serve on a Hoover-Curtis campaign committee. She will join Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, sr., widow of the former President; Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, widow of the New Jersey senator, and eleven other women on an advisory committee.

The other members announced are Representatives Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, and Ruth Pratt, of New York; Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Massachusetts; Mrs. J. G. M. Giessner, New Hampshire; Mrs. Henry D. Shurpe, Rhode Island; Mrs. Burleigh Martin, Maine; Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, New York; Mrs. Travis H. EARLY TRIAL PLEA GRANTED TO DAVIS

Will Face Court Monday on Lottery Charge; Separate Case Allowed.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Because he is a candidate for reelection in November, United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, was granted a separate trial today from those of seven others also charged with participation in lotteries. His trial is scheduled to begin next Monday.

"The people are entitled to know what is what one way or the other," said Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy, of Wyoming, in granting motion for a severance.

Asking for early trial, instead of waiting until the other defendants could be ready, Senator Davis declared in an affidavit that delay would be "a grave injustice, not only to me, but to the electorate of the State of Pennsylvania."

Judge Kennedy decided promptly for the petitioner.

"No one can measure the damage which a deferred trial might do to Mr. Davis," he said. "If the Government can proceed on the 19th I think it should do so. I think it would be rather unusual to temporize with the entire future of a man under such circumstances."

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie said the Government would be ready to proceed on the date, if desired witnesses could be summoned on time.

Charles H. Tuttle, Davis' counsel, said he gladly would assist in procuring the witnesses. He urged the senator be given earliest possible opportunity to "secure vindication" from a jury.

Other defendants in the case, growing out of alleged lotteries in fraternal organizations, are Theodore G. Miller, official of the Order of Moose; Bernard C. McGuire, New York merchant; Raymond Walsh, his assistant; Conrad H. Mann, national head of the fraternal Order of Eagles; Frank E. Herring, publisher of the Eagle Magazine; M. J. Revise, head of the package delivery department of the Western Union Telegraph Co., and the telegraph company.

Trials of the others probably will be in November.

2 Large Apartment Buildings Are Sold

Windermere and Harrowgate Bring $225,000 Each at Public Auction.

The Windermere and Harrowgate, two large apartment buildings at 1825 and 1833 New Hampshire avenue northwest, were sold at public auction yesterday for $225,000 each to W. H. Pardoe, an assistant treasurer of National Savings & Trust Co. and representing that institution. Mr. Pardoe was the sole bidder. The sale was advertised by the American Security & Trust Co., and Vernon G. Owen was the auctioneer.

The Windermere, an eight-story structure of concrete, brick and limestone, 70 feet wide, 135 feet deep, and containing 104 apartments, was erected in 1925, A. J. Howar being the original owner and Stern & Tomlinson the architects and builders. Its original estimated cost was $550,000, and its current assessed valuation is $436,916, of which $380,000 is for building and $59,916 for land. Subsequent owners are listed as Willissa Pollock Dyar, Ernest E. and Estelle W. Nelson, Joseph McReynolds and Oliver Properties, Inc.

The Harrowgate, an eight-story brick and limestone building, 124 feet wide, 109 feet deep, and containing 95 apartments, subdivided into 140 rooms, was constructed in 1926, Mr. Howar being the original owner and builder and Stern & Tomlinson the architects. The estimated cost of this building was $500,000, and its present assessed valuation is $374,010, of which $310,000 is for building and $64,010 for land. Other owners have been Alberta Barnes, Joseph Kaufman, Joseph McReynolds and Oliver Properties, Inc.

2 Americans Reported Kidnaped in Manchuria

Tokyo (Tuesday), Sept. 13 (U.P.).—J. N. Pelington and Henry Kinney, Americans, and two managers of the Wagon-Lits Hotel at Harbin have been kidnaped by guerilla soldiers, a dispatch to the newspaper Nichi Nichi from its Harbin correspondent said today.

Hurley Pledged to Vote For Payment of Bonus

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who came to the American Legion convention as a visitor, tonight pinned on his lapel the badge of a delegate from his home State of Oklahoma.

Hurley was accepted as a delegate, a member of the delegation said, after he promised to vote with the delegation in favor of immediate payment of the bonus

HOOVER PLANNING ONLY 3 ADDRESSES

Everett Sanders Says Date of Speeches Have Not Yet Been Determind.

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Republican national campaign headquarters announced tonight President Hoover probably will make only three speeches during his campaign for reelection.

"Mr. Hoover will make one or two addresses in the West and perhaps one address in the East before November 8," said Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee and director of the campaign. "The dates of the addresses have not been determined."

By "the West" it was understood Sanders meant the central States.

Sanders, who returned only today from the East, denied reports from Washington that the President probably would make campaign speeches in New York City, Chicago and Minneapolis.

"I am positive the President's plans are not that definite," Sanders said. "It is possible speeches may be made by him in one or more of those cities, but no decision has been reached."

Returning with Sanders and en route to his home in Minneapolis was Walter H. Newton, secretary to President Hoover. Campaign workers said Newton knew of no plans for President Hoover to appear in Minneapolis and believed the report from Washington to be in error.

Economic relief measures now under way are engaging the President's entire attention at present, spokesmen at campaign headquarters said. However, they pictured him as prepared to leave the National Capital for campaign purposes "at any opportune time."

Both Sanders and Newton were optimistic over reports on political sentiment over the country. Sanders said he had conferred with the President, and with Senator Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island, Eastern campaign manager.

Also present at campaign headquarters today were a number of Nebraska political leaders headed by Charles A. McCloud, national committeeman; Robert Smith, State chairman; Mrs. M. D. Cameron, national committeewoman, and former Representative A. W. Jefforis. McCloud said President Hoover's reconstruction program had met with considerable favor in Nebraska.

PARIS REPLY DENIES REICH ARMS APPEAL

by the council of the League of Nations.

"Thus the League of Nations alone is the judge," the reply continues. "France can not violate her engagements in this respect, and it is before the league that we should expound, if necessary, the reasons which prevent us from adhering to the rearmament of Germany.

"Also we could not by restrictive negotiations risk striking a blow at the rights of the United States, the treaty of peace signed by the United States with Germany in 1921 assuring them of the benefits and dispositions stipulated in part 5 of the treaty of Versailles."

France declines to accept the German idea that eventual treaty reduction in armaments should be substituted for the military sections of the treaty of Versailles, but does not refuse to examine this question with other nations.

The French government agreed that Germany had a right to national security and asserted that "France seeks no privilege for herself; she asks only her legitimate share of the security which would embrace all nations."

Recalling what had been done to achieve security, the note said that France not only will agree to study any suggestions by Germany, "but even invites them as she does from other nations."

Berlin, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—France's reply to Germany's request for equality in armaments "is not calculated to bring nearer the solution of this serious problem," Chancellor Franz von Papen said tonight in a radio broadcast to the German people.

Over a hookup reaching into every part of the nation, the chancellor delivered the speech he was prevented from making in the Reichstag today when his government was defeated by a motion of nonconfidence.

It was his first public pronouncement on the French reply, which was delivered yesterday. During the next few days, he said, the cabinet will decide "what we intend to do for the further treatment of this vital question."

"Our decision," he continued, "will be carried by the conviction that this is a question of honor, of the vital rights of our nation. Germany demands nothing that is not self-evident for every people caring for its honor and filled with a healthy will to live, and nothing that is one-sidedly in Germany's interests.

"The tremendous inequality in armaments today not only violates Germany's right to security, but is the cause of constantly increasing tension that must be removed if confidence between peoples is to be reestablished."

The chancellor referred to the "excellent proposal" of President Hoover for a general one-third cut in arms.

"It was greeted with beautiful words," he said, "and ignored so far as deeds are concerned."

The foremost task that faced his government was settlement of the reparations issue, the chancellor said.

MEMPHIS EXCITED OVER ROBINS CLEW

Mysterious Man Visiting at Nearby Lake Was St. Louis Fire Captain.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A report that a man resembling Col. Raymond Robins, missing prohibition advocate and friend of President Hoover, had been located near Memphis, upset the calm of police headquarters today, but Federal investigators termed the rumor groundless.

Detective Sergt. Wilbur Miller started the excitement after he talked with a Memphis physician who said he had seen a man at Reelfoot Lake yesterday whose general appearance corresponded with pictures of Col. Robins.

The newspapers were asked by police for detailed descriptions, but the officers at first refused to say where their mysterious man was located except that he was "near Memphis" and couldn't give an account of himself.

The excitement was dissipated when "Red" Boyett, Reelfoot hotel operator and boat owner, told Sergt. Miller by telephone that the "mysterious" character was none other than a visiting fireman from St. Louis. Boyett said he knew the man was "Capt. Raymond Griffin." Later, he said the name might be "Capt. Shaffer."

The physician had reported the man he saw had suffered blows about the head and acted "strangely."

"He's just sunburned," Boyett explained. "He's down here on a fishing trip. He's been here for several days."

Just to make certain, United States District Attorney Maddox sent a couple of Federal officers to Reelfoot Lake. They reported the man was not Col. Robins.

Chicago Search Clews Remain Without Result

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Detectives and Federal agents today continued without result their search for the missing Col. Raymond Robins, prohibition and peace advocate.

Authorities said nothing was learned to substantiate statements of three of Col. Robins' friends that they saw him here last week or reports by others that they saw a man answering his description.

Anonymous postcards were mailed in Chicago this morning to the Associated Press and the City News Bureau stating that Col. Robins could be found at 155 North Clark street at a lawyer's office on the thirteenth floor. The Clark street address is also that of the two news organizations.

H. M. Ashton, a lawyer on the thirteenth floor of the building, stated that he knew Col. Robins personally but that he had not seen him for more than two years. The postcard information was generally accepted as the work of a crank.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, national head of the allied prohibition forces and an associate of Col. Robins, arrived today from Portland, Oreg., to assist in the search.

TANGLE FOLLOWS NONCONFIDENCE VOTE

one fact was outstanding—the Von Papen cabinet, despite the vote of nonconfidence, held command of the army and the police.

The upset in the Reichstag came before Chancellor von Papen had an opportunity to announce the government's program and policies. So tonight the chancellor went on to lay that program before the people.

He accused the Reichstag of having acted unconstitutionally, remarked bitterly that a week ago the members listened respectively when Clara Zetkin, Communist "mother of the revolution," called for the impeachment of President von Hindenberg, and then read the speech he had intended delivering before the legislature.

In that speech he reiterated Germany's demand for equality in armaments, saying that it was "unbearable for us to be treated any longer as a second-class nation and to continue to stand unprotected amidst nations of the European continent bristling with arms."

In preparation for exactly the sort of emergency he encountered today, the chancellor obtained from the president a week ago an undated decree dissolving the Reichstag. It was reported that, confident the issue would not be raised at today's session, he failed to take the decree along with him when the legislature reopened.

At the conclusion of the exciting session Speaker Goering and the council of elders decided to make no attempt to reconvene the Reichstag until the courts have settled the constitutional question involved.

Chancellor von Papen made it most clear that he would prevent any attempt by the Reichstag to reconvene. The government, he said in a letter to Speaker Goering, would "make any such meeting impossible."

In the letter he accused the speaker of having acted unconstitutionally in twice refusing to allow the chancellor to have the floor and in proceeding with the nonconfidence vote after dissolution had been decreed. Only the members of the committee on foreign affairs and the committee on the rights of Parliament will be permitted to hold meetings.

BODY OF AIR SUICIDE IS FOUND BY FARMER

where Miss Fletcher made the jump. He said the body seemingly pitched into a ravine between two farm lands, where there were a few trees, and such was the case. The body was near the edge of a narrow clump of woods in low land.

Mr. Moreland will be entitled to receive a reward of $50, which had been offered for the finding of the body, $25 of which was offered by Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McConaughy, of Washington, with whom Miss Fletcher had been staying since last May, and the other $25 by her brother, Prof. Robert Fletcher, an instructer in Oberlin College.

Miss Fletcher was a schoolgirl chum of Mrs. McConaughy. She resigned her position as school teacher at Forestville, N. Y., to nurse her mother who was taken ill about a year and, subsequently died. Later she went to Washington in quest of a position. She brooded over the death of her parent, as well as her inability to obtain employment, according to the McConaughys. She became particularly depressed when advised that an application for a teacher's position in Cuba had been received too late. She was informed of this two days before she took the plane ride.

TRADE TAX TO HELP FARMERS APPROVED

Danubian Parley Agrarians Favor Principle of Plan Italians Advance.

Stresa, Italy, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The agrarian committee of the Danubian conference today agreed to approve in principle the Italian scheme for economic restoration of the agrarian countries by imposing a small tax on trade throughout Europe.

The principal delegates to the conference, however, reaffirmed that the economic balance of central Europe must be attained by the free play of natural economic forces.

The Italian scheme, proposed on September 8, suggested the tax, which proceeds would be paid into a central fund. The fund would be used for the improvement of cereal prices and the stabilization of national finances in central and eastern Europe.

Fifteen nations are attending the conference here, which is seeking a solution for the financial stalemate that has menaced the economic security of the Danubian countries.

Another Fireman Shot In Dixie Job Warfare

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A Negro railway fireman was shot near here today in much the same manner numerous fellow workmen have met death and authorities concluded terroristic tactics aimed at driving Negroes from their jobs have been resumed.

As a Yazoo & Mississippi Valley train was passing Garrisons Bayou, a few miles north of Baton Rouge, shotgun slugs were fired into the locomotive cab and Grant Johnson, the fireman, was wounded. He said a white man standing beside the track started shooting as the train passed.

Mauch Chunk, Pa., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—W. J. Hatrick, Carbon County detective, announced today that two men giving their names as Albert G. Harvey, of Hazleton, Pa., and Thomas F. Cain, of New York City, are under arrest here charged with swindling by selling alleged scholarships to West Point Military Academy.

According to Hatrick, they represented themselves as agents of the War Department. In one case, Hatrick said, they obtained $5,000 from a Hazleton citizen and in another $500 from a resident of Summit Hill. The names of the alleged victims were not made public.

YOUTH SLEW FATHER AND SELF, JURY SAYS

Daughter and Sister of Victim Tells of Tragedy at Maryland Farm.

A verdict of murder and suicide was returned last night in the case of William Frank Penn, an Accokeek, Md., farmer, who was shot and killed by his 19-year-old son, who then ended his own life. The coroner's jury meeting in a rural store at T. B. was told that the son, before his death, cried that he killed his father for his "mother's sake."

The shooting followed what authorities term "a wild party" in the Penn farmhouse.

The inquest was conducted before Judge F. H. Billingsley, of T. B., who acted as coroner, assisted by State's Attorney Allan Bowie. Twelve tanned farmers sat in silence as the evidence was given. These men were sworn in as a coroner's jury at the scene of the shooting Sunday night.

Girl, 16, Is Vital Witness.

The vital witness proved to be little Susie Penn, 16-year-old daughter and sister of the two dead men. Clear-eyed and unemotional, she gave a concise story of what happened. Her father, she told the jury, had often threatened the life of her mother and brother.

Susie said that a party was in progress at her home when the shooting occurred. She said her unarried sister, Mrs. Winnie Rennoe, and her husband, Charles, and a neighbor, William Cook, were all gathered in the kitchen.

Mr. Rennoe and young Frank were sitting on the floor engaged in a friendly tussle. Mr. Penn came into the room and seeing the two men rolling about the floor apparently thought his son was being hurt by Rennoe.

Without warning, Susie related, Mr. Penn suddenly reached out and struck Rennoe in the eye. Rennoe jumped to his feet and backed away. He made no effort to strike the older man.

After the scuffle Mrs. Rennoe suggested she and her husband leave. As they walked from the house, Penn followed them into the yard. There he again attacked Rennoe, the jury was told.

Father's Threat Quoted.

Cook, who had remained in the house, ran out and separated the pair and took Penn back into the house. Once inside, Penn, in a wild rage, said he was going "to kill his wife and son," the jury learned.

Mrs. Penn, her husband and Cook remained in the kitchen. Cook attempted to quiet the enraged man. As the three stood talking a loud report rang out and Penn pitched to the floor mortally wounded.

As Mrs. Penn and Cook stood horrified, a hysterical voice cried out:

"I killed papa, and now I am going to kill myself. Mama, I am doing this for your sake."

Hardly had these words been spoken when another shot was heard. Cook, rushing to the yard, found young Frank lying beside a well. He had been shot through the head.

Victims Buried Together.

It was at first thought, in view of the fight between Rennoe and the elder Penn, that perhaps Rennoe had obtained vengeance. He, however, was cleared of suspicion when the jury returned its verdict.

Some question was raised as to the height of a window through which the shot that killed Penn was fired. It was brought out that young Frank might not have been able to raise the gun high enough to shoot. This was straightened out when witnesses testified that the boy apparently shot on an angle so as to strike his father just above the waist.

Double funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from Christ's Church in Accokeek. The father and son were buried side by side in the church cemetery.

THE CALL OF THE WILD
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Paul Bransom, America's foremost animal painter ...inspired by the savage struggle between the ferocious wild dog and the vicious wolf... as described in Jack London's famous novel of combat against crude nature in the frozen north.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY IN CHACO

Conflicting Reports Cloud Fort Boqueron Battle as Fourth Day Ends.

(Associated Press.)

The battle of Fort Boqueron, for control of that strategic spot in the disputed Chaco, approached its fifth day today, with Bolivia and Paraguay still claiming victory.

The Paraguayans reiterated they had captured the fort Friday, but conceded that a bloody struggle was still going on "in the neighborhood."

Bolivia just as flatly declared the Paraguayans had never entered the fort, but she, too, admitted military operations continued unabated.

Paraguay yesterday advised American neutral nations she would be willing to stop fighting upon a guarantee of security, and told the League of Nations she had not protested against Bolivian operations pending the outcome of peace efforts in the Americas.

Neutrals Called Here.

While Bolivian and Paraguayan troops struggled for possession of Fort Boqueron and the key position in Paraguay's line of Chaco defenses, the neutral peace commission decided yesterday to call in representatives of countries which are neighbors to the disputants to find, if possible, a formula for "bringing Paraguay and Bolivia to their senses."

Strict official silence yesterday met all efforts to learn from Assistant Secretary Francis White, of the State Department, chairman of the commission, what new measures would be proposed at today's meeting.

Beyond the statement that Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru had been invited to discuss the problem with delegates of the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Colombia and Uruguay, White would say nothing.

Reply by Paraguay.

Paraguay's reply to the neutral note of Saturday was before him late yesterday, but he would not disclose its import. He was represented at the State Department as desiring to withhold the Paraguayan answer until Bolivia had stated her position on requests made in identic notes entreating the disputants to cease fighting and arbitrate their controversy in the interest of American solidarity.

A neutral observer, while admitting he knew nothing definite of plans for today's reunion, said the neutrals had about reached the end of their resources. The neighbors probably would be asked, he said, to suggest what was in the minds of their governments as to what should be done to avert an impending catastrophe.

72 Buildings Involved In Florida Receivership

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—G. L. Miller, once nationally known distributer of bonds, and ten affiliated corporations controlling 72 hotels, apartment houses and other structures in 18 Florida cities, were placed in receivership here today under an order signed by Federal Judge Alexander Akerman on petition of a bondholders' committee.

More than $20,000,000 in first mortgage bonds is involved in the suit. Miller in 1920, through G. L. Miller & Co., Inc., and affiliated organizations, sold bonds and mortgages from offices in New York, Atlanta and other cities.

Bay Captain Halts Suicide Attempt

Baltimore Nurse Reported to Have Tried Twice to Leap Overboard.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 12.—Prompt action on the part of Capt. Gardner Higgins of the steamer John M. Dennis, of the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co., frustrated an alleged attempt at suicide by Miss Mary Lovern, 37, of Roanoke, Va., nurse at the Home for Incurables, Baltimore, Saturday night, it was revealed here today. Capt. Higgins seized Miss Lovern as she was apparently about to leap from the top deck of the steamer.

Miss Lovern boarded the steamer at Claiborne and was first observed pacing the deck, seemingly nervous and excited, by Harvey Hudson, deck hand. Hudson said he watched the woman for several minutes and finally she climbed over the rail and advanced toward a life boat near the edge of the deck. He said he approached her and she returned to the deck, and continued strolling.

Hudson said he reported the incident to Capt. Higgins who found the woman had crossed to the other side of the boat and again climbed the rail. She had tied a life preserver hook to her wrist. The skipper saw the woman cast her purse into the bay; he stepped over the rail and lifted her back on deck. After the steamer arrived Miss Lovern appeared much calmer, and consented to go to the home of friends in Baltimore. She was escorted there by Albert Genese. Miss Lovern gave no reason for her actions.

Hurley, Now in Politics, Admits Sharp Descent

Auditorium, Portland, Oreg., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Patrick J. Hurley discussed his past—and future—in a humorous vein between bites of a liver and bacon dinner here today.

"I have been going down the scale ever since I was a mule skinner in an Oklahoma mine, many years ago," the Secretary of War remarked smilingly, "and I don't know what will come next.

"I used to have a lot of fun driving a mule in a coal mine, but from then on I have gone on down. After that I was a miner, then was a cowhand for some time, did a little soldiering, following which I became a lawyer. Now I am in politics, so you can see what happened to me."

ROOSEVELT'S DRIVE IS PAYING OWN WAY

Receipts Above Expenditures, Report Shows; 1928 Debt Remains Unpaid.

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic campaign report filed yesterday with the clerk of the House, showed the Roosevelt-Garner drive paying its way so far, but obligations of more than $400,000 still hanging over from 1928.

The Democrats have organized a separate unit known as the Democratic national campaign committee to handle the 1932 campaign chest. The report of this committee and of the temporary committee which preceded it, showed receipts of $117,483, and expenditures of $90,163 up to September 1.

However, the receipts included a loan of $21,900 from Frank G. Walker, of New York, the treasurer. Also, unpaid obligations were listed at $19,509. Pledges totaling $44,935 were noted.

Vincent Astor Gives $25,000.

Vincent Astor, of New York, was the principal contributor to the Roosevelt-Garner fund with a gift of $25,000. William H. Woodin, of New York, gave $10,000. Gov. Murray, of Oklahoma, who opposed Gov. Roosevelt in the convention, gave $100.

A combined report for the Democratic national committee and the Democratic victory campaign showed contributions of $235,670 for the three-month period and disbursements of $230,948.

Unpaid obligations of the national committee totaled $449,639, including a note for $301,162.50 held by the County Trust Co. of New York and three notes totaling $122,254 held by John J. Raskob, former chairman of the national committee.

$100,000 Paid on Note.

The principal disbursement of the national committee from the victory fund collection was a payment of nearly $100,000 on the County Trust note, which had stood at $400,000.

Contributions to the Democratic committee and victory campaign showed two for $500 each from Alfred E. Smith and J. A. Reed, of Missouri, prior to the national convention in June.

The combined reports filed by the Democrats showed a net balance in the treasury for all committees of $32,042 and an estimated current deficit of $236,604. These figures take into account unpaid pledges, including one for $61,750 from the Chicago citizens' committee which sponsored the national convention.

The New York County organization and the Brooklyn County organization were listed for unpaid pledges of $25,000 each.

Among the disbursements of the Roosevelt-Garner campaign committee were payments to radio broadcasting companies totaling $12,500.

U. S. Chamber Studying Rail Rate Law Revision

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Measures for revision of laws regulating rate making are under consideration by a special railroads committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States which today began a meeting here.

The committee, studying the railroad situation in general expects to have a report ready for the chamber's board of directors' meeting in Washington September 23-24.

A statement issued for the committee, of which F. C. Dillard, of Sherman, Tex., is chairman, said its members believe "that much of the present credit difficulties of the railroads are due to excessively rigid policies of regulation."

When he was 15 years old his parents sent him to the Sorbornne in Paris. He graduated from the University of Wurzburg (Germany) and was a clinical student at the University of Vienna. He came to the United States and entered the Universities of Pennsylvania and Maryland, being graduated from both with high honors.

During the World War, Col. Skinner was given command of the United States Army Dispensary in Washington. Previously he was superintendent of Columbia Hospital, in which capacity he had served for about seventeen years.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Sewell M. Johnson, with whom Col. Skinner had been living at the Portland Apartments, Fifteenth and U streets northwest.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at Hysong's Funeral Parlors, 1300 N street northwest, followed by interment in Arlington National Cemetery.

Defenders' Day Observed By Shelling of Ft. McHenry

Bombardment at Baltimore That Inspired Francis Scott Key to Write the "Star-Spangled Banner" Is Reenacted in Impressive Form.

Baltimore, September 12 (A.P.).—The bombardment of Fort McHenry, which inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star Spangled Banner," was dramatized tonight as the concluding feature of Baltimore's own holiday, Defenders' Day.

The scene of the night of the battle and then the breaking of dawn with the flag still flying above the fortress, which Key saw from the dack of the Minden off Sparrows Point on September 14, 1814, was reenacted by gunfire and flares, with searchlights aiding to bring out the effect.

Starting after dark, all lights at the fort and on the hundreds of pleasure craft lying off it, as well as those on the two Coast Guard cutters, four submarine chasers and two destroyers which carried on the bombardment, were turned off.

Only the flash of the guns on the ships and of the shore batteries replying illuminated the scene. As the bombardment reached its height, red flares illuminated the 134-year-old fort.

White flares, symbolizing daybreak, followed them and floodlights, cutting through the smoke, picked out the Stars and Stripes waving over the ramparts. Simultaneously, harbor craft turned their searchlights on the flag.

The reenactment of the British attempt to reach Baltimore during the War of 1812 followed a day's program of unveiling of markers, patriotic speeches, a Coast Guard demonstration and a water pageant.

WEST VIRGINIA GETS $440,000 R.F.C. LOAN

Missouri Granted $633,180; Kentucky Is Desirous of $1,000,000 Award.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday made funds available to meet emergency relief needs in Missouri and West Virginia.

Missouri was granted a loan of $633,180, of which $628,930 is to be used in St. Louis. West Virginia was loaned $440,000, to be used in Logan, Monongalia and Raleigh Counties.

Meanwhile, Kentucky, through its health and welfare officers, sought a corporation relief loan. Kentucky would like to get $1,000,000, but no formal application was made.

The St. Louis fund is designed to care for relief needs until the city can vote, November 8, on a $4,600,000 relief bond issue. The West Virginia loan is expected to care for the situation in the three counties until December 31.

West Virginia, the corporation said in its announcement, will distribute the relief funds through county welfare boards. These boards consist of from six to twelve volunteer workers and one salaried worker.

During the last two seasons West Virginia communities in three counties have carried on gardening and food conservation activities which have done much, the corporation said, toward relieving distress.

St. Louis last year spent $1,943,250 for relief, and last March a total of $1,800,000 was pledged for the same purpose.

This money has been exhausted and the corporation said it is estimated that $1,345,000 will be required to meet relief needs in St. Louis from September 1 to December 31. Estimated local funds available were placed at $451,603.

GEN. GLASSFORD'S STATEMENT.

The statement by Gen. Glassford, superintendent of police, commenting upon the report made by Attorney General Mitchell to the President regarding the bonus riot, is a lame attempt to explain away his failure to maintain public order. Gen. Glassford lays unnecessary emphasis upon the good qualities of the good veterans. Nobody has had anything but praise for the decent and law-abiding element in the bonus army. It was the violent element that caused the riot, and this violent element is very gently dealt with by Gen. Glassford. The radicals who tried to picket and perhaps to storm the White House, and who later attacked the police, would have had possession of Washington on the night of July 28 if no one but Gen. Glassford had acted.

The general tone of Gen. Glassford's statement is unfortunate for him. He does not directly accuse the Attorney General of falsehood, nor the District Commissioners of bad faith, nor the President of brutality, but he might as well have done so. The implications of his statement are that superior authority intervened and spoiled his masterly handling of the bonus marchers, including the Communists. He had practically a free hand for nearly two months, during which time the bonus seekers became more aggressive and threatening, finally raising their hands against the Government. Gen. Glassford was unable to take possession of Federal property, as he was required to do, but he seems to harbor a grievance because the Government proceeded to do what he could not and did not do.

Gen. Glassford's method of dealing with the vicious elements in the bonus army was to "jolly" them, apparently in the hope that they would desist from their plans to stir up riots and turn Washington over to mob rule. They took advantage of the easy head of the Police Department to perfect their plans, and when they struck they were in a position to overpower the police. The District Commissioners, after personally inspecting the situation, saw that Gen. Glassford was unable to control the mob, and thereupon they called for Federal aid. They are now accused by Gen. Glassford of withholding information from him, and inferentially they are rebuked for having invoked Federal assistance. Yet if they had not acted at once, a mob containing murderers and incendiaries would have been free to make havoc in Washington.

It is impossible for the District Commissioners to place such confidence in Gen. Glassford as should be reposed in the principal peace officer of the National Capital. He has lost confidence in the Commissioners. In these circumstances he should resign.

AGE AND USEFULNESS.

Dr. Walter R. Miles, of Stanford and Yale Universities, is making use of science to destroy the fiction that a man's usefulness is passed when he reaches the shady side of middle age. A few of his experiments were reported to the American Psychological Association, of which he is president.

Experiments were conducted by Dr. Miles on 863 persons, from 6 to 95 years old, more than half of them over 50. In general he found a gradual decrease of physical ability as a man grows older, but an increase in judgment and intelligence. The physical machine sometimes passes its highest peak of usefulness early in life. A baseball player, for example, is "through" when his legs begin to slow down. On the other hand, a good lawyer frequently does not reach the zenith of his capacity until late in life.

In perception Dr. Miles' subjects were quickest from 10 to 17 years of age. Memory and imagination seem to vary but little with age. Many of the oldest subjects, over 80 years, showed greater than average intelligence. The ability to compare and to judge was found to be most pronounced in the later years of life.

Old age has been little explored, either in science or literature. Most of the psychologists have confined their observations to the young, thus neglecting one of the richest fields of practical research. Of course, scientific tests are not essential to convince the careful observer that the average man beyond 40 has gained in judgment and accumulated experience what he has lost in physical agility. Now that science is emphasizing this fact industry may come to realize that it has been wasting valuable human energy because of the policy referred to by Dr. Miles as "calendar worship."

A more intelligent age will not oust the man of 40 or 50 from the industrial system, but will employ him where his mature faculties will be most useful. In view of the fact that intelligence and judgment are far more important than brawn in these days when machinery does so much of the world's work, it is logical to expect an improvement in the status of the middle-aged wage earner.

A CRISIS IN GERMANY.

Germany's grim political drama reached a climax yesterday when Chancellor von Papen sought to dissolve the Reichstag and the Reichstag sought to dissolve the von Papen cabinet. A short but tumultous session of the Reichstag threw the government into complete chaos. The German republic has not suffered a more perilous blow since the Weimar constitution was adopted.

Chancellor von Papen had intended to forestall the very event that took place yesterday. From the beginning he has feared a sudden vote of non-confidence. Consequently, he armed himself with a decree of dissolution against the Reichstag and let it be known that the decree, bearing the signature of President von Hindenburg, would be issued unless the legislature supported his emergency measures for the rehabilitation of Germany.

It appears that von Papen was asleep at the switch in spite of his precautions. Before he could produce his decree the Reichstag began voting on a Communist motion to rescind the economic program and express a lack of confidence in the von Papen government. The speaker, a Hitlerite, would not recognize the chancellor until the vote had been completed. It is contended that a defeated administration has no authority to dissolve the Reichstag.

Only the German supreme court is competent to pass upon the merits of this controversy. It does appear, however, that Chancellor von Papen failed to carry out his plan and that the Reichstag has the upper hand. Yet this apparent advantage may not be significant, because President von Hindenburg can set up another cabinet, if necessary, and then dismiss the unruly Reichstag. It is the president who holds the whip hand in Germany, no matter what parliamentary situation may develop.

The effect of this new crisis is to make a revolution in Germany imminent. Apparently both sides have agreed to let the supreme court decide whether von Papen or the Reichstag was quickest on the draw yesterday, but that will not dispose of the fundamental issue at stake. The question is: How much longer will the militant factions of Germany continue to tolerate government by executive decree? If one election after another is called, and the results of each election are nullified by the exercise of dictatorial power, a coup d'etat may be expected.

The vote against the von Papen government was overwhelming. Not a single deputy moved to save the cabinet from defeat, although a single objection would have prevented action on the Communist motion. The people are tired of futile political maneuvering that always ends in a deadlock. Each new crisis enhances the possibility that Adolf Hitler will be swept into power.

NOVEL BUT IMPRACTICAL.

A novel scheme whereby European debtor governments would be allowed to use the annual payments due to the United States for the purchase of American goods has been worked out by Mark O. Prentiss. His plan, as outlined in the current issue of the Manufacturers Record, is based on the assumption that some sacrifice will be made by the United States. Mr. Prentiss thinks it would be inexcusable to give Europe $280,000,000 in money (the amount of the war debt payments due next year) when this country has a surplus of goods.

The bargain which Mr. Prentiss would make with European debtor countries is put into these simple words:

> Pay us what is due under your obligation this year, and if you buy a little more from us during 1933 than you did in 1932, we will give you in products of our farms and factories and mines, an amount valued in dollars, at your port of entry, equal to the amount that you pay us on your national obligations.

Mr. Prentiss thinks the American people can afford to give Europe $280,000,000 in goods next year because that would remove surpluses from this country. But he considers it sheer folly to give away that amount in cash for use by industrial competitors in strengthening themselves.

Under this plan arrangements for the purchase of American goods with the debt payments would be made for only one year. The agreement could be renewed from year to year if European governments were still in straitened circumstances and the American people were still able to give away their produce.

In formulating this fantastic scheme Mr. Prentiss seems to have had his eye on only one weak spot in the economic structure. He aims to reduce surplus stocks in this country by giving them to European debtors. In so doing he would stimulate unnatural activity in American agricultural and industrial plants for a short period. Then the outlet would be cut off suddenly, and the surplus production would doubtless cause another period of price deflation in the United States.

No relief would be given to taxpayers, because the money received from Europe would have to be used to pay American producers for goods to be given away. In other words, taxpayers would be asked to furnish a direct subsidy to overproducing industries so that they could postpone the day when output must be more carefully balanced with the demands of consumers.

From the European point of view this arrangement would not be any more satisfactory. The debtor nations are even more distressed by unemployment and stagnant business than is the United States. They would certainly look with alarm upon any proposal that Uncle Sam dump upon their markets $280,000,000 worth of American goods above the normal demand. The effect of such a gift might be demoralizing to their domestic industries. Efforts would be made by each country to purchase only non-competitive American products; even so, an abnormal flow of free goods from the United States would create crises in other parts of the world that might be far more disturbing than payment of the war debts in gold.

TANGIBLE BETTERMENTS.

The studied caution with which confirmed pessimists grudgingly admit that a better sentiment is growing in this country is conservative, to say the least. On every hand real improvement is manifest, and it is as absurd to attempt to ignore it as it is to pretend that it is a synthetic spurt of prosperity manufactured for political propaganda purposes.

If the present revival had been confined to the stock market there might have been some slight excuse for suspecting that the upward movement had been engineered, but even that development has already had a wide effect for good. The increased values of stocks and bonds runs into many billions. The purchasers have come from all over the United States as well as from European countries, and a very large proportion of them have bought in small lots, not for speculation, but as investments, many securities being paid for with hoarded cash.

Benefits from the doubling in value of securities are by no means limited to the issuing companies or individual holders. Great blocks of stocks and bonds form the back-logs of safety behind insurance companies and savings banks, adding to their resources and thus releasing loanable funds for industry and agriculture. The borrower whose stock was up as collateral and who was constantly pressed for more security is now relieved of that necessity, and often he is in the reverse position of being able to borrow more.

It is no longer necessary to speak of business improvement in mere terms of confidence and future hopes. The news columns every morning are replete with specific evidences of reemployment, trade expansion and enlarged plans in almost every line of endeavor. The Department of Commerce and the conservative commercial agencies echo reports from widespread sources that the new spirit of confidence is being translated into better buying and greater activity.

The slow rise of commodity prices, the continued increase in car loadings, the slight upturn at last even in the steel industry, are not signs that accompany a false start. They give evidence that the bottom of the depression has been left behind and the ascent to recovery begun. Great corporations announce buying programs running into many millions. This example is being followed by thousands of manufacturers and jobbers. Buying raw materials is inevitable as soon as a rising market has set in. The country has consumed faster than it has produced, in spite of the general habit of wearing old clothes and driving old automobiles. The needs of 125,000,000 individuals must now be supplied. The business concerns which have the courage to get busy first will get the business.

Nothing that the American Legion can do or say will prevent the American people from taking care of disabled veterans.

Admiral Josephus Daniels told the Legion to fight waste, but he didn't suggest that the bonus would be the biggest waste of all.

The new treaty with Haiti makes the United States independent at last.

CHANGES IN CUBA

From the Heraldo de Cuba.

We are always pleased to present authoritative foreign opinions regarding the economic evolution forced upon the Cuban nation by its internal crisis and by the reactions of the world depression. Today we desire to devote brief reference to the opinions of Mr. R. C. Brooks, chief of the Latin-American division of the Department of Commerce in Washington.

This functionary understands that the transcendental changes that have occurred in the mercantile relations of our country in common with the rest of the world, and principally, of course, with the United States, must be considered as permanent rather than temporary. In brief Mr. Brooks shows that an intense campaign has been waged to produce from Cuban soil a greater proportion of the articles of subsistence that formerly were in great measure imported from other nations.

This observer, it is satisfactory to relate, says that the result of this logical movement, to which we have devoted our energies, has been successful. The development of industries to utilize agricultural products of various kinds has begun to produce many articles formerly bought abroad, while also greater effort is being made to exploit the mineral resources of the island. This commentator points out the transformation in our economic life that has been caused by the decline of the sugar industry. When it brought in great returns, they were spent abroad for foodstuffs. With the great fall in sugar, Mr. Brooks says, the alternative for Cuba was to raise its own food or go hungry.

In this situation, Mr. Brooks points out, President Machado gave his assistance to a general program of diversification of agricultural products. How effective this has been is shown by the figures of a few years ago, when the republic bought $60,976,000 in foreign foodstuffs, while in 1931 this figure was reduced to $39,234,000. The one-crop system may be considered as having been discarded forever in Cuba. The completion of the central highway now makes it possible to bring large quantities of fruits, vegetables and live stock to Havana.

The new customs regulations have also forced American manufacturers to establish branch plants in Cuba. In the future, according to Mr. Brooks, the greater part of the exports of the United States to Cuba will be machinery for manufacturing plants and articles other than food. We have presented enough to show a commendable appreciation of the constructive energy of the Cuban people and government in the face of the grave world crisis.

The Unhappy Warriors.

POST HASTE

Be fair and grant the American Legion the influence its numbers deserve. The total membership represents 2 per cent of American voters.

Also for figuring purposes today, Maine's strength in the electoral college will be less than 1½ per cent of the total vote.

It probably will be a long time before Portland, Oreg., and Portland, Me., latitudical twins, but a continent apart, again divide the limelight on the same day.

Incidentally what shall the sentence be for any one who complains about this weather?

Gov. Roosevelt might swing around through Texas on his way West and see what has become of his lost running-mate, or is he going to let him impersonate the forgotten man?

No November voter can escape consideration of this question: Shall I help order a suspension of measures that are bringing about a gradual improvement of business, and demand that they be replaced by experiments to begin some time next year?

The market rejoices that U. S. Steel's backlog of orders stopped dropping for the first time in 17 months. This is the age of relativity.

The party managers are hard pressed this year to collect funds for current expenses, and the radio just won't run without current.

It seemed for a time as though Old Man Business didn't want to be rescued from the slough of Despond, but credit life-preservers got him afloat, and higher prices entice him to resume operations at the old stand.

It is charged that banks are using R. F. C. funds to buy securities rather than making industrial loans. This is more important than the bonus army.

Little two-for-one bankrupts must feel cheap over Ivar Kreuger's ability to fail owing $12,000,000 for every one of his $17,000,000 assets.

It seems that Gotham's former mayor just couldn't bear to see his own stock declining while New York bonds were rising.

The United States has begun to realize that getting back home trade is ten times as important as recovering lost exports.

Hogs have been flying high for some time and now even pig iron is soaring.

Chancellor von Papen tagged the Reichstag, but it didn't believe it was out.

FRIENDS.

When the long race is run
And all the tasks are done
Men find that peace depends
Not on the goals attained
Or the high fortunes gained,
But on good friends.

Laughter and song and mirth
And the rich joys of earth
No mortal here attend.
Unless with him each day
'Neath sunny skies or gray
Walks a true friend.

Pride, pomp and power of place
Lack that consoling grace
Which soothes and mends
Heartache and sorrow's pain
Who weeps shall smile again
If he has friends.

Though on a golden throne,
He, who must dwell alone,
Time sadly spends,
All that makes life complete,
All that makes memories sweet,
Comes from our friends.

When One Guest Steals a Hotel Towel the Cost Is Added to Another's Bill.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

GETTING a living by means of crime requires neither intelligence nor bravery.

Any of us could "stick up" the ordinary citizen. It isn't a dangerous business. All that a man has he will give for his life, and when a gun is pointed at his ribs he will surrender his earnings without a struggle.

Fleecing the unwary is equally simple. Anybody can do it. Merely pose as an honest man until you have won the victim's confidence and then trick him. Little wit is required. The most stupid person can rob one who trusts him.

The only equipment required for crime is a determination not to work, contempt for the rights of others and complete freedom from any taint of honor, justice, fair play, compassion and common decency.

Why do ordinary men, hard driven by Fate, sweat for their bread when crime offers such easy rewards?

Because, you say, they dread disgrace and jail. But police can't enforce laws against the public will. Laws are effective because people are willing to observe them.

Ordinary men obey the law because they desire peace and security, because they realize that rules are necessary and because they have an inborn sense of justice and fair play.

By obeying the law you accept a handicap. You doom yourself to work for a living. And the criminal has an advantage because he refuses to accept the handicap of rules.

Anybody could win by cheating. In baseball, football, tennis, cards or any other game the cheat could win every time. Let him lie, sneak or disregard the rules and no honest player could defeat him.

You despise the cheat. Why, then, do you make a hero of the criminal?

He also wins by cheating, and he wins from you whether you realize it or not.

His gains are loss to honest people and are added to the price of everything you buy. You pay heavy taxes to defray the cost of running him down, proving his guilt and supporting him in prison. Whether he is free or in jail, you work for him.

Do you enjoy contributing part of your earnings to support cheats who live without labor by breaking the rules you must obey?

When will you learn to despise criminals as you despise other cheats?

Other cheats would flourish too if people admired their smartness and their courage.

Bonus As a Campaign Issue.

New York Times.

The issue of immediate payment of the bonus has been thrust unexpectedly into the presidential election. Mr. Hoover has made his position known, and will not change it. Many impatient and angry veterans have threatened to punish him at the polls. The implication is that a great multitude of former soldiers will for this reason alone support Gov. Roosevelt. But it is inconceivable that he could accept their votes on the supposition that he would be less firm than the President against their impossible demands, or would defend less stoutly the national credit which would be imperiled by granting them. Mr. Roosevelt can not be willing by silence even to appear to consent to anything like a tacit pledge to the veterans which he could not safely or honorably carry out. At an early day, and the earlier the better, he will doubtless make it clear to the public that he will have neither part nor lot in such a needless and profligate use of the public funds as would be involved in immediate payment to the veterans of a debt not due them by law until thirteen years from now.

Opposition to Seaway.

Baltimore Sun.

The maritime conference held in this city yesterday, which was attended by representatives of five Eastern seaboard cities, was called to discuss, among other things, the attitude to be adopted toward the construction of the St. Lawrence seaway, to which serious opposition is developing.

There is objection to it in New York, because of its effects upon the $200,000,000 barge canal of that State and for other reasons. Chicago and other cities in the Middle West are concerned over water diversion from the Great Lakes. The railroads are deeply affected by the prospect of inroads upon rail traffic, and those sections of the country which could hope for no benefits at all from development of the St. Lawrence, but which will help pay the bill, are to be heard from. There is need of much more authoritative information than has been had as to the fundamental soundness of the proposal and its ultimate cost.

Get Out the Vote!

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The "get-out-the-vote" movement started by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce is one which all candidates and parties can approve. Its goal is 50,000,000 votes in the coming national election. The immediate objective is the obtaining of pledges from 5,000,000 young men and women who have come of age since 1928.

About 37,000,000 votes were cast four years ago. In many States fewer than 50 per cent of the qualified voters went to the polls. In Germany, England and many other countries the percentage of those voting is far higher than in the United States.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Congress Will Fall Over Itself in Haste to Grant the Demands of Veterans, Says Mr. Beane.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Lawrence Sullivan's feelings got the better of his critical judgment when he made the following appraisal of the American Legion on the eve of its national convention:

> By its own deliberate choice, the American Legion goes on trial this week. The annual convention at Portland, Oreg., is to be both the prosecution and the defense. The American public looks on with quiet dignity in the role of judge and jury. It is entirely possible that in view of the present state of public sentiment regarding taxation and governmental economy, new demands for bonus money would unleash a storm of public indignation to sweep C. O. D. patrioteering from the land.

Mr. Sullivan should read up on a little American history. For 40 years the veterans of the Civil War controlled Congress and dictated legislation with uniform success, although they were only a handful compared with the soldiers of the World War. What leads him to believe that politicians have changed any since, or will flout the wishes of the 20,000,000 voters represented by the veterans, their families, relatives and friends? The shade of the Hon. Cyrus A. Sulloway could make some eloquent comment.

As for a challenge to the American people, the former soldiers would like nothing better. Most of their critics were too old or too young to fight in 1917-18 and as with Horace Greeley, most of their fighting since for the welfare of America has been done with their pens or typewriters. The veterans in 1932 are simply taking a leaf from the book of the Army of 1865. If they become articulate, and present their demands to Congress with a united front, Congress will fall over itself in its haste to grant them. Its members know only too well what happens to senators and representatives when the legion makes a fight against them in their home sectors. In a few years, the veterans could mow down every legislator who voted against their program.

Those who stayed at home and drew high wages, waved the flag, bought Liberty bonds, cheered the departing draftees and then calmly took over the jobs they had left, are going to pay the bill, sooner or later, however loudly they squawk or however angrily they declaim that patriotism has been turned into a racket. And they might as well reconcile themselves to the prospect and devote their energies toward making sure that the United States never engages in another war.

A. S. BEANE.

Protests Against Mollycoddling of Convicts in Sing Sing—European Crime Prevention Cited.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note that Sing Sing is again advertising its attractions and resort recreations for criminals and that the press has given front page publicity to its pleasures and delights. A coach, it seems, from celebrated Notre Dame, has now been engaged to instruct the prisoners in football.

Many of us have doubtless hoped that after his last experience with prison football, the over-solicitous warden of Sing Sing might see the light—but his case seems to be hopeless. Of all the saddening comic opera performances off stage, his football game last year (in which he put policemen and criminals on equal terms as contestants) is the most shameful and farcical. The imagination of Gilbert and Sullivan never surpassed that. The absurdities of the "Pirates of Penzance" sink into insignificance.

But, while these absurdities in the handling of the gangster are both a source of mirth and amazement (particularly to our British friends, who still make use of the whipping post for their hold-up men and are, therefore, remarkably successful in suppressing such crimes) it is instead a most serious matter for us. Advertising mild treatment to prisoners and sob stories over released prisoners from jails is not a way to suppress crime.

Some say the American people will be "lawless any way." Many of us will not consent to this impression. Criminals will have just as much of a fear of God under their skins in America as in any other country, if we will start in and make a business of repressing crime by the stern measures in Great Britain, and on the Continent.

Even brigandage in Sicily, which no one in the world thought could be repressed, has been destroyed. The methods of its destruction need not be used here, but the criminal must learn to fear the penalty of the courts, and the execution of punishment.

"Uncle John's" Mighty Stroke in Golf—Believe It or Not.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some ten or so years ago Mr. J. B. Coles ("Uncle John") Tappan, than whom there is no more enthusiastic and pleasant "early eighty" golfer either as opponent or partner, was playing the old pond hole at the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove, Long Island. The stakes were tremendous, two bits a hole, with special, even larger rewards for birdies and eagles. "Uncle John" offered each member of the foursome 10 cents for the privilege of playing his veteran baffy-spoon from the ladies' tee, announcing that he could then hole out in one and he did.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

(Being a letter to one of the colleges, which have banned radio reports of football games this year.)

GENTLEMEN: I see by the newspapers that you have gone anti-microphone in your stadium this fall on the ground that radio broadcasts keep fans away and cut down your revenue, and I am taking my pen in hand to make you a proposition, which will solve the problem. My idea is that football games should have a sponsor just like philharmonic concerts, cigarettes, horseradish, Ed Wynn and other necessities of radio life. Are you listening?

* * * *

My corporation, the Raccoon Coat, Steamer Robe, Aspirin Tablet & Folding Pocket Flask Corporation of North America, Inc., would be glad to act as such a sponsor, paying your athletic association a small sum per football game.

* * * *

The Raccoon Coat, Steamer Robe, Aspirin Tablet & Folding Pocket Flask Corporation of North America, Inc., will, in cooperation with the radio companies, guarantee you a splendid presentation of your football games to the unseen audience, sending every touchdown into a million homes and giving the varsity eleven a chance to do its stuff over a national network.

* * * *

We will also guarantee to report 50 per cent of the plays correctly, which will be at least 35 per cent better than has been done over the radio in the past, and to pay more attention to the football game and less to the airplanes overhead, &c., which will be a great break for the listening public.

* * * *

The advantage which the Raccoon Coat, Steamer Robe, Aspirin Tablet & Folding Pocket Flask Corporation of North America, Inc., will get through the arrangement will be the advertising of its products. We believe that every man who listens to a football game over the radio is a potential cash customer. Ultimately he will kick his radio set into the open fireplace and buy tickets to the game. And once a man attends a football game in person he is in the market for a raccoon coat, a steamer robe, some aspirin tablets and a folding pocket flask. (The pocket flask is almost compulsory.)

* * * *

Our announcer will deliver a short talk on our products just before the game, explaining that the two varsity teams are trotting onto the field under our auspices. He will then describe the game, stopping between injuries to say a few words about our goods and maybe to announce a $5,000 puzzle contest.

* * * *

Between the halves we will present Kate Smith, Rudy Vallee, Guy Lombardo, Burns and Allen and the Boswell Sisters, and immediately after the game we will give the correct time, weather forecast, closing market prices, Lowell Thomas news summary and talks by Father Coughlin and Ben Bernie.

* * * *

I am sure our presentation will put American football over in a big way and be of mutual advantage to us. Trusting that I may hear favorably from you and call to sign the necessary contracts, I am, yours sincerely,
ELMER TWITCHELL, President.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

WORK of arranging the fall schedule of intercollegiate football broadcasts has begun, following the announcement on Saturday that the Eastern Intercollegiate Association had agreed that each school should decide for itself whether or not to permit broadcasting.

It is believed that most of the large Eastern institutions will permit the broadcasting of games, therefore, this year's schedule should be as interesting to the listeners in this section as that carried out last year.

Ben Bernie and his Blue Ribbon Orchestra will be heard in the first of a new series of programs over WRC at 8 o'clock tonight.

GOV. JOHN GARLAND POLLARD of Virginia will speak over WRC today in a special program in connection with the first public showing of the gardens of Nemours, in Delaware, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Irenee du Pont.

The broadcast, which will be heard at 3:45 p. m., will be presented under the auspices of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation. The public showing of Nemours has been arranged for the benefit of Stratford Hall, in Westmoreland County, Va., birthplace of Robert E. Lee, Lighthorse Harry Lee and other members of that famous family.

"The Motor Parkway Murder" is the title of the police case dramatization which will be presented during the Lucky Strike Dance Hour (WRC, 9 o'clock) tonight. Jack Denny and his orchestra will contribute dance melodies to the hour.

A celebration of the anniversary of the birth of Francois Joseph Paul de Grasse will be broadcast by WRC at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Jules Henri, charge d'affaires of the French Embassy, will pay a tribute to his memory. The United States Marine Band, directed by Capt. Taylor Branson, will play.

ROSA LOW, soprano, formerly of the Philadelphia and Washington Civic Opera Companies, will be heard with Cesare Sodero and a concert orchestra over WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Rafaelo Diaz, tenor, and Phillip Frank, violinist, also will appear as guests. Frank is a pupil of Efrem Zimbalist.

Tess Gardella, known to radio, the stage and talking pictures as "Aunt Jemima," will return to the air in a new series of song recitals at 1 o'clock this afternoon over WMAL. She will be accompanied by Fred Berrens and his orchestra.

The program made up entirely of selections from their various Broadway successes will be presented by Julia Sanderson and Frank Crummit during the program at 7 o'clock tonight over WRC. Four of Crummit's own songs, "Sweet Lady" from "Tangerine;" "Alice from Dallas," "My Baby Rose" and "Little Brown Road."

HIS theme song, "Marta," will introduce another group of romantic melodies sung by Arthur Tracy, "Sweet Singer of the Air," during the presentation of Chesterfield's "Music That Satisfies" (WMAL), 8 o'clock tonight. His first group will consist of "Moonlight and Roses" and "Love's Paradise," with the orchestral interlude, "Giannina Mia" from "The Firefly," by Nat Shilkret and his musicians.

The second group will include "The Peanut Vender," sung by Tracy in Spanish, and the orchestral offering of the tango, "Fate." Tracy will conclude the period with "Melisande in the Woods."

FIRST to leave the studio after the premiere of "March of Time" the other night were Director Donald Stauffer and Script-Writer Tom Everitt. They made a bee-line for bed, having slept but an hour the night before, because of last-minute preparations for the air show.

Foreign News in Brief

Paris, June 12 (A.P.).—The venerable attorney, Henri Geraud, pleaded for three-quarters of an hour today with President Albert Lebrun to spare the life of Paul Gorguloff, slayer of the late President Doumer. Gorguloff is condemned to die on the guillotine and the plea by M. Geraud was his last appeal permissible under the law. President Lebrun has the power to commute his sentence to life imprisonment.

Paris, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Gene Tunney, wife of the retired heavyweight champion, returned to the American Hospital today for treatment of an ear infection. She probably will remain there one or two days, but her condition is not serious, it was said.

Geneva, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Germany was not represented today when the technical committee of the disarmament conference budget commission resumed its sessions here. League of Nations authorities said they still hoped, however, that Germany will participate in the conference bureau meeting on September 21.

Rennes, France, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The municipal council today formally denied the existence of an autonomist movement in Brittany. Holding its first meeting since a great bas-relief at the city hall, the symbol of the union of Brittany with France in 1532, was wrecked by a bomb, the council censured perpetrators of the act.

Nanking, China, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Finance Minister T. V. Soong took occasion today to deny a report that China had informed the American, British and French governments that this country will be unable to meet obligations maturing this month. He asserted a default on the September payments had not even been considered and that chief inspectors of the salt revenue department had been instructed to pay during September the usual installments and interest on outstanding loans.

Saltzburg, Austria, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Winston Churchill, former British chancellor of the exchequer, was taken from his hotel to a hospital today with a slight case of paratyphoid. The doctor said his condition was not alarming.

Brussels, September 12 (A.P.).—The United States and most South American republics were represented at the international cocoa conference which assembled today to seek ways to increase cocoa consumption and improve production methods.

Tokyo, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The ceremony of signing a basic treaty embodying Japan's recognition of Manchukuo is scheduled for September 15 at Changchun, with Ambassador Muto representing Japan and Premier Cheng Siao-Hsu acting for Manchukuo.

Biarritz, France, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—American Vice Consul Roy McWilliams and Mrs. McWilliams were dinner guests last night of the Prince of Wales, who has been spending a vacation here. The prince will leave tomorrow night for Paris.

London, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The British Parliament is likely to reassemble October 18, nine days earlier than the date originally fixed, it was indicated in well-informed quarters here today. It was understood the new date would be fixed chiefly because of a desire to take action as early as possible on legislation giving effect to the decisions of the imperial economic conference at Ottawa.

Panama City, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Eighty feet of the Panama Canal's 300-foot channel was blocked today by slides caused by heavy rains, which precipitated another 150,000 cubic yards of earth into the cut. Shipping will not be interrupted, officials said, for the remaining 220 feet of the channel is ample to handle the traffic.

Philosophical Society Meets Today.

Prof. Edward E. Richardson will discuss "The Dynamic of Ideas" at a meeting of the Society for Philosophical Inquiry at 4:45 p. m. this afternoon at the National Museum.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 2:10 p. m. to 4:05 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to noon, and from 5 p. m. to 6:15 p. m.

September 13 does not threaten any untoward features, in spite of the bad luck attributed to the thirteenth. On the contrary, the Stars foretell a day exceptionally full of agreeable surprises. Influences will be at work which will engender a spirit of optimism, and a will to bend circumstances and conditions to your personal advantage.

Children born on this September 13 will be bright, attractive youngsters and will develop, as the years go by, into clean-cut men and women. The future holds no spectacular rewards in store for them. They are assured, however, successful careers, and useful ones, and their resilliency will enable them to withstand the disappointments that life always brings in its wake.

Born on September 13, you have no reason to complain of the cards dealt you, and failure will be your portion only if you fail to play them intelligently. You are endowed with a degree of intelligence far above the average; you possess a strong and an attractive personality; your disposition is tolerant and kind. These gifts of nature, rightly used, spell success as well as happiness. If you have not secured either the one or the other, the reason lies in the fact that you trade on, and do not exploit, your talents.

You are disposed to be indolent, and too careless of detail; you forget that "many mickles make a muckle;" you leave too much to others, and do too little yourself. On the other hand, it can not be gainsaid that, once you are faced with a knotty problem, you never leave it until the solution is found. Your efforts are spasmodic and not continuous. Thought persistency is evident; persistency in action is frequently lacking.

You are quick emotional, and although you endeavor to suppress dsplay, the efforts you make are not successful; any one of your intimates can tell what and how you feel. As a marriage-partner, you will be in every sense of the word, desirable, as the intimacy of the connubial state will soon reveal to your partner the charm of your character, and the capacity of your love.

Successful people born on September 13:

Jesse L. Lasky, motion pictures.
Gen. Pershing, U. S. Army.
Theodore Roosevelt, jr., former Assistant Secretary of Navy, present governor of Philippine Islands.
Anna M. Lea (Merriat), artist.
Maud Ballington Booth, Philanthropist.
Alice B. Haven, "Cousin Alice," author.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

435.

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

MR. LEVIS R. AYRES, of Philadelphia, is recognized as one the most brilliant Bridge players in that great center of brilliant Bridge. With Mrs. Jay S. Jones, also of Philadelphia, he won the National Mixed Pair Championship at Duplicate Contract at Asbury Park in 1931.

Mr. Ayres is a sound bidder, having a keen appreciation of the cards he holds, and shining particularly in the play of difficult hands. In the hand below he detected a squeeze for a Grand Slam before a card was played from the Dummy or closed hand.

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ A 7 ♡ K Q 8 4 2 ◇ A K J 9 ♣ J 2
♠ Q 9 8 6 3 2 ♡ 5 3 ◇ 2 ♣ A Q 10 8	N W E S	♠ J 5 ♡ 10 9 7 ◇ 10 7 5 ♣ 9 7 6 5 4
	♠ K 10 4 ♡ A J 6 ◇ Q 8 6 4 3 ♣ K 3

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1NT(1)	2♠(2)	3♠(3)	Pass
3NT(4)	Pass	6NT(5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) A minimum Opening bid. Mr. Ayres feels that inasumch as his hand is a minimum, he cannot shade the requirements as to biddability and bid a diamond, in which, of course, the Slam contract is quite easy.

(2) A bad bid. West is vulnerable and risks a considerable set.

(3) A Forcing bid. Partner may not drop the bidding until game is reached.

(4) Showing that the Opening bid was a minimum.

(5) North knows that the combined hands hold not less than 6½ honor-tricks. In view of the fact that his partner has already shown an inclination to drop the bidding, he does not dare to show either of his biddable suits.

West opened the spade 6, and the Dummy was exposed on the table. Mr. Ayres knew that West's vulnerable Jump Overcall had been made by an experienced and usually sound player. The lead indicated that there was one spade higher than the 6 in the East hand. Quite probably that card was the spade Knave. From his own cards and those in Dummy, Mr. Ayres could see that the only high cards in the West hand in any other suit than spades must be the Ace-Queen of clubs. So reasoned, he saw that the first trick must be taken with the Ace, in order to arrive at the following situation after five diamonds and four hearts had been taken:

	♠ 7 ♡ 2 ◇ — ♣ J
♠ Q 9 ♡ — ◇ — ♣ A	N W E S	♠ — ♡ — ◇ — ♣ 9 7 6
	♠ K 10 ♡ — ◇ — ♣ K

Dummy's last heart was led, and South discarded the club King. West, of course, could not defend the hand any longer. To discard the club Ace established the Knave in Dummy, and to discard a spade was equally fatal.

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

West—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A 8 ♡ K J 9 ◇ 8 2 ♣ A 10 9 7 4 2
♠ Q 7 5 ♡ 10 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 ◇ 6 4 ♣ —	N W E S	♠ J 2 ♡ A Q ◇ A K J 10 9 7 ♣ J 5 3
	♠ K 10 9 6 4 3 ♡ — ◇ Q 5 3 ♣ K Q 8 6

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

PUNCH DRUNK.

ALTHOUGH Webster and Mencken fail to give the term punch drunk in their books, people seem to know about it. Prize fighters talk about it, the sporting columns of the newspapers refer to it, and at least one story on the subject has appeared in a magazine.

When the editor of this health column heard of the disease, well known to so many of the laity, he jumped to the conclusion that punch drunk was the fighter's name for temporary grogginess due to a hard blow. While that condition is not a drunk, in the sense of an alcohol or other drug drunk, yet it has some points of resemblance. The prize fighter who is dazed, but not knocked out, by a hard punch has poor control of his muscles, poor coordination, and poor orientation—in each case much like the effects of acute alcoholism. To this condition the term punch drunk could be applied with some logic.

However, when the prize fighter says a man is punch drunk he means that he has become insane in the course of a hard fighting career. The prize fighting fraternity think it is the result of being hit in the head often and hard. When asked for proof they will tell you of a half-dozen prize fighters who have been thought to be mentally irresponsible at the end of their fighting careers, some of whom have ended up in insane asylums.

One physician, who was a prize fighter for several years in his youth, thought the trouble began as a disorder of the middle ear and extended to the brain. He said old prize fighters were generally rather deaf.

It is known that a person who has had a sunstroke is liable to develop a form of meningitis which causes him to have persistent headaches and, some times, to be peculiar. Death results eventually.

If this can happen as the result of one sunstroke why could not it, or something like it, follow repeated, hard mauling of the head? The answer is that the symptoms of meningitis following sunstroke and the autopsy findings are well known, but no one has ever reported such symptoms in punch drunk, nor have there been any autopsy reports of such a pathology.

The story in the American Mercury, published last year, about a supposed punch drunk, described a type of insanity that a specialist would not give that name to. A young man, who may have been a precox case, or a high grade moron, who learned to be a prize fighter, handled himself pretty well in many fights, was often mauled badly, but whose worst wallop was that which his wife gave him when she turned gold digger, took his money, and ran away with another man. Our poor prize fighter had but a few ounces of brains and that small supply was addled by what he went through. A better diagnosis would have been—dementia precox with a breakdown due to domestic trials.

One man who spent years in the ring said the profession used the term as a way to let down easy those members who had lost their minds. They were not especially interested in the real cause. To charge it to hard fighting served very well so far as they were concerned, and that is about the fact. I don't know that any unusual number of fighters become insane. But if they do there is a better explanation than the head punches they get in fights. The causes lie outside of the ring instead of in it. The term should be shifted to the acute condition which now goes by the name, a groggy.

EMOTIONS OVERDONE.

A. McM. writes: What does "emotionally worn out" mean? Is it akin to nervous exhaustion?

REPLY.

The term explains itself. It is akin to nervous exhaustion. The remedy is the cultivation of indifference. If one will accept life as it comes, do the day's work as well as possible, and be indifferent to everybody and everything, recovery from "emotionally worn out" will result. Nor will it be long delayed.

HURRAH, hooray, hurr-r-r-ru for the coat dress!

Every single time I think of a coat dress I get the hurrahs. Well, not every single time I think of it, but everytime I step into one.

Because there simply isn't anything more flattering, more practical, more useful, more everything—than a coat dress. Why, it can be worn at any time at all, honestly—depending upon the material that fashions it, of course. And it is always flattering, the way it seems to lend dignity to the wearer, as well as slimness. And it seems to be just the dress to wear for almost any occasion—name me an occasion else than a formal evening when the coat dress isn't the smartest frock in the room.

The tailleur may be chic and youthful, but I prefer a coat dress with white lingerie touches any time to a tailleur. For the average figure it is so much more flattering, you know. Then the coat dress, with a separate fur piece or two and scarfs if you prefer them, or wish them for a change, is an easier thing to wear than a dress and separate coat, as well as a dressier thing to wear than a one-piece dress with the same fur trimming. Comprenez?

Hurrah for the coat dress approval of the present season!

Almost every couturiere shows velvet, chiffons and lace for the evening gowns in the new collection. Lame and crepe, satin and a variety of other fabrics are, of course, not to be overlooked, but the three fabrics I first mentioned are certainly in the lead.

Ardanse, my favorite couturiere on evening styles, shows lovely and discreete evening gowns of these fabrics, nearly always with a removable bolero or jackette or scarf effect that materially changes the formality of the gown by giving it more or less decolletage.

• • • •

How about making yourself a couple of new fall hats? Lovely ones, too, and smart ones—and stylish ones, and successful ones that will look as though you bought them on Fifth avenue or the Rue de la Paix!

Oh, yes, you can make 'em, easily. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and see. Because this leaflet tells you how to make two different kinds of daytime berets, out of ribbons, and one little semiformal evening hat out of velvet ribbon which is just the thing to wear to the cinema, or to complete the Sunday night frock which is becoming more and more important. Berets are important—ribbons are important, and it is important for you to have a new fall hat! So send for this leaflet and get to work!

• • • •

'Nif you don't think ribbon is important, look at the adorable turban I sketched for you today, made of red velvet ribbon! The front and back of the hat itself are bows of the ribbon, and the loops of the bows descend rather low to make a kind of brim. This hat was seen in Paris, and created quite a stir—do you wonder?

• • • •

Coats that combine cloth and fiat fur are smarter than ever—and rather difficult to design, too. That's why Heim, of Paris, is about the only couturier who makes them—he's the only one who can! Look at the clever bodice of flat black galliac on the black cloth coat I illustrated for you today. And see how the cravat ties in a scarf effect—it's of the fur, and can be worn on some other coat or tailleur if you wish, since it is separate. The coat collar is quite finished without it, too.

Au revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

WE ARE sailing a second day on the sea of sleep, feeling that the subject is very closely allied to health and even more so to beauty; that sound sleep, that a good night's rest can do wonders in putting an end to ills, aches and pains, and serve to build up one's health resistance, smiles and spirits. An excellent way to start tomorrow's day right, is to get enough sound sleep tonight.

Very often health and beauty authorities are asked, "What is the best position to sleep in?" Science recently discovered that the average human runs a gamut of a dozen different positions during a single night's sleep and that this, far from being bad, is nature's way of resting the body part by part. So even if you "sleep like a log" and wake up in the same position you were in when you first "hit the hay," there's no way of knowing that you didn't turn and twist in the interim—and, no matter.

Planning for Sleep.

And now to our promise to plan for sleep. Here are some good rules to follow and it doesn't matter what order you plan them in, so long as you take care of all of them. But please leave one thing out, and that is worry. Don't take it to bed with you and don't rehearse the day's many little (or big) occurrences. Put even the slightest excitement as far from your mind as possible. Think only relaxing thoughts, or better, none at all. Most people find a lukewarm (not hot) bath conducive to sleep. Warm milk or a glass of fruit juice sipped before retiring is a popular nightcap. A good book with a not-too-exciting or fast moving plot may help induce a pleasant state of drowsiness.

Noise is perhaps the biggest disturbance in America's sleep. Here's a vote in favor of sound-proof walls, windows and doors. What's the use of shutting off one's own radio when the neighbor's is going full blast? Ten bells is the courteous time to call a halt.

Ready for sleep. Are your springs comfortable, boasting many coils? And the mattress in good "shape," not bunched or too tightly packed, no hills, valleys and lop-sided effects? The size of the bed is important too, plenty long and at least a yard and three inches wide. Bed linens should not be skimpy, nor blanket or coverlets. Tuck the sheet covering the mattress smoothly and tightly over all corners, but leave the top coverings loose enough to permit various position changes of the body.

High colors such as red, orange and bright yellow should be avoided in the bedroom. So should highly polished furniture. Dull colors, particularly the sea shades, blue and green, are more conducive to sound sleep. Proper ventilation is important. But everyone knows that. Proper temperature is important, too, not too warm or too cold, about 68 degrees is right.

"Check and double check" all of the above. Do a few simple exercises. Then into bed. Relax luxuriously. Head to toe. Let go. Breathe deeply. And—sweet sleep.

My bulletin called "Beauty Schedule" will tell you how to start and end the day right. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Department of Agriculture.)

Tuna, while not the cheapest of the canned fish, is a good choice when you want a change in the menu. You can buy it practically everywhere and it has the same merit as other canned goods—it can be stored until wanted.

Most people use canned tuna fish in salads of various kinds—just as it is, on a bed of lettuce, or as jellied fish salad, or in stuffed tomato salad. The last is particularly good if the filling for the hollowed out tomatoes is made of a combination of chopped cucumber, chopped celery, and tuna fish, seasoned with dressing. The oil drained from the fish can be mixed with the salad, and with lemon juice no other dressing is needed.

Tuna fish sandwiches, both with and without lettuce and mayonnaise, are usually liked. Canapes or appetizers are sometimes made by spreading minced seasoned tuna on rounds of toast or bread or slices of tomato. All salads, sandwiches and appetizers in which fish is used should be prepared just a short time before they are to be eaten, and should be kept in the refrigerator.

Cooked dishes made with tuna fish include scalloped tuna, tuna loaf (like salmon loaf), fish timbales, tuna and potato puff, and creamed tuna on toast. For all of these the canned fish is drained of extra oil or liquor and picked apart with a fork.

There are four species of tuna packed in this country. The albacore, known as the longfish, brings the best price. It is almost universally labeled and known as "white meat tuna." The bluefish, known as the leaping tuna, and the yellowfin, have meat slightly darker in appearance than the albacore, and sell at a somewhat lower price. Striped tuna costs least. Canned tuna may or may not bear on the label the species or variety designation, but if it does the designation must be correct. Tonno, imported from the Mediterranean, is sometimes called "tunny-fish" and is not the same as American tuna. Bonita and yellowtail are not tuna. Genuine canned tuna will carry the word "tuna" somewhere on the label.

IN DEPTHS OF DESPAIR

MRS. MARY JONES lives in New England. Every month was a nightmare to her. Her letter says, "I suffered periodical pains through my head, backache and female weakness."

She tried everything. Visited clinics. Nothing helped her. Finally she gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial . . . scarcely hoping it would succeed where more expensive things had failed.

But she was surprised. Through its tonic action, it built up her health . . . lessened her pain. She says, "My backache is completely relieved."

VOTERS WOULD HELP BALL'S PROSECUTOR

Organized Group in Arlington Urges Another Assistant for L. W. Douglas.

A resolution asking that Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas be given added assistance in the further prosecution of the cases of former County Treasurer E. Wade Ball, indicted for alleged shortages in the accounts of his office, was unanimously adopted by the executive committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County yesterday at Ashton Heights. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation.

The committee indorsed the appointment of Frederick E. Mann as the citizen member of the finance board, and voted that a copy of these recommendations be forwarded to Judge Walter T. McCarthy with the request that he make such appointment.

Following considerable discussion as to the legality of the appointment of an assistant to the Commonwealth's attorney of the county by the county board at a salary of $150 a month, it was voted that the matter be referred to the Arlington County Civic Federation.

On motion of Mrs. Jessie Roberts, the committee went on record as being opposed to the establishment of a rendering plant at the junction of the Washington-Richmond highway and Columbia pike, or in any location in Arlington County.

Federation President Urges Women to Vote

Speaking at a meeting of the Arlington Woman's Club yesterday at Windsor Arms, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, called upon all members to exercise their right to vote.

"This is the greatest privilege given the women of this country and they should take advantage of it," she declared. "Had I the right, the person who did not exercise that right at the polls I would take it from him."

TAKOMA PARK CLERK SHORTAGE REPORTED

of $195,000, to which is added a total of $16,000 for allegedly missing cards, making a total of $211,000 which should be accounted for, while the recorded collections show only $202,000, leaving $9,000 unaccounted for under this head. The total of $13,337.35 is reduced by a fund of $527.69 which had been deposited but which was not recorded, leaving a shortage of $12,809.66, the auditor reported.

The auditor further reported: "Several hundred record or ledger cards on which were recorded accounts with taxpayers for more than $29,000 or original special assessments were missing from the files. The transactions between the town and the taxpayers which should have been represented by these cards must be rebuilt through confirmation before we can establish final responsibility of the town clerk and treasurer for special assessment funds."

Record Disappeared.

"The register of collections on account of special assessments was also missing. This record disappeared after the audit was authorized. From collateral data we determined that the town clerk and treasurer had recorded collections on account of special assessments of about $202,000 between July 1, 1927, and May 31, 1932, when such entries should have amounted to over $211,000," the report read.

The auditor reported that the day books for general taxes did not include a record of all moneys received by the clerk and treasurer and that this had been admitted by Mr. Davis at a special meeting of the town council.

"His admission was, that on at least a few occasions, moneys had been accepted during his absence by whoever was in charge of his office; had been recorded improperly in a day book maintained for the record of receipts of money on account of special assessments, and that these errors had not been corrected by him," the report said.

Tampering Declared Indicated.

"As the daybook of receipts of money on account of special assessments was never made available to us we could not verify this statement," the report said.

The auditor further stated: "Several alterations of amounts which, with other circumstances, indicate to us that tampering with the entries in these books had been resorted to in an attempt to effect a reduced liability for collected funds. We also found in connection with the abovementioned checking that many of the amounts recorded in the daybook of general taxes were in a lesser or greater amount than were credited to the accounts of the taxpayers in the register of general taxes."

In a letter to Mayor Lewton, which was read at the council meeting, J. Bond Smith, former corporation counsel, who is counsel for Mr. Davis, informed the mayor that he had not had sufficient time to study the report and that therefore Davis had nothing to say at the time except that the report was based on incomplete returns and "admittedly involves an effort by auditors unfamiliar with the records to reconstruct a number of special assessments levied over a period of years." He asked the council and the public to withhold judgment until a final and complete audit report had been presented and an opportunity to study the report and the town records had been afforded Davis and counsel.

Runaway Boy, 14, Breaks Arm in Fall From Train

Overtaken by misfortune while he was trying to reach his home in Clarendon after having run away last Thursday, Bernard Sizemore, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sizemore, is in the Warrenton Hospital suffering from a fractured arm as a result of falling from a freight train near Bealton, Va.

The story, told by his sister, Frances, yesterday is that Bernard, in company with Walter Marsh, 15, started out to see the world before school opened. Becoming separated from his chum at Charlottesville, Va., Walter returned home Saturday. He did not know what had happened to his companion. Late Saturday afternoon word reached Clarendon of the accident to Bernard.

Reports from the hospital last night say the youth is not in serious condition.

CHAMBER IN SILVER SPRING CRITICIZES WATER ARTICLES

by the federation. The present salaries should be maintained at the expense of certain scheduled physical changes in the school, it was the opinion of the federation.

Special Group Named.

A special committee composed of Charles W. Hopkins, Vinton D. Cockey, Robert Benner, E. Brooke Lee, Maj. Phil D. Poston, J. H. Cissel and Dr. L. M. Christie was appointed by Maj. Poston, president, to make a further study of the water situation and to release its findings in the name of the chamber.

Maj. Poston was reelected president. The following other officers were reelected: Dr. L. M. Christie and James H. Cissel, vice presidents; George Day, treasurer, and Horace J. Donnelly, jr., secretary; Dr. Christie, J. Donald Claggett and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, delegates to the civic federation, and John J. Dolan, George Day and Alan B. Neuman, alternates.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution reads:

September 12, 1932.

Be it resolved by the Silver Spring Chamber of Commerce at a duly called meeting of the entire membership, That we vote our strongest objection to the campaign of seven articles through which The Washington Post has, during the past ten days, attacked the water system of the Maryland suburbs of Washington.

As residents of suburban Montgomery County, we believe that there is no justification for a general attack upon the water and sewer service of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, its operation or cost, such as has just been promoted by The Washington Post.

That we are convinced that the needs of this growing section of greater Washington are adequately and safely served by the water and sewer systems of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District at a much lower cost than is enjoyed in other areas of equivalent populations and distribution of population.

Number of Consumers.

And that while we feel that it is not fair to attempt to compare the cost of the water system of the Maryland Sanitary District with that of Washington City because—

(1) Less than 1,000 water consumers reside on each four miles of pipe line in the Maryland Sanitary District, while a much larger number of water consumers are served by each mile of water pipe within the District of Columbia; and consequently the water income of the District of Columbia is larger per mile of pipe line as evidenced by the great portions of the District of Columbia covered with office, mercantile, financial, hotel and apartments buildings and row-house improvements, none of which exist on any pipe line in Montgomery County; and

(2) Further, because the United States Government directly gave to the District of Columbia water system $11,000,000 toward the total cost of $36,000,000 of the D. C. water system, in addition to the Government's annual participation in lump-sum appropriations in the District budget, and

(3) Because there is a $1,500,000 annual District of Columbia sewer maintenance cost included in the general District tax levy each year, while all such sewer maintenance cost in the Maryland sanitary district is borne as a part of the water consumption charges.

Cost Charge Denied.

Nevertheless, we believe that an adequate and acceptable supply of water is under normal conditions served to the Maryland suburbs at a cost of very nearly the equivalent of that charged in the District of Columbia.

In suburban Maryland $2.50 per month pays all cost incident to the use of 50,000 gallons of water per year and the use of the public sewerage disposal system.

We are pleased to state that the commission serves water at an initial rate of 22 cents per thousand gallons and at a minimum rate of 11 cents a thousand gallons, whereas the average charge throughout the country, for 2,838 cities and towns, are 40 cents primary and 17.5 cents minimum.

The economy of service in this Maryland suburban area is all the more marked by the fact that the commission's charge includes the cost of maintaining the sewerage system. In almost all other places the cost of sewerage service is not included in the water rate.

No Municipal Revenue.

The commission is able to furnish water and sewerage service at the above-mentioned low rates in spite of the fact that it receives no revenue from water used for municipal or fire department service. In 1,354 of the above-mentioned cities the municipalities paid the water account an average of $37.58 annually for each fire hydrant. On the same basis the commission would receive more than $86,000 per year on its approximately 2,300 fire hydrants. If the commission received this sum, it would be able to reduce its rates materially.

During June, July and August, 1931, more than 21 columns were printed in local county papers discussing from an engineering standpoint the necessity and advisability of enlarging the reservoir and pumping equipment at Burnt Mills and the need of diverting water from the Patuxent River as an additional supply for the reservoir.

This project has been delayed through the inability of smaller municipalities to market their bonds at acceptable prices, which condition effected the market for the construction bonds of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

More than six weeks ago an application was made to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purchase of the construction bonds for this project as a self-liquidating project. If the Federal Government approves this application, the subject matter will again be placed before the people of Montgomery County for approval or disapproval.

The engineering problem involved is large and difficult.

It was only when the recent drought lowered the water at the Burnt Mills reservoir to such an extent that additional chemicals were required to preserve the health standards that an objectionable taste and odor appeared in the water furnished by the local water system. Pressure trouble only resulted during the several days that water was used from the District system, due entirely to difference in elevations between Washington City and suburban Montgomery County. Neither of these conditions or facts justified the attacks appearing in The Washington Post.

Battle on Plant To Go Into Court

Citizens of Aurora Hills and Virginia Highlands Vote to Act.

Citizens of Aurora Hills and Virginia Highlands, Arlington County, in mass meeting last night unanimously voted to carry to the Arlington County Circuit Court their protest against the permit granted by the Board of Zoning Appeals to Norton & Co. for a rendering plant.

The recommendations of the special committee adopted provides that a request be made to the court for a review of the action of the zoning appeal board with a plea for a restraining order based on sections 11 and 13 of the zoning ordinance as adopted by the board of supervisors on April 26, 1930.

Fred A. Gosnell, member of the county board, voicing his strong objection to the establishment of the plant, declared that it was nothing short of a dignified abattoir, and while assurances have been given that dead animals will not be brought to the plant, it will still be objectionable in many other particulars.

SEARCH FOR FLYING FAMILY IS IN VAIN

party in the mountainous ice floes.

The Hutchinsons were forced down at 10 a. m., Eastern standard time, yesterday, off Angmagsalik, and within four hours a British steam trawler, the Lord Talbot, reached the position the plane had given and could find no trace of it.

The only chance the members of the Hutchinson family were still alive seemed to rest in possibilities that the signals they had given were confused, that they managed to reach shore or were on some drifting ice floe.

Naval Plane Follows Course.

A naval plane from a Danish cruiser attached to the Dr. Knud Rasmussen scientific expedition followed today over the course taken by the Hutchinson party. It started from Julianehaab, near the southern tip of Greenland, where the Hutchinsons took off yesterday, bound for Angmagsalik. Ernst Udet, German war ace in Greenland with a motion picture outfit, and two other pilots also were reported engaged in the search.

The trawler Lord Talbot remained in the area and it was joined today by a motorboat from a nearby base of the Pan-American Airways expedition, which is studying transatlantic air travel conditions in East Greenland. Fred S. Chapman, one of the leaders of the Pan-American party, was on the motorboat.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—George Robert Hutchinson, missing with his wife, two children and crew of four men, in his transocean airplane off Greenland, once was arrested in Philadelphia as an embezzler.

Hutchinson escaped a jail term here by being placed on probation for 25 years. Then he went into aviation and made a name for himself as a flier.

Detectives, attorneys and Hutchinson's acquaintances today recalled how numerous influential persons in this city, New York and Baltimore rallied to Hutchinson's aid to save him after his arrest for embezzling $34,200 while employed as assistant manager of the Frankford Branch of the Franklin Trust Co.

Hutchinson was arrested in January, 1925, and admitted juggling the books of the bank, now closed, and using all the money to bet on horse races, even handing over cash to a bookie while he worked at a teller's window in the uptown bank branch.

Hutchinson fled after discoverey of the shortage, but was arrested in Baltimore.

Malone Commends Ashton.

Lieut. Col. John T. Ashton, Medical Reserve Corps, has been commended by Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, Third Corps Area, U. S. A., Baltimore, for having performed exceptional service in the interest of the United States in connection with the discharge of his duties as a member of the Alexandria school board in matters pertaining to the administration of two Government-aided high schools in Alexandria.

Receipts for the calendar year of 1931 of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission totaled $1,645,438.55, while its disbursements amounted to $1,503,694.95, according to an audit recently completed by Edmund R. Stewart, State auditor.

An increase of $141,753.60 was recorded in cash balances for 1931 against that for the previous year. The total amount in the Commission's various funds at the end of the year was $575,677.30.

The largest revenues were accrued from front-foot benefit charges and penalties, of which twice as much was collected from Montgomery County as from Prince Georges. The former county netted $263,425.85, and the latter $130,315.81.

Water service charges produced $219,282.13, while the sanitary district tax netted $68,118.83. Interest on bank deposits, sinking fund investments, discounts and purchases and miscellaneous receipts totaled $42,179.68.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ONE of the stage's top notch lady luminaries of a few years ago—an entertainer who was a star when Al Jolson was still doing specialties in the olio—comes out of retirement to take her place on the vaudeville bill at Loew's Fox Theater for the week beginning Friday.

Belle Blanche.

She is 39 now—although I do not remember having seen her likeness in any of those big ads admitting it—and is coming back to the stage for good and sufficient reason. But to go back a bit.

At the age of 22, Belle Blanche retired from a successful stage career to marry Larry Cohn, wealthy New York broker. They had two country houses—one beautiful estate near South Orange, N. J.; another on the seashore at Deal. Many servants, necessarily, were in their employ and a fleet of high-powered cars constantly at their disposal. A stable of thoroughbreds and a kennel of blooded dogs testified to their devotion to sports. Furthermore, they maintained an elaborate apartment on Central Park West, where they entertained extensively and lavishly. Then, to paraphrase Joe Penner, came the crash!

The stock market debacle literally wiped out the fortune Larry Cohn had built so painstakingly since his marriage to Miss Blanche—expunged it as completely as the exaggerated highs that had been chalked up on the board for so long that nobody believed they ever would come down. He sold his seat on the stock exchange last year.

So Larry Cohn went back to a desk and Belle Blanche came back to the stage. It was quite a stir she created with her character impersonations and mimetic impressions at Loew's State Theater on Broadway last week.

Included in her repertoire are impersonations of Ethel Barrymore and Marie Dressler, which she is reputed to do as well as her imitation of Caruso, so famous in the old days. Oscar Hammerstein, the elder, that lamented genius of the two-a-day, considered her a find and made it possible for her to make a scad of money—for $1,200 and $1,500 a week was big money 20 years ago, and still is, for the matter of that.

When Miss Blanche bid good-by to Broadway, she was the star of George M. Cohan's "Hello, Broadway," at the Astor Theater, and now that she's coming back, many an old-timer will be glad of the opportunity to change that title to "Hello, Belle!"

Ah, da, dada. Wappah, pah, pah. Doo, doo, dadoo—and so on, clear through the second chorus of the song!

It doesn't seem to make much sense when you try to read it as a sentence in English, but it makes a world of difference in a song when Adelaide Hall sings what those words make a feeble attempt to spell out. This "wah, pah, pah" business is her own invention. Remember "I Must Have That Man," from "Blackbirds?"

Whether you do or not, Miss Hall, star of the show and currently a feature of the vaudeville bill at the Earle Theater, was trying to rehearse the song for Lew Leslie, the producer, without having, learned the lyrics. For purposes of timing the number, she went through the tune anyway, supplying her own explosive verbal rhythms as she went along—something after the manner of the "doo, doo, dadoo" thing. The effect, to say the least, was just a little bit weird, especially when she sang the crazy "scat" words a little off key, drew them out and now and again skipped a note in order to hang onto the next one.

As a matter of fact, it was so weird that they kept it in, even after the lyrics were learned letter perfect. And that's why scat choruses were born!

Incidentally, Adelaide Hall is generally accepted as the legitimate successor of the late Florence Mills—one of the most gifted artistes of her race the stage has known. She was born in Brooklyn, was inspired to a stage career by the renown of her distant relative, Ada Overton Walker, probably the greatest of all colored female performers, joined the chorus of "Shuffle Along," attracted the attention of Noble Sissle, was featured in "Running Wild" and starred in "Blackbirds"—which only serves as added evidence that Lew Leslie makes very few mistakes!

Having taken a peek at the picture and so accumulated a quick notion of its great potentialities as swell entertainment, the management of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater is disinclined to keep the laugh-seeking public waiting for the treat any longer than is necessary. So it hastens to announce that this screen version of one of the liveliest comedies seen on the Washington stage last season will be given a midnight preview presentation on Thursday, September 15, beginning at 11:30 p. m.

This, you will recall, was the first of the columnist plays, written by Forrest Wilson and Manuel Seff, and had Roger Pryor in the stellar role. The screen version has Lee Tracy in the Pryor part—made to order for him, and don't let any one tell you different!—supported by Mary Brian, Ruth Donnelly, Dick Powell, Ned Sparks, Emma Dunn and numerous others.

Now, at last, we are to have an opportunity to learn what it is that is said when Africa really speaks. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who have made their home in the heart of the dark continent for the past twenty years or so, are said to have had the courage, for the first time in the history of the cinema, to be content with recording only the actual sounds of the jungle and to present them to the American public without any "doctoring" for the sake of added impressiveness and inaccuracy. This being so, the release of "Congorilla," to be seen at the Columbia beginning Friday, must have been bad news for a lot of the "explorers" who have gone before!

So I went to Loew's Fox and watched the act presented by Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, whose exact weight I do not pretend to know, but who must tip that old beam up to something 'way over the other side of a couple of Cwt. Then I went to the Earle and watched Billy House, who admits—through the publicity department—to a gross tonnage of 265 pounds.

And now I know what they mean by "broad humor!"

BANDITS TAKE HEAVY TOLL IN MANCHURIA

26 Slain in Four Train Raids; Hundreds Are Kidnaped, Including Foreigners.

Schwangchengpu, Manchuria, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—At least 26 persons were killed in four train wrecks over the week-end, all caused by Chinese bandits. Hundreds of persons were reported kidnaped in daring bandit raids all over northern Manchuria, from the disabled trains as well as from various cities.

More than 200 others were reported killed in a battle between Japanese troops and Chinese bandits near Tahsing. The wrecking of the trains and blowing up of a bridge were laid to a retaliation against Japanese occupation in Manchuria.

At least 12 persons were killed, 30 were missing, 46 were injured and 40 were kidnaped in the wreck and holdup Saturday night of the Harbin-Changchun express about 40 miles southwest of Harbin.

Two persons were killed, seven injured and about 100 kidnaped when 50 bandits attacked and robbed 150 passengers on the Harbin-Imienpo train early Sunday near Harbin.

Six passengers were killed, 14 injured and 100 kidnaped in a wreck of another train bound for Harbin in the neighborhood of Chengkaotze.

Six were killed, several wounded and several others were missing after bandits derailed a Japanese hospital train near here.

Meanwhile, other bandit bands blew up a bridge on the Changchun-Kirin line, crippling that service, and raided a train between Mukden and Dairen.

Scores of kidnapings were reported in larger cities. The most notable was that of the 2-year-old son of the Russian manager of the General Motors automobile agency in Harbin. The bandits threw pepper in the eyes of the child's nurse and carried off the baby in broad daylight in the heart of the city.

Henry Hilgard Villard, son of Oswald Garrison Villard, New York magazine editor, was a hero in the wreck of the Harbin-Changchun express. Single-handed, he pulled dead and dying from under the wreckage. Bandits stripped him of most of his belongings.

Five members of a Russian sanitary corps were carried off when brigands attacked the Harbin-Imienpo train. The train engineer was slain, but an injured porter, who had hidden under a car, climbed into the locomotive and brought the train safely into Harbin. Many of the 150 passengers were still tied up as they had been left by the bandits.

GAYETY

"HINDU BELLES." An Empire Burlesque attraction, starring and staged by Billy Fields and featuring "Chuck" Callahan, Sam Kline, Bert Grant, Bobby Leonard, Jeanette Alabasi, Dorothy Ahearn and the Bowers Sisters. Hinda Wasau, guest star. Reviewed Monday night.

Pursuing a cumulative course and a constantly accelerating tempo, this second of the season's offerings at Mr. Lake's Ninth street temple of the less meticulous of the Muses gets better as it goes along—in comedy, song, scenic effects and the sensuous specialties of the seductive sirens featuring its cast.

Aside from an occasional burst of humor on the part of some one, or all of the male comics and the individual contributions of the ravenhaired Jeanette Alabassi, the silver-thatched Dorothy Ahearn and the dynamic guest star, the first part boasts little in the way of sustained worth. After the intermission, however, when the Messrs. Fields and Callahan get into blackface and the girls get out of practically everything except their complexions, the piece strikes fire and the boys out front also come to life!

The jail bit in the second act is probably the best conceived humorous skit of them all, although "A Day in Court" came in for lusty appreciation on the part of those occupying the pews. Of the musical numbers, Miss Alabassi's "Stop the Sun, Stop the Moon," almost did. Dorothy Ahearn's "Happy Go Lucky You" was accompanied by a revelatory routine not wholly foreign to the song's title and Miss Alabassi's second solo endeavor, "How Am I Doin'?" emphatically answered itself, "All right."

Interspersed with these gems of feminine imperturbability were a succession of snappy chorus maneuvers and some nice numbers by the Bowers Sisters, harmonizers and hoofers, and Bobby Leonard, the handsome juvenile.

Each of the two acts is sensationally concluded by the attenuated, angular and assiduously sinuous Miss Hinda Wasau, who has solved the secret of how to be an overwhelming success in burlesque. Both of her appearances run to good length and neither is like the other—except that walking in on either, her mother probably would know it was Hinda!

NEE'S 76 LEADS DISTRICT GOLFERS IN U. S. AMATEUR

Crowder Twirls Nats to 9th Straight, Beating Chisox, 9-3

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE uncertainties of golf may be great, but the surest bet in the national amateur now in progress at Baltimore is that no beknickered gentleman will win the title. Knickers among the golf elite are as extinct as the bustle and the hoopskirt with milady. The bloomer boys were rarities yesterday at Five Farms.

Another good bet is that none of the ten leaders of the qualifying round will win the tournament. The "sudden death" 18-hole matches will occupy the stage tomorrow before the 36-hole play sets in, and Bobby Jones will tell you that anybody is lucky to escape elimination in these brief tests. Bobby himself couldn't make the grade twice during his last four years.

After the qualifying round is over, the field faces the real test in the match play, where competitive spirit is at a premium. It's guys like George Voigt and Maurice McCarthy who are then at their best. There is no complaint, either, against Francis Ouimet's courage in match play, but Ouimet faces a task to qualify today.

Rumors that Walter Johnson was on his way out as the Nats' manager are rapidly evaporating in the light of the Washington Club's steam-roller finish that has netted 24 victories out of 28 games, and the only remaining feature of his reengagement for 1933 is Mr. Griffith's formal announcement.

The leanest season in years, financially, for the Washington Club, is partly recompensed by Chattanooga's pennant triumph in the Southern Association, and it is reported that Mr. Griffith's earnings in Chattanooga will offset in a great measure his losses in Washington.

And when contract time comes around, the big league ball players will be in about as fine a position to talk salary as an armless deaf mute.

But Monte Weaver will get a sizeable boost or there ain't no justice. Weaver already has tied Gomez's record of 21 wins for a pitcher in his first year in the majors and with the Nats having fourteen more games to play, it looks like a new record for Weaver.

The Yankees can clinch the pennant today if they beat the Indians or if Detroit beats Philadelphia. The Nats are not yet mathematically out of it, but inasmuch as they must win all of their remaining 14 games while the Yankees lose their remaining 12, in order to gain a tie, this column concedes the Washington team's flag hopes quite dead.

The Brooklyn Dodgers possess the pinch hitting champion of the league in Johnny Frederick, who has slammed home runs this season six times in the role of pinch batter. A guy like that must be a sad fielder if he can't earn a regular job.

With two fist fights recorded at the recent Vines-Cochet match, tennis galleries seem to be emerging from the hide-bound tradition of placid observance that has been their role ever since Maj. Wingfield thought up the brilliant idea of playing the game at lawn parties way back in 1873.

But if tennis galleries are becoming more and more footballish in their behavior, the gentlemen who are at the top of the game maintain the inviolability of the tradition of silence. During his semifinal match with Allison, Cochet commanded the press box to still all telegraphic keys until a crucial stage of the match had passed.

Washington Keeps Pace With Mackmen by 24th Win in Last 28 Games

3-Run Rally in 9th Saves White Sox From Shutout.

Kuhel's Batting Nets Early Lead; Chamberlain Pounded.

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Sept. 12.—"General" Alvin Crowder, who seems to be thriving on hard work these days, was in almost perfect form here this afternoon, the result being a 9 to 3 victory for the Nationals over the White Sox. The triumph was No. 22 for Crowder, the ninth in a row for the Nats, and their twenty-fourth in their last 28 starts. It enabled the Washingtonians to hold their own with the runner-up Mackmen, who now top them by but a single game.

As long as there was anything at stake, Crowder was invincible and only one of the home players passed first in the first eight innings, this being Norman, who doubled in the fifth and was nipped a moment later trying to advance on Berry's roller. After his mates had given him a 9-run lead, the "General" let down in the final frame and a trio of native runs resulted.

Kuhel Drives In Four Runs.

Meanwhile, led by Joe Kuhel, Heinie Manush and Roy Spencer, the Nats were making merry at the expense of three home pitchers, Chamberlain, Gallivan and Biggs. Kuhel's double, single and long fly drove home four mates, while Manush and Spencer also were credited with two bingles, one of the latter's being good for an extra base. As a matter of fact, all of the visitors except Crowder took part in the eleven-hit attack.

With Crowder pitching airtight ball, the result was never in doubt, and the trio of markers made by the Nats in the second proved to be more than enough needed to clinch the verdict. Two of these were made on Kuhel's double with two out after an error and two walks had packed the aisles, while a wild pitch let the third one register.

Nats Continue To Score.

Just to keep in the run-making habit, the Nats scored two more in the fourth, three more in the sixth and another in the eighth.

Four of the nine hits Crowder granted came in the home ninth. Scratch blows by Hayes and Seeds and a walk crowded the runways and clean one-basers by Kress and Berry emptied them.

TIE ASSURED YANKS FOR PENNANT

Beat Tribe in 12th, Need One More to Clinch Flag.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees turned loose their heavy artillery after two were out in the twelfth inning today, scored five runs to crush the Indians, 8 to 3, and assure themselves at least a tie for the American League pennant. One more victory will give them the flag. They have twelve games to play.

Ben Chapman started the landslide when he whizzed a triple down the right foul line with the bases loaded. Bill Dickey followed him with a lofty drive into the right-field pavilion, the first home run by a visiting player in the new Cleveland park since it was opened July 31.

Up to the big explosion, Charlie Ruffing and Oral Hildebrand had been locked in a tight duel, with the Yankee right-hander hard pressed to pull through with his eighteenth victory of the season. He had a narrow escape in the eleventh, when he filled the bases with none out. He forced Vosmik to hit into a double play, however, and after walking Morgan to again fill the bases, made Kamm fly out to Byrd.

Benny Bass Pounds Decision Over Falco

Philadelphia, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Benny Bass, former featherweight and junior lightweight champion, handed a decisive whipping to Tony Falco, his former sparring partner, to win a ten-round decision tonight in the feature bout of a card which opened the indoor boxing season here.

Falco was floored twice for counts of nine, and twice was sprawled on the canvas only to be saved by the gong.

GROVE BEATS TIGERS FOR 23D WIN

Cochrane Hits Home Run, Drives in 4 as A's Cop, 7-1.

DETROIT, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Lefty Grove won his twenty-third victory of the season today, as the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 1. The only run scored off Lefty came in the third inning after a double by Heinie Schuble, a single and a long fly.

The Athletics scored four runs off Vic Sorrell in four innings, and added three in the last five with George Uhle as the victim. Mickey Cochrane drove in four runs, two with a homer with Haas on base. McNair had a perfect day getting four hits in as many times up.

PINCH HOMER BEATS CUBS IN NINTH

Frederick's Blow Decisive as Dodgers Score, 4 to 3.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The sixth home run Johnny Frederick has delivered as a pinch hitter this season followed Glenn Wright's double in the last half of the ninth inning today and gave the Dodgers a 4-to-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

One was out and the league leaders had bright hopes of victory when Frederick went in to bat for Bud Clancy. Only a few minutes before the Cubs had rallied to tie the score and go in front after Watson Clark had been within one strike of victory. But Frederick's mighty punch against the right field screen settled the argument.

The defeat cost the Cubs a full game of their lead over the field, as the Pittsburgh Pirates were winning from the Phillies. Burleigh Grimes was the victim of Frederick's blow, having relieved Bud Tinning to hurl the eighth and ninth frames.

Cubs' Office Swamped By Ticket Applications

Chicago, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—The downtown offices of the Chicago Cubs were swamped today with applications for world series tickets. A staff of 25 extra clerks were hired to handle the thousands of applications.

Miss Margaret Donahue, secretary, said the number of today's applications exceeded those received on the first day in 1929.

Indications are that all box seats and reserved seats, approximately 37,000, will be exhausted within a few days.

Babe Ruth Improves; May Play in Series

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The condition of Babe Ruth continued to show improvement today. He had practically no fever and the pain in his side, from an inflamed appendix, was decreasing.

Ruth is still in bed, however, and on a diet which has left him rather weak. It will be another day or two, at least, before he can be up and around, said his trainer, Artie McGovern.

It is almost certain he will not play in any more regular league games, but if he continues to improve there is no reason why he should not be in good shape for world series, McGovern said.

Chattanooga's Victory and Use of Dave Harris Declared Legal.

Chicago, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, announced today that he had authorized the playoff of a tie game between the Knoxville and Chattanooga teams, of the Southern Association and overruled for the second time a protest from the Memphis team.

Chattanooga defeated Knoxville in the playoff game and thereby finished .002 of a percentage point ahead of Memphis.

Commissioner Landis also ruled that the transfer of Player Dave Harris from Washington to Chattanooga was legal and in accordance with all major and minor league rules. He denied a protest from Memphis against the games in which Harris participated.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—President Thomas R. Watkins, of the Memphis ball club, said tonight that, as far as he is concerned, the Chattanooga Lookouts can have the Southern Association pennant, but he will never recognize them as champions.

Watkins abandoned his fight late today after receiving a telegram from Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis sanctioning, for the third time, Chattanooga's 12-to-4 victory over Knoxville in a disputed play-off game last Friday.

Dettweiler, Youth of 14, Scores a 78 As Other D. C. Hopes Fade at Baltimore; Fischer's 69 Sets Pace in Qualifying with a rousing 35 on the incoming stretch to wind up with 71.

Kentuckian Leader of First 18 Holes in Record Round.

Westland Is Second; Ouimet in Danger With 78.

Keen disappointment was occasioned when the old master of golf, Francis Ouimet, champion in 1931, soared into the 78 class, after an unfortunate seven had dented his score on the second hole. Here the Boston expert, who usually plods along methodically in qualifying round, hooked his tee shot out of bounds, and the penalty proved costly.

Ouimet was not to blame, it seemed. Those close by saw him hit his drive tee as his partner, Tony Torrance, giant British star, was taking a practice stroke simultaneously, although Ouimet later said the incident did not divert him. Ouimet, out in 38, played what he called "sloppy" golf coming in.

Voigt Ties for Third With a 72.

With 18 more holes of the battle to decide the 32 qualifiers scheduled today, five golfers were entrenched in third place with 72's, six had 73's, nine tied with 74's, four with 75's, 22 with 76's and 17 with 77's.

Charley Yates, a slender 19-year-old player from Bobby Jones' home course in Atlanta, fired his shots true to the mark for a 34 on the first nine and finished with a 72. George Voigt, former District of Columbia title holder, was torrid on the first nine for a 34 and wound up in the same class. In the same group were Johnny Goodman, Omaha, Nebr., flash; Dwight L. Armstrong, of Lancaster, Pa., and William O. Blaney, of West Newton, Mass.

C. Ross Somerville, big gun from Canada, and Chandler H. Egan, champion in 1904, posted 73's. Cyril Tolley, man mountain from Britain, and Jesse P. Guilford, 1921 title holder, had 74's. Charlie Seaver, the broad-shouldered boy from Stanford University, ran into difficulties on the home stretch and found himself with a 75. Gus Moreland, the Texas sensation, his cut hand not entirely healed, came home in 76.

The youngest golfer in the flock, Billy Dettweiler, of the Manor Club of Washington, attracted considerable attention with his fine round of 78, his score eliciting praise from Bobby Jones, who was on the scene of today's activities in the role of a reporter.

Score of 153 May Be Limit.

Close followers are of the opinion that scores of 152 or 153 will qualify. They believe that even those who cracked today may not rally sufficiently to sweep into the select circle tomorrow.

Virginia's two young stars, Billy Howell, of Richmond, semifinalist last year, and Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, who paced the field in the Middle Atlantic sectional trials, played completely out of tune today, took 83s and only an herculean effort can restore their chances of making the grade tomorrow.

JIMMY MORAN, 6 TO 1, TAKES FEATURE AT LINCOLN FIELDS

Pancho Lopez Overtaken Near End

Might Have Won but for Leg Bandage Working Loose.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Ill., Sept. 12 (A. P.).—Jimmy Moran, racing in the white jacket of Mose Goldblatt, of Cincinnati, today won the 6-furlong feature at Lincoln Fields, aided somewhat by a bad break for the pacemaker, Pancho Lopez.

Pancho Lopez took the lead early and appeared to have the situation under control until the bandage on his left foreleg became loose and whipped about his right foreleg. Gilbert Elston, on Jimmy Moran, closed fast and went on to take the decision by three-quarters of a length. Brown Wisdom, from the Reichert Brothers' Stable, the favorite, finished third. The time was 1:12. Jimmy Moran, an outsider in the wagering, paid $14.16 to win, $7.06 to place and $3.06 to show.

Sweeping Light Scores at Belmont.

Belmont Park Race Track, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The last lap of the Westchester Racing Association's current meeting got under way here this afternoon with the Nassau, a claiming stake for 3-year-olds and upward at 1 mile, heading an interesting card.

Herbert Pulitzer's colt, Sweeping Light, after breaking in last position, scored an impressive victory under Hank Mills. The son of the English sire Manna got up to beat the Brookmeade Stable's Melianthu by a neck in 1:37 4-5. C. V. Whitney's Clotho, the favorite, was a close third, a length behind.

Sweeping Light receded to 18 to 5 in the betting and looked like he had scant chance when he broke so slowly. Helianthus was rated on top, with Cabezo, a 30-to-1 shot, in second place to the head of the stretch. The latter then stopped and allowed Semaphore and Clotho to surge past him. Sweeping Light, coming around the outside, began a great stretch run under Mills' desperate urging and in the final sixteenth overhauled Helianthus to win going away. Clotho was an easy third.

Celtics in Benefit Game at Stadium

St. Mary's Celtics will visit this city for the first time in several years Friday when they tangle with the strong St. Joseph's A. C. at Griffith Stadium starting at 4:30 p. m. Proceeds derived from the fray will be turned over to Harry Hall, popular sandlotter, who is ill.

Tickets have been placed on sale and can be procured at the leading sports shops. Admission will be 25 cents.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: LINCOLN FIELDS, CHICAGO, SEPT. 12.

There's no rest for the weary! You must be awful good in arithmetic to figure these horses.

No reason on earth to expect trouble today from Miss Tulsa and Jimmy Moran, but money showed for them in gobs, and from the way those two horses ran, they knew all about it.

I can only give you horses that figure to perform and then advise you that unless you wish to finish up talking to yourself, that you had better keep your money in your pocket until Maryland opens.

Yours, BILL.

FIRST RACE—In case you have lost your hatpin, here is as good a stab as any: THREAT, SWEEPERMAN, SPORTING PEARL.

SECOND RACE—Another grab-bag affair with no excuse for playing any one horse. If you don't like the "field" try LADY ARA, PEACE JIMMY and CHEROKEE GIRL.

THIRD RACE—I hate to advise you, with MELOY, TIMOROUS, COL. HATFIELD and MEROVECH figuring close up. I like them in the order named.

FOURTH RACE—GIFT OF ROSES may be able to carry its speed the mile route. LOUIS DEAR has won two straights. PIGEON HOLE, the favorite, would prefer a longer route.

FIFTH RACE—ESSEFF, MISS MELODY and BALLYGRAN. The first named seems the surest bet of the afternoon.

SEVENTH RACE—Here is another rare old collection. If the checks are down WEE DROP may get home. WATCH GIRL and COUSIN JUDY for balance of the purse.

EIGHTH RACE — TADDYWAWA should toddle home. Has plenty of early speed and a good post position. MADELON and FLYING may get in the picture.

Grid Candidates Report To Emerson's Coach

Nine candidates for the Emerson Institute Football Team reported to Coach H. P. Sanborn for the first drill of the season yesterday. Several veterans from last year's eleven and more new candidates are slated to join the squad today.

"Punky" Whelan, Bill Minor, Charley Pelton, Bob Lynch and Jim Hood, backs, and Ordie Brown, Joe Accordia and Roger Cooper, linemen, were among those who indulged in a light workout.

Hood, a Washington-Lee High School star last year, and Accordia, 200-pound sandlot graduate, are expected to add power to the team.

Dow, regular center; Joe Sardoe, Ed Rodely, Ray Raum, Johnny Boles and Ralph Davis are among those who will don uniforms today.

Pilots Beat Police, 8-2, in Series Opener

The Washington Pilots last night defeated the Police nine in the first of a three-game series at the Griffith Stadium, 8-2, holding them scoreless until the ninth, when Campbell got on with a double, scored when White drove a hot one through Evans and was followed across the plate by White when Hoffman clouted a two-bagger to center.

The game was featured by Hayes' pitching and by the spectacular work of "Jelly" Jackson, sandlotter, whom the Pilots tried out at short. The two nines will clash again tonight at the stadium at 8:30.

Stocks Join Other Markets In General Price Slump

Average Loss of 5 Points Is Recorded in Sale of 4,042,349 Shares.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The leveling-off process was at work in financial markets today, and values slumped in virtually all directions.

Stocks at their worst were down 1 to 7 points and although there was some late short covering, the Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite closed 5 points lower, the largest decline since late last September. On August 12 there was a reaction of 4.9 points, however.

Cotton's losses of more than $2 a bale and wheat's of nearly 2 cents a bushel filled in major outlines of the day's picture, details of which were provided by declines in sugar, tin, silk, cocoa, rubber, silver and hides futures. Bonds had a worn appearance, especially in secondary loan sections where there were some sharp breaks.

Weakness of Rails.

Weakness of railroad securities ran against the favorable implications of larger car loadings and indications that August earnings were better than July's.

Some brokers associated their heaviness, in part at least, to the Interstate Commerce Commission's stand on the Nickel Plate loan, permitting the road to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation only 25 per cent of the amount needed for the October 1 note maturity, with the recommendation that holders agree to an extension of the remainder for three years.

Carrier stocks were soggy from the start, particularly those which had been recent favorites on the long side. New York Central dropped 4 net, Santa Fe 4½, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Pennsylvania 3 each, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific nearly 4, Lackawanna 5½. Elsewhere U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, General Electric, Allied Chemical, Kennecott, American Smelting, International Telephone, North American, American Tobacco "B" and Public Service of New Jersey lost 2 to 3 points net, while International Harvester, Case and Western Union slumped about 4. Most preferred stocks joined the decline. Sales total 4,042,349 shares.

Reckoning Day Expected.

The market's action in the latter part of last week had indicated to many observers that a period of more accurate reckoning might be at hand and that bullish hopes could not indefinitely continue unless quickly supported by basic favorable changes. There has been some evidence that a turn in business was in the making, even if it had not actually appeared, but the road back to profitable operations is often a tedious one and can hardly be expected to lead straight to prosperity, according to Wall street authorities.

Short selling is said to have increased in the last few markets on the theory that the time was ripening for a setback of fair-sized proportions. Also stop-loss orders have been plentifully sprinkled through the list and with buying enthusiasm markedly restrained it was less easy to check declining tendencies.

Many brokers felt that the small gain in United States Steel's backlog, although the first improvement in nearly a year and a half, was a rather negative bit of news. Preliminary estimates mentioned another rise in steel operations for this week.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Number of advances	64	171
Number of declines	611	294
Stocks unchanged	77	142
Total issues traded	752	613

Stocks.

Leveling-off process sent stocks down 5 points as leaders in the general slump of other markets. The reckoning day was expected by dealers. Turnover was 4,042,349 shares.

Bonds.

Rail loans yielded heavily to liquidation, and the average bonds' loss was eight-tenths the greatest in four months. Sales totaled $10,649,000.

Curb.

Speculative bubbles broke, and losses ranged up to 12 points in a 600,000-share sale. The drop was regarded as a corrective movement.

Wheat.

Values sank 1⅜ to 2 cents per bushel for wheat and new low levels for year were made by corn and oats. General market declines influenced losses.

Cotton.

Liquidation and selling clipped $2.50 per bale from cotton prices, sending the market down 42 to 45 points. Other exchanges blamed.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading was quiet on the stock exchange, with a hardening of gilt edged securities and Argentine rails. Weakness developed in other directions, including transatlantic issues. Chinese bonds opened weak owing to the report of a default in payments but recovered on its denial. The closing was uncertain.

Paris—Activity on the bourse was curtailed, doubtless on account of the international situation. The tendency was irregular and rentes suffered on profit taking. International issues also receded and the Young loan was heavy throughout the entire session. The closing tone was heavy.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse opened weak, but later improved and the closing was firm.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

CURB FALLS VICTIM TO PROFITS SELLING

Wide Drops Up to 12 Points Mark Heavy Trading of 600,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Speculative bubbles were pricked right and left in the Curb Market today, as the list was deluged with profit-taking sales.

Losses ranged from 1 to as much as 12 points in prominent issues, and the turnover of 600,000 shares was the largest of the month. This market took its cue from the big board, but, as severe as the reaction was, most brokerage quarters were inclined to regard it as primarily a corrective reaction, necessitated by a top-heavy situation resulting from the protracted bull campaign.

Electric Bond & Share, which had risen from 5 to a peak of 48, reacted 6 points today to touch 33½, but it recovered to close at 34⅞. Slight recoveries from the lowest appeared in a number of leaders in the last hour. Public Service of Northern Illinois dropped 6½ in a moderate turnover, and United Gas preferred and United Light convertible preferred each lost more than 4. American Gas & Electric lost about as much, American Superpower and Niagara Hudson lost about a point.

In the industrials, Aluminum Co. tumbled 12 points to 65; Deere, influenced by reactionary grain markets, droped 4 to 12, then recovered to 13.

Smelting & Refining Heads Plan to Buy Metals Plant

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—It was reported in Wall street today that the American Smelting & Refining Co. has opened preliminary negotiations looking to the acquisition of the Federated Metals Corporation. Sufficient progress has not been made as yet, it was said, to assure consummation of the negotiations.

Federated Metals specializes in the smelting and refining of nonferrous metals, and also manufactures finished articles such as pipe, wire, type-metal and solder. The company has refineries in Newark and Trenton, N. J., Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago and on the Pacific Coast.

Output of Hard and Soft Coals Gain During Week

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Output of bituminous coal in the United States in the week ended September 3 is estimated by the Bureau of Mines at 5,544,000 net tons, a gain of 324,000 tons over the preceding week and comparing with 7,621,000 tons in the corresponding week of 1931.

Anthracite output for the week is estimated at 1,069,000 net tons, an increase of 266,000 tons over the previous week, and comparing with 1,177,000 tons in the like 1931 week.

West Canada's Wheat May Be Higher Grade

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Western Canada is successfully harvesting its comparatively large crop which will, in all probability be of even higher quality than last year, E. B. Ramsay, chief commissioner of the board of grain commissioners, told the Canadian press today.

Mr. Ramsay is leaving today for a trip to Europe for the purpose of checking over the feeling in trade circles there as to the standards for the grading of Canadian grain.

BONDS SINK LOWEST IN NEARLY 4 MONTHS

Late Rally Turns Loss to Eight-Tenths in Sale of $10,649,000.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Speculative railroad loans had a head-on collision with liquidation today, and the bond market suffered its worst break in nearly four months.

There were some rallies near the close, however, and trading slowed down appreciably in the decline. Sales totaled only $10,649,000, par value, but the average for 60 corporate bonds dropped eight-tenths of a point, the widest recession since May 13.

A slump of 16 points in Nickel Plate 6s caused a scurrying for cover by the holders of low-priced carrier issues, and the recent buoyant bonds, that had recovered as much as 300 per cent or more from their lows of the year, proceeded to slough off from 1 to 5 or more points. Most of the heaviest losers, though, closed somewhat above their low levels of the day.

While most of the second grade railway bonds showed net losses of from 1 to 4 points on the day, the best quality legal issues held to a comparatively steady position.

Of the industrials and utilities, the former were the weaker. American Telephones were generally unshakable, but issues of International Telephone gave up 3 or more points. The rubber company group was soft, as were the amusement corporations.

The foreign department was inclined to ease, although the Argentines ran against the trend with gains up to 3⅛ points. German loans dropped around a point following the Reichstag crisis. United States Government bonds were fractionally lower.

Farm Improvement Outlook.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Agricultural implements manufacturers are in line for important benefits from recent gains in farm income resulting from the upturn in the value of live stock, cotton, grain and other farm products, says the Fitch survey.

U.S. Cotton Sent to Mills Abroad Is on Increase

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Forwardings of American cotton to continental mill centers continue to run ahead of last season, the New York Cotton Exchange service reports.

They totaled 69,000 bales last week, compared with 55,000 in the same week last year, and for the season to date 368,000 bales, against 282,000 last year.

COTTON PRICE DROPS HEAVILY ON SELLING

Slump of $2.50 Per Bale Clips 42 to 45 Points From Quotations.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Cotton prices broke about $2.50 a bale today, sending values down more than $7 a bale from the levels prevailing when Government crop estimate was published last Thursday.

The decline was accompanied by heavy liquidation and Southern selling. The December position sold down to 7.72, a net loss of 53 points from Saturday's final closing at 7.80, while the general market closed barely steady at 42 to 45 points net decline.

The opening was 12 to 14 points lower in response to weakness in Liverpool. There was a considerable volume of selling orders in the market for Southern account, indicating increased hedging operations.

Weakness in the stock and wheat markets contributed to the general lack of confidence in cotton values. The trade was a fair buyer on declines, but demand from this source was limited, and apparently the mills had lost some of their recent confidence in the market owing to the sharp declines and to the falling off in the demand for textiles.

The official figures on carded cotton cloths for August showing the lowest mill stocks ever recorded by the present authorities and an increase in unfilled orders of 113.1 per cent had no apparent influence on the market.

Exports today, 40,508, making 732,281 so far this season.

WORLD'S BANKS SEE GERMANY'S REVIVAL

$1,200,000,000 in Credits Being Converted Into Notes for Longer Terms.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—American and European banks which still have about $1,200,000,000 of short-term credits tied up in Germany are beginning to feel more cheerful over the prospects of Germany's eventual economic recovery.

While they realize that Germany still has many difficulties to overcome, notably the mechanical difficulties of transmitting foreign exchange from that country to creditor nations, they express the belief that Germany's financial outlook has been considerably improved, partly as a result of the recent Lausanne agreement on reparations.

Indications of their more hopeful attitude have been furnished, bankers state, in the recent willingness of Germany's creditors to shift a portion of their short-term advances into longer term obligations. In other words, American and European banks which made cash advances to German banks are availing themselves in somewhat greater measure than before of the German bankers' proposal that they convert such advances into ten-year 6 per cent notes, which in turn are guaranteed by the German banks.

In addition, the standstill agreement of 1932, which expires next February, permits creditors to shift their advances into long-term investment in German bank stocks.

No authoritative estimate is yet available as to what portion of the $1,200,000,000 of German short term credits has been shifted into longer term German investments, but it is stated that a moderate amount has been converted.

What is accepted as nother evidence of more hopeful feeling, was furnished today in the announcement of Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the standstill committee, that the regular meeting of this committee scheduled for October 1 has been adjourned indefinitely.

COACH NEEDS GUARDS FOR C. U. TEAM

Bergman Plans Shift of Nally, Conter; Scrimmage Due.

COACH DUTCH BERGMAN, major domo of Catholic University's football team, yesterday surveyed the situation after the first real practice of the season and declared himself, and the team, desperately in need of guards.

Otherwise, he was pleased with the spirit shown by twoscore of huskies, and had to suppress many of them from stepping out into more fierce endeavor than was planned for the first full day of warming-up work.

The lack of guards can be laid to the failure to report in camp of Joe Baumgardner, Frank Lauer and Casey Halleron, 1931 reserves, and the graduation of Nick Monaco, 1931 mainstay. In an effort to do something about it, Bergman today will shift Tom Nally, 1931 left tackle, and Bill Conter, 1931 center, the former a 220-pounder and the latter a 198 ditto, to guard positions, and keep an eye cocked for further chances to turn some of the excess other position holders into guards.

In view of the injury of Ray Howe, last year's crack right end, Bergman yesterday began to make over Pete Dranginis, 1931 freshman halfback, into an end. Among the new arrivals in camp were Charlie McVean, who seems to have a hold on quarterback this year, unless dislodged through some vast improvement on the part of his rivals, and Floyd Stafford, regular tackle. Bus Sheary, who is recuperating from an infected foot at Georgetown Hospital, was reported much better and ready to be honorably discharged.

Work was light yesterday, but lasted until dark. Today the teams scrimmage.

SCRIMMAGE DELAYED AT HILLTOP

Colella Not to Return; Rouzer and Cole Report to Byrd.

GENE COLELLA, an all-high half back with Central High two years ago, and looked upon as one of the best prospects in the Maryland University back field for the coming season, informed Coach Curley Byrd yesterday that he would not return to College Park this year.

Colella was looked upon as a fit running mate for Earl Widmyer, speedy Maryland flier, who is expected to earn a back-field berth. He was one of the fastest backs Central has had in the past five years.

With the arrival at the College Park training grounds of Daul Rouzer, 220-pound guard, and George Cole, a good 1931 freshman tackle, the 1931 Terrapin squad was completed yesterday. Rouzer was put immediately into the first strong combination's line.

Work was comparatively light, being confined largely to running through signal practice. Real scrimmaging with both teams using signals, starts Thursday.

Hawks Sign Farrell; In Grid Drill Tonight

"Tubba" Farrell, coach and center of the Apache football team last season, will perform with the champion Mohawks this year, it was learned by The Post last night. A former Holy Cross star, Farrell was a bulwark of strength in the Apache line. His presence in the Hawk line-up will give the team a full complement of collegians in its forward wall.

Artie Wondrack will direct the team in its second drill of the season tonight on the Seaman Gunners Field. All players are requested to report at the club at 7 o'clock. "Snitz" Snyder, Paul Minnix, Phil Delaney, Eddie Eddinger and De Roo are among the veterans returning.

THE "E" IS SILENT.

Mark Koenig, Chicago Cubs' shortstop, says his name is pronounced "Ko-nig," not "Kay-nig."

EX-CENTRAL STAR QUITS MARYLAND

INJURY JINX CLAIMS 10 AT G. W.

Action Brisk at Training Camp Despite Absence of Stars.

Special to The Washington Post.

CAMP LETTS, Md., Sept. 12.—An epidemic of injuries, intermixed with such minor setbacks as stiff necks and early fall colds, today kept ten George Washington University regulars and near regulars on the sidelines as the three big teams and freshman squad battled through another full day's practice.

Among the injured were Capt. Wayne Chambers, end; Fred Mulvey, end; John Baker, sensational sophomore back; Zuzu Stewart, guard; Chris Doose, guard; Nig McCarver, back; Hardy Pearce, tackle; Lee Carlin, back; Bob Galloway, end, and Joe Carter, back.

But play continued with the places of the regulars readily filled by the vast reserve strength of the squad.

It is probable that no George Washington University gridiron team in the last generation has been imbued with as much of a desire to play as this one. The coaching staff is having trouble suppressing the more ambitious huskies. The team has whipped itself into a first rate competitive spirit, pending the early opening of the season, as evidenced today when John Fenlon, regular quarter back, had to be separated by the coaching staff from Howard Sawyer, freshman end, when the two boys commenced some extra carricula fisticuffing during one of the scrimmage sessions.

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

A meeting of the Typothetae Bowling League will be held at the Lucky Strike alleys Friday night at 8 o'clock. All shops planning to enter teams are requested to have representatives present.

Virtually the same team that rolled to the District League title last year under the colors of Northeast Hupmobile, will represent Occidental Hotel in the big loop this winter. Astor Clarke, Joe Harrison and Jack Wolstenholme already have signed, and overtures are being made in the direction of Johnny Anderson and Maxie Rosenberg.

Convention Hall and Temple have discarded their raised gutters in favor of the round. A good idea, for as soon as all alleys conform to standard regulations it will be possible to determine the real champions of the mapleways.

A meeting of the East Washington Church Bowling League will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at Convention Hall. Bowling will start an hour later. New teams may enter up until next Tuesday. Those interested should communicate with Mr. Sands at 410 Eleventh street northeast.

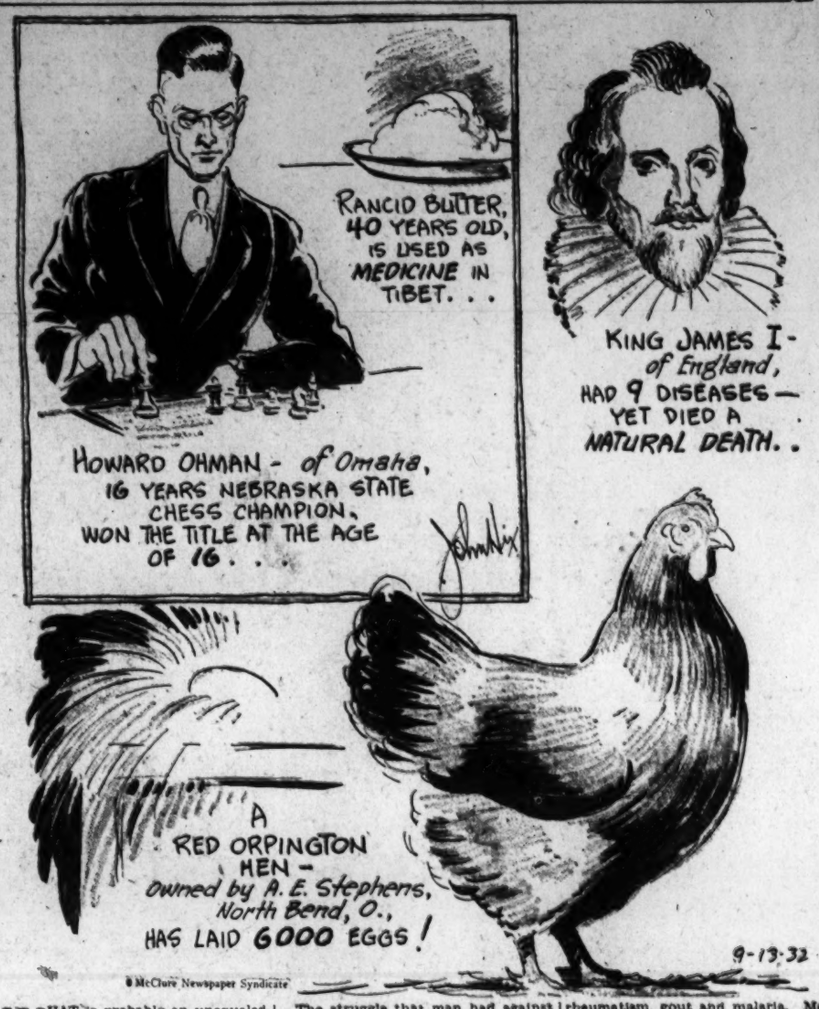
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



WHAT is probably an unequaled record for continued production over a long life is held by Mr. Stephens' prize egg-laying hen. The hen for 25 years averaged 240 eggs a year, rolling up a total during her lifetime of 6,000 eggs—500 dozens.

She has found time to raise a brood or two of chicks every year, and is credited with having mothered 420 young in all. Mr. Stephens has owned the hen for 21 years, and although she does not lay as well as she once did, she is still earning her keep.

The struggle that man had against disease not so many years ago is well brought out in the life of King James I of England. Entitled to the finest care as the heir to the throne, he was afflicted in his tender years with rickets—a malady that now can easily be prevented in the most modest of homes.

Later life found him similarly afflicted with a variety of diseases now largely preventable. He suffered from rickets, enlarged adenoids, nasal catarrh, tooth decay, indigestion, colic, rheumatism, gout and malaria. Most of these ailments now are looked upon as the penalty of not heeding medical advice available to everyone. Despite his many ailments, King James I is recorded in history as having died a natural death.

The Tibetan physician uses butter as a basis for his many salves, but fresh butter will not do. It must be rancid, the more so the better. Butter that has been buried in crocks for 40 years is considered at its best for medicinal use.

HOTELS SCORE PLAN TO LET PRIVATE CAB DRIVERS USE STANDS

Fire-Plug Parking Menace, Chief Watson Warns Utilities Body.

Representatives of Washington hotels at which there now are established so-called closed taxicab stands yesterday asked the Public Utilities Commission not to yield to the demands of private taxicab operators to throw the stands open to all cabs.

The fight over the hotel taxi stands was one of several arguments heard by the commission in the course of a hearing to consider the general question of taxicab stands. Establishment of new hack stands at various points was urged by some, while others opposed location of some of the present stands.

Harry C. Davis, of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, urged the commission to permit parking of taxicabs in fire plug zones. He proposed that the drivers must remain in their cabs at all times when so parked and urged that such a plan would eliminate need for many existing stands which could be used for parking by the general public. Cabs could be removed quickly in case of fire, he said.

Fire Chief George S. Watson, however, disagreed. Such parking of cabs, he said, would represent a distinct menace to fire fighting. H. E. Young, of the Central Business Men's Association, and Albert W. Jacobson, of the City Cab Co., urged approval of the fire plug parking scheme.

Walter Dunlap, assistant engineer of the commission, told the commission there now are 834 authorized street stands. Of these, he said, 720 are for taxicabs, 74 for sight-seeing automobiles, 7 for horse-drawn hacks and 33 for express trucks.

Police Seek Man Here In $1,000,000 Fraud

Local police were instructed to look out for Walter Clyde Davis, 51, who is wanted in Colorado Springs, Colo., for embezzlement of $1,000,000. A reward of $1,000 was offered for his arrest.

An order to arrest three men who are wanted in Boston, Mass., for extortion by impersonating an officer also was issued.

Mild Weather Saves City 200 Tons of Coal

The mild weather of the last fiscal year saved the District 200 tons of coal for heating the District Building and the Police Headquarters Building at 462 Louisiana avenue northwest, E. P. Brooke, assistant superintendent of the District Building, said in his annual report submitted to the District Commissioners yesterday.

It required 2,096 tons of coal to operate the District Building and 245 tons for the police building, he said.

Four One-Room Schools in Montgomery County Fade Into History Under Auctioneer's Hammer

These four schools in Montgomery County went under the auctioneer's hammer as a sequel to the school consolidation program in effect in the county. Upper left is the Seneca School, at Seneca, Md.; lower left, Olney School, at Olney, Md.; upper right, the Elmer School, near Poolesville, Md., and lower right, a colored school in Poolesville, Md. Pupils will go to new schools in modern buses.

Children Turn Away From "Little Red Schoolhouses" in Favor of Modern Education in Brick Buildings; Will Be Transported in Shiny New Trucks.

Victims of the auction hammer and the wheels of modern school progress, four Montgomery County one-room schools no longer will resound to the shouts of happy children and no longer will groan in sympathy with those unfortunates who attend the after-school sessions.

The four schools—Elmer, Olney, Seneca and Poolesville—were sold at auction Thursday and Friday, together with the land on which they stand. Now they will probably be prosaic dwellings, and as they stand deserted by the children who once labored over "A, B, C's" and logarithms there, no doubt often they will muse on the vagaries of fate and listen expectantly for the old bell that called childish hands to mar and children's feet to soar.

The schools were ordered closed as part of the consolidation program of the county school system. The children will be transported in buses to larger and more modern schoolhouses where the "book larnin'" will be meted under the latest educational methods. The county expects shortly to complete the consolidation of small schools and with their passing will go the romantic memories of "the little red schoolhouse on the hill."

LATIN AIRS FEATURE ARMY BAND CONCERT

Pan American Building Is Scene of Program; Numbers New to U.S. Played.

Under the ever-changing cyclorama of heaven, the United States Army Band, under leadership of Capt. William J. Stannard, last night gave a concert of Latin-American music on the esplanade of the Pan American Union Building.

Assisting the Army Band were Yolanda Norrisa, Brazilian lyric soprano, and Leopoldo Gutierrez, Chilean baritone, and solo musicians of the band, including Trombonist William F. Raymond and Vibraphonist Charles D. Hershey.

Senorita Norrisa delighted the audience with her four songs, "Eu Tenho Adoracao por Meus Olhos" (Tupynamba), "Mirame Asi" (Sanchez de Fuentes), "Cancao da Guitarra" (Sanchez de Feuntes), and "Eres Tu" (Sandoval). Her voice is better adapted to inside singing than to an outside program, but the audience, appreciative of the difficulties of the occasion, graciously overlooked them and offered her its sincere appreciation.

The more powerful barytone of Senor Gutierrez easily overcame the out-of-doors handicap and his offerings—"Mi Tierra Natal" (Mata), "Juramee" (Grever), "Historia de una Nina" (Soro) and the ever-popular "Marta" by Moises ("Peanut Vender") Simons—received their well-merited round of applause.

As in other Pan-American concerts, the American premiers featured this program, headed by grand selection from the opera "Il Guarani," from the pen of Brazil's prolific Carlos Gomez. Other numbers new to this country included "Gualda y Rojo" (Guttierrez) played as a saxophone octet by Musicians Kline, Koelliker, Hostetter, Weinkam, Ey, Banko, Blunt and Gold; a trombone solo by Musician Raymond, and "Mi Viejo Amor" (Oteo), a vibraphone solo by Musician Hershey.

Just prior to the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner," Director General L. S. Rowe, of the Pan-American Union, addressed a few words of thanks to the concert's seen and unseen audience. W. A. WHITNEY.

Ill Soldiers See Circus

Hunt's Family Show Entertains at Mount Alto and Plays to Post's Orphan Guests; "Elefunt" Goes to Walter Reed Today

Hunt's three-ring circus put in a busy day yesterday, what with staging the entire show for the Mount Alto Hospital veteran inmates, and the regular matinee and evening performances, which, incidentally, proved the old-style country circus can pack the city folks in.

This morning at 10 o'clock the "elefunt" and the clowns and the equestrians will wend their way to Walter Reed Hospital from Georgia avenue and Underwood street northwest, the day's stand location, and put on the show.

Considerable interest is being evinced by the public in the human interest presented by the Hunt show, which carries in its ranks at least fourteen Hunts or relatives by marriage of the family. John Lancaster, 78-year-old veteran clown, is another celebrity.

Hillcrest orphans yesterday were guests of The Post at the matinee performance and went home aglow with the afternoon's fun. At the matinee performance this afternoon children from St. John's Orphanage and the Jewish Foster Home will attend the show through The Post offices. The Kiwanis Club of Washington is furnishing transportation and peanuts.

Other orphanages will enjoy the circus tomorrow through the energies of The Post and the Kiwanis Club and later on in the week will see the show with the help of the Rotary Club and other groups. On Thursday and Friday carrier boys of The Post will attend the show as its guests.

Daughter Accuses Mother In Lawsuit for $100,000

Wife of Maj. David B. Wills Charged by Mrs. Joy W. Toms With Seeking to Destroy Her Love for Husband.

A daughter took the witness stand in an Asheville, N. C., court yesterday to accuse her mother, well known in Washington, whom, she alleges, attempted to destroy the love and affection she held for her husband, according to the Associated Press.

Mrs. Joy W. Toms brought suit for $100,000 against her mother, Mrs. David B. Wills, wife of Maj. Wills, of 2359 Ashmead place northwest. The case opened yesterday in Buncombe County Superior Court, Asheville.

Five causes for action are named in the complaint. Maj. Wills is also a defendant. Alleging her mother maliciously prosecuted her by causing her to be summoned before a court clerk on lunacy proceedings, Mrs. Toms declared the action, brought to remove her children from under her care, was later nonsuited.

Selection of the jury required several hours. Attorneys argued motions and before the trial was underway half the day was consumed. Mrs. Toms took the stand and remained there until adjournment.

In reply to the count that Mrs. Wills caused her daughter to lose her affection for her husband, the defense introduced what was purported to be a letter used when Mrs. Toms started divorce proceedings in West Virginia.

Aid Problem Is to Make $50,000 Do Work of $80,000

How to make $50,000 per month do the work of a needed $80,000 is the problem confronting the organization in charge of administration of the $350,000 municipal relief fund authorized by Congress, Leroy Halbert, administrator of the fund, told the speakers' bureau of the Community Chest at a meeting last night at Florence Crittenton Home, on Conduit road. E. Claude Babcock, member of the executive committee of the speakers' bureau, presided.

Mr. Halbert prefaced his talk with a plea for the character-building organizations in the Chest, outlining how they worked to preserve the morale of the soldiers during the World War.

Outlining the difficulties that confront his committee, Mr. Halbert pointed out that the opening of his office brought a rush that numbered from 800 to 1,000 applicants daily in the first part of August. He said that while this number has been reduced by investigation, the office still averages 100 applications per day and had caused the expenditure of $59,000 in August. This, he said, is almost $10,000 in excess of what the Board of Public Welfare says shall be spent, and even then the municipal funds will be exhausted by the end of January.

Leonard W. DeGast, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spoke on a character-building month, to be featured by a program of activities by character-building organizations during the month of September 21 to October 21.

Formation of the "advance guard," an organization of Chest supporters pledged to spread publicity regarding the work of the Chest by word of mouth and also to be ready to answer questions regarding the Chest at all times, was perfected at last night's meeting.

Miss Jean Cole, superintendent of Florence Crittenton Home, told of the work of her organization, stating that it had cared for 118 girls and 96 babies in the fiscal year recently ended. She said that the home is filled to capacity all the time, and at present there are 51 girls and 44 babies there.

CHAIN-STORE HOLDUP SUSPECTS SET FREE

Victims Fail to Identify Two Pairs of Brothers Seized in Alexandria.

Two pairs of brothers arrested in Alexandria, Va., Sunday as suspects in the double robbery of the Sanitary grocery at 401 K street northeast last week, were released yesterday after Oscar W. Faulk and Carl W. Burgess, who were victimized in the holdup, failed to identify the quartet.

The men were picked up by Detective Sergt. John W. Wise when Alexandria police informed him that their general description tallied with that of the bandits. Faulk, route supervisor for the chain store company, was held up by two men who forced him to drive them away in his car and later left him, after robbing him of an empty black leather case.

Balked at their first attempt the robbers returned to the store and held up Burgess, manager of the K street store, escaping with $70. Those released were Ralph C. and Albert C. Lacey, both 20 years old, of Beaumont, Va., and Luther R., 24, and Roy L. Keys, 18, of Virginia Highlands, Va.

Boys Who Saved Horses Will Get Medals Today

Two youthful employes of the Point-to-Point Riding School, Forty-fifth and Lowell streets northwest, will be decorated by the Washington Humane Society today for leading more than a score of horses to safety when the riding school's stables burned on May 16.

Warner Moxley and Burl Jenkins, 18-year-old employes of the academy, will receive the medals, which were made available by the society, from Col. L. Halstead, head of the society, at 10 a. m. today at 1231 New York avenue.

Baby's Bank Robbed of $15.

A thief who robbed a baby's bank was being sought by police last night following a report of Mrs. Nancy Srygley, of 3709 Legation street northwest, that the bank of her child, Polly, 2½ years old, was broken open last week and $15 stolen.

FORTY VICTIMS VIEW MAN AND WOMAN AS ROBBERY SUSPECTS

Two Identify Pair, Police Say; Third Member of Holdup Gang Sought.

Viewed by about 40 victims of recent holdups in police line-up yesterday, Jack Russell Harris, 28, and Violet Fleming, 26, both of New York, who were arrested here Friday when they returned from New York allegedly to rob a night club in the neighborhood of Thomas Circle, were identified by two persons, according to police, and charged with six cases of robbery.

Police are searching for an associate who is said to have threatened the victims with a gun while the woman acted as a lookout and one of the gang tied up the proprietors of the stores.

The trio is suspected of a number of robberies which have been staged the last few months. The two arrested are charged with robbing a curio shop, a florist shop and other establishments. In each case they are said to have bound the proprietor and rifled the cash register.

Miss Fleming has admitted a few of the robberies, according to Detective Sergeant Frank Brass, who arrested the pair.

Lacy Zapf, 21, of 3417 Quebec street northwest, was also in the line-up yesterday. He was held for investigation following his arrest at 1808 I street northwest, where he entered Sunday night, displaying a toy pistol. Emmet Lynch, manager of the building, told police the boy demanded money. Zapf said that he entered the building to see a friend and that he drew the gun, which is in reality a cigarette case, because he wanted to smoke.

Court Lenient to Man Drunk Once in 81 Years

One fall off the water wagon in 81 years is permissible, Police Court Judge Gus A. Schuldt held yesterday, when he took the personal bond of James Nolan, 81, who was haled before him for intoxication.

When Nolan explained he was only celebrating his eighty-first birthday, and backed that up with 80 years of perfect sobriety, Judge Schuldt decided that the case did not warrant anything other than a technical conviction. Nolan was arrested by Policeman A. R. Houch.

Woman Again Sought As Assailant of Infant

In an effort to apprehend Lydia Humphries, of Rosslyn, Va., wanted by Arlington County authorities on a charge of assault upon her infant daughter, Jane, another warrant was issued yesterday on instructions of Sheriff Howard B. Fields, sworn to by Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of welfare for Arlington County.

The warrant charges that on August 17 she committed an assault upon the child. County Policeman A. D. Langley, with Detective Sergt. A. B. Mansfield, visited a downtown department store yesterday where it is said the woman is employed, but failed to find her.

Capital Woman Named By "Eight and Forty"

For the first time in the history of the organization a Washington woman has been elected national chapeau of the American Eight and Forty, the women's auxiliary of the American Legion, according to reports received yesterday from the legion convention at Portland, Oreg.

Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper, of the Marlboro Apartments, was elected to that office yesterday in Portland. Mrs. Harper has been actively engaged in legion work for some years. During the last year she has been in charge of welfare at the Veterans' Bureau under direction of Maj. P. C. Harris.

Two Nations To Pay Honor To De Grasse

France and America will pay tribute today to Admiral Francois Joseph Paul de Grasse, gallant commander of the French fleet sent to the aid of the colonies in their struggle for independence in 1781, commemorating the 210th anniversary of his birth.

Admiral de Grasse arrived in American waters when Gen. Washington was preparing his drive southward from New York to oust Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va. He stretched his fleet across Chesapeake Bay, and when the British fleet under Admiral Graves arrived to aid Cornwallis it found the way blocked. The French commander sailed out to meet the Britons and kept them so thoroughly occupied that they were unable to aid their land forces. Under the blockade, French reenforcements were able to land a train of seige artillery.

A special program this afternoon from 2 to 2:30 o'clock, over a Nation-wide hook-up of the National Broadcasting Co., will commemorate the anniversary of the admiral's birth. He died in 1788, lieutenant general of France's entire naval forces.

NUT GROWERS OPEN ANNUAL CONVENTION

Will Visit Nearby Orchards Today; Sessions End Tomorrow.

A talk by Col. Lennard H. Mitchell of 2219 California street northwest, on "Observations on the Culture of the Black Walnut," featured last night's meeting of the Northern Nut Growers Association, now holding its twenty-third annual convention at the Washington Hotel.

2 BROTHERS SOUGHT IN HOTEL GEM THEFT ELUDE POLICE HUNT

Empty Cases Are Discovered in Vacated Room; Tape Found in Other.

Police have been unable to trace two men who left the Harrington Hotel Sunday night prior to the discovery of seven empty cases from which jewelry valued at approximately $61,500 was stolen.

Two brothers, Milton M. and Benjamin M. Epstein, salesmen representing New York jewelry concerns, who have been registered at the hotel for the last week, when informed of the robbery early yesterday, were unable to give an exact estimate of their loss until they made a further check.

The two sought in connection with the theft were said to have left hurriedly, and their room was found to contain the empty jewelry cases.

The thieves evidently entered the Epstein brothers' room through the transom during the evening. A quantity of tape left in the room indicated they may have intended to tie up the salesmen if they encountered them while committing the robbery.

Milton Epstein, representing the Princess Ring Co., estimated his loss at $60,000, and his brother, a salesman for the Gothic Watch Co., said his loss was $1,500. The suspects were registered on the same floor as the salesmen. They were also said to be brothers.

Vaccine Tests Fail To Clear Up Death

Infection Blamed by Doctor After Child Expires in Hospital.

Although all tests have not been completed, examinations made so far of samples of the vaccine with which 5-year-old William G. Sheckels, 540 Newton street northwest, had been inoculated have shown the serum not to be defective, Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer, said yesterday. The child died in Children's Hospital ten days ago, and fear had been expressed that his death might have been attributable to imperfect vaccine.

Because of the several thousands of children and older persons who have been vaccinated recently, preliminary to opening of the school year, Health Department officials began a study of the vaccine. The physician who vaccinated the Sheckels child expressed the belief the vaccination sore had become infected.

Nothing poisonous was found by health experts in samples of food taken from a Georgia avenue barbecue stand recently, following the death of Raymond Thompson, who resides in the 900 block of Longfellow street northwest. Thompson died of acute inflammation of the intestines and hemorrhage of the kidneys after eating some food at the stand.

Report of the health department analysis of the food samples was forwarded yesterday by Dr. Fowler to Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, acting coroner.
